MEN FROM UNCLE VIEW IMPLEMENT DISPLAY

By LYNN MULVANEY

"Smoking pot is like petting—given the right environment, one step leads to the next."
This analogy was drawn by Dr. Ted. T. Grenda, superintendent of Rondout Valley Schools, who firmly believes a fresh approach to today's growing teenage drug problem is needed if it too is to be kept from proceeding to another giant step.
He agrees with lawmakers who complain of the ostrich-like attitude of parents and schoolmen who refuse to recognize a monster when they see it.
Just this week an indication of teacher's varied approaches to the narcotic subject is evidenced in the fact that a number of city and county teachers devoted class time for discussion of the problem following publication of the Freeman series.
Yet, several others were heard "pooh-poohing" the paper's effort, relegating it to a position of mere "sensationalism."
But it isn't Sensationalism. Police records bear out the facts. It is the police who have been stepping up investigations, especially during the past 18 months, and emphatically so since the beginning of this school year.

Police Concern
It is the police who have been sending more and more of their force to narcotics schools. It is the police agencies who have been sending representatives into the community, into the schools, to speak to students, service, civic and social organizations—to anyone who will listen.
They expend the effort because they know the need.
Many schoolmen know the need too. In talking with various administrators throughout the county, a good many tell of assembly programs, films, classroom discussions aimed at educating the student.
Some schools, like Rondout, have begun holding programs for parents in order that they too will gain more insight into the problem.
"It's one thing to say that students 'must' be educated to the dangers of drugs... but another thing entirely to come up with the right kind of education," School Management magazine points out.

It says the law and the schools agree that one-shot assemblies have negligible effect. However Kingston Superintendent Dr. W. Wendell Hoover was impressed with the rapid attention high school students gave to one recent film showing which he described as "a little rough in spots."
"You could have heard a pin drop," he said.
School Management magazine points to this sort of "shock" treatment as having value, giving as an example a film shown a school assembly depicting "a derelict, insensible from a pain killing drug, found unconscious with his face congealed against a hot radiator."
It is also suggested the education of children on the subject begin in the elementary grades and that teachers be well-schooled in the subject.
"The uninformed teacher who tells students that 'marijuana can lead to insanity' will be laughed at."
The State Education Department and the State Health Department are now developing a syllabus which it is hoped will impress students from kindergarten through high school. It is expected to be ready in September.

Seminar Series
A series of seminars is planned for school administrators by the State Narcotic Control Commission which believes the average teacher has never even seen marijuana and is therefore limited in his effectiveness for coping with the problem.
The local community, the schools, and the state and federal government which is also pushing narcotic legislation seem to be awakening, but so far there are no pat answers.
Perhaps the observation of a man who once sponsored Dr. Timothy Leary and who had a change of heart once Leary left the realm of science and turned to the evangelism of drug experience is applicable:
"It is probably no accident that the society which most consistently encouraged the use of the substances, India, produced one of the sickest social orders ever created by mankind in which thinking man spent his time lost in the Buddha position under the influence of drugs exploring consciousness, while poverty, disease, social discrimination, and superstition reached their highest and most organized form in all history."

PRICE TEN CENTS

By JACK BELL and
JOSEPH E. MOHBAT
Associated Press Writers
WASHINGTON (AP) — Sen. Robert F. Kennedy of New York plunged into the Democratic presidential nomination contest today as a second peace candidate opposing President Johnson's renomination.
Kennedy's announcement of his candidacy pits him against a fellow Roman Catholic and Vietnam war critic, Sen. Eugene J. McCarthy of Minnesota, in the uphill battle with Johnson for delegate votes at the party's August convention in Chicago.
Johnson has not yet said he plans to seek a second elective term. But Democratic National Chairman John M. Bailey and Vice President Hubert H. Humphrey have said repeatedly the President will be the nominee again.

Robert F. Kennedy began to reveal in public his doubts about President Lyndon Johnson carrying on the ideals of the late John F. Kennedy about a year after Johnson was elected to his first full term in the White House. Story on page 14.
Kennedy's belated announcement, made at a televised news conference, came after McCarthy had run a strong race against a Johnson write-in in last Tuesday's New Hampshire primary.
The scene of Kennedy's news conference was the historic caucus room of the old Senate Office Building where John F. Kennedy announced his candidacy Jan. 2, 1960.

Different Setting
But the setting was drastically different.
The 42-year-old former attorney general begins his quest under enormous handicaps:
—He is seeking to dislodge an incumbent President.
—He is a step behind another Democratic dissident, Sen. Eugene J. McCarthy, D-Minn., who made an impressive showing in Tuesday's New Hampshire primary and is expected to make a strong showing in Wisconsin April 2.
—His early soundings have indicated strong opposition to his plunge from many Democratic leaders who fear a party cleavage that could hand the presidency to the Republican candidate in November.

Kennedy made his decision late Thursday.
The decision came after lengthy secret conferences with his intimates—many of whom were in on the John Kennedy strategy sessions in 1960.
Firmly on his side from the beginning was his wife, Ethel.
Urging that the political realities dictated against his running was one of John Kennedy's closest associates, Theodore C. Sorensen.
Ambivalent was his brother, Sen. Edward M. Kennedy of Massachusetts.
Once the decision was made, however, it was clear to Kennedy he would go the whole route—seeking popular support in the state primaries, as his brother did, and attempting to corral convention delegates in state meetings.
Viet Key Issue
President Johnson's course in the Vietnam war, it is understood, will be the key issue in Kennedy's campaign.
He is expected to speak in specific terms as he calls for alternatives, urging as before a gradual de-escalation of military force to the point where negotiations can be held, and allowing for a coalition government including representatives of the Viet Cong.
He has told friends, "The key issue is what can be done for the country."
Thus his opening moves will carry the faint echo of President Kennedy's campaign cry to "get this country moving again."
Kennedy sees no immediate accommodation with Sen. McCarthy, who has suggested that Kennedy leave the primaries to him and see what a pooling of strength might accomplish at Chicago's national convention in August.
Running the Kennedy machinery will be his brother-in-law, Stephen P. Smith of New York, Kennedy was his brother's campaign manager in 1960.
One anomaly will be the position of Lawrence F. O'Brien, one of John Kennedy's key strategists. A close friend of the New York senator, O'Brien is now Johnson's principal political planner and, as postmaster general, a member of the Cabinet.

GREETINGS—Little Elizabeth Richmond reaches out for Sen. Robert F. Kennedy as her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Howard Richmond, look on in the Richmonds' King Point, N. Y. home. Kennedy announced in Washington this morning that he will seek the Democratic nomination for President. (UPI TELEPHOTO)

Gold Pool Allies In Pivotal Confab

By STERLING F. GREEN
WASHINGTON (AP) — America's six allies in the London gold pool converged on Washington today for a two-day conference seeking to solve the gravest global money crisis in 40 years.
As the central bankers assembled, a congressional drive developed to force a greater fiscal austerity on this country—and thus to generate, it was hoped, greater confidence in the dollar.
The plan calls for not only the deflationary 10 per cent tax surcharge asked by President Johnson, but a multibillion-dollar slash in Johnson's fiscal 1969 spending budget—a cut imposed on him by act of Congress.
That congressional move reportedly had the approval of Rep. Wilbur D. Mills, D-Ark., the potent chairman of the House Ways and Means committee.
Nothing Admitted
Mills has admitted nothing publicly but is known to have conferred at length with Chairman George H. Mahon, D-Tex., of the House Appropriations Committee. Mahon favors the double-edged plan.
But it remained to be seen whether those moves, buttressing the secret seven-power talks in the mausoleum-like Federal Reserve Board building, would dissuade profit-hungry gold speculators from resuming next week their frantic assault on the dollar in the world's gold markets.
The crisis was generally regarded as the most severe since the stock market collapse of 1929.
Airtight security was assured for the weekend conference of the central bankers of the United States, Britain, Belgium, Germany, Italy, the Netherlands and Switzerland.

The session was to start at 1 p.m. luncheon. The only communique, a board spokesman said, will be issued at the meeting's close sometime Sunday afternoon.
U.S. officials exuded calm confidence, meanwhile, that the nation's gold reserves will outlast the nerve and the resources of the gold hoarders who, for a frenzied fortnight, have been demanding gold for dollars—and hoping to enrich themselves by breaking down the dollar, key-stone currency of the free world.
Jacques Leon Rueff, foremost gold general in France's war on the dollar, says the price of gold should be doubled.
Area bankers give their views on the gold problem, adding action was long overdue. Stories on page 14.

predictions on the outcome of the seven-power conference, in which the governor of the Bank of International Settlements at Basel, Switzerland, will join the seven central bankers.
But the West German government has urged a double-price plan for gold. The rate for gold sales to governments would stay at $35 an ounce, while private buyers would pay whatever higher price was dictated by demand.
In any case, U.S. officials predicted major decisions because, as one of them said, the central bankers "are not coming to play poker."
Other Possibilities
There were several other possibilities. They included a further suspension of gold sales in the London market, the principal funnel through which gold has been flowing into the hands of speculators; or a decision to permit wider price fluctuations in the London market, thereby raising the cost of speculative buying; or even a complete shutdown of the London pool, to which the United States and cooperating nations have been contributing gold since 1961.
Serious misgivings are known to have developed among some of the other six participants as to whether they can continue feeding gold out of their reserves into the pool to maintain the $35 price, even with the United States putting up 59 per cent of the metal.
France, originally a contributor, pulled out after building up a massive reserve of gold whose value would be greatly enhanced if the world price were to be raised.
While the London gold market was shut down Friday, the Paris market remained open. In a feverish session the price of gold shot to $44.36 an ounce.

Infantry and Guerrillas In Hide-and-Seek Tactics

By ROBERT D. OHMAN
SAIGON (AP) — U.S. infantrymen, in a hide-and-seek fight through rice paddies and sand dunes along the central coast, killed 128 Viet Cong guerrillas today, the U.S. Command said.
A spokesman said a company of the 11th Light Infantry Brigade, sweeping into an area that had been bombed minutes earlier, tangled with guerrillas this morning.
A second company was dropped by helicopters two miles to the north an hour later and heavy fighting broke out as the guerrillas tried to escape the tightening vise.
Helicopter gunships and artillery supported the advancing U.S. infantrymen in the running battle six miles northeast of Quang Ngai City and 380 miles northeast of Saigon.
American casualties were not given since the forces were still in contact, a U.S. spokesman said.
In the Vietnam war's biggest operation, centered around Saigon, the total of slain enemy soldiers gradually increased to 394 with 83 suspects detained in the first six days. The U.S. Command said 27 Americans have been killed and 213 wounded. Vietnamese army headquarters said casualties among the government troops were light.

The latest clash was fought by soldiers of the U.S. 25th Infantry Division who killed nine guerrillas and captured three suspects Friday near Thu Duc, nine miles northeast of Saigon. American losses were 2 killed and 10 wounded.
Earlier Friday, a combined American-South Vietnamese force killed 81 enemy soldiers in the biggest battle so far in Operation Quyet Thang—Resolve to Win.

The massive operation, involving some 50,000 troops, was launched Monday in five provincial areas.

Wawarsing for Savago
By CHARLES BERMPOHL
Peter J. Savago received another big boost in his bid to capture the Republican nomination for the State Assembly when the Wawarsing GOP gave its 20 votes to the chairman of the county legislature last night.
This brings Savago's unofficial strength to 61 to H. Clark Bell's 46.
The official vote will be taken at the county convention on March 25.
Insurance man Savago has the delegations from Denning, Gardiner, nine votes of Lloyd's he may call upon the convention chairman to ask for the roll call method.
Because there was some evidence that not all of the Wawarsing committeemen had agreed upon Savago, there may be a demand made at the convention for a roll call. And if the contest becomes a neck and neck affair between Savago and Bell, individual voting could be a deciding factor.
The other announced candidates for the assembly post include William D. Brinnier of Saugerties and Lawrence A. Quilty of Kingston.

The senior Republican on the committee, Sen. Wallace F. Bennett, R-Utah, concurred. "We have more than $11 billion in gold," he said, "and I do not think private speculators can raise enough money to drain that out."
Bennett indicated his belief Congress is ready for stern measures to halt the erosion of the dollar through inflation and to correct the country's balance of payments deficit—the two conditions which, in Europe's view, have undermined confidence in the dollar overseas.

Young People Present Lenten Inspirational

By ALBERT J. CAWEIN

An inspiring display of witnessing for God in contrast to the present day unsavory activities of youth was the presentation of the young people at the Sunday Lenten service of Saugerties Area Council of Churches held at First Congregational Church.

The second Lenten service this past Sunday was planned, prepared and led by the young people of the various churches in the council.

Despite the demands of their time and energies, they have composed their own programs, formed their own choir and instrumental group and presented what they have written and sung at rehearsals. They received the advice and aid of their pastors.

Sermonette were presented as follows:

The Role of the Church in Today's Society, Glen Olsen; As Our Churches Draw Closer Together, Diana Lewis; The Individual and His Changing Thoughts, Peter Hoekstra, and Today's World and Christian Service by Mary Lou Mooers and read by her sister, Cindy Mooers. Mary Lou Mooers was on duty as a nurse and could not appear.

Thomas Cole read from the Scriptures prior to each sermonette.

The organ prelude and postlude was played by Sue Mellick. The call to worship was by Peter Hoekstra and Layne Gilpin introduced the processional hymn and offered the benediction. The invocation was offered by Philip Crank, who also led the recitation of the Lord's Prayer.

Mark Turner led the responsive reading and James Myers offered the evening prayer.

An instrumental quintet including Patty and Thomas Cole and Edward and Sue Mellander and Cindy Mooers played The Holy City.

The combined youth choirs sang three selections and David Seery care and child care during the second service.

Hurley Slates Public Hearings

Two public hearings sponsored by the Hurley Recreation Association are scheduled for Monday at St. Joseph's Mission Hall and Wednesday at West Hurley Firehouse.

The association will use the hearings to determine future plans for park development in Hurley. A non-profit corporation, the association is open to any Hurley resident. It was formed by town residents interested in developing recreational facilities for the town. A recent report by Brown and Anthony planning firm to the town planning board indicated that 45 to 60 acres of land should be set aside for recreation. At present there is only a Little League ball field and a skating rink for the entire town.

The association would like to develop two recreational facilities—one in Old Hurley and one in West Hurley. Each park would consist of a swimming pool, wading pool, ball field, tennis courts, picnic grounds and a few campsites. The size of each park would be approximately 15 acres.

The cost of construction and maintenance of the two parks will be discussed in detail at the open town meeting.

Donald Sweeney of the Hurley Recreation Association stressed that the project will in no way affect taxes. He urged all residents of the town to attend the public meetings to hear reports and air views.

$500 Fines Levied In Narcotics Cases

Imposition of $500 fines on four Massachusetts residents arrested on the Thruway on Feb. 23 on narcotics charges, and the arrest of three men found in possession of dangerous drugs, were latest developments in incidents involving drugs in this area.

State Trooper John Turck arrested three men and a woman on the superhighway in the Town of Saugerties last month and charged them with criminal possession of dangerous drugs. They were booked as Gerald Michael Sullivan, 18, of 17 Valley Road, Concord, Mass.; driver of the car in which the four were riding; Charles Lawrence Mason, Jr., 26, of Northboro, Mass.; Gregory Howard Sweigert, 18, of Boston, Mass.; and Marjorie Ann Hotz, 20, of Chestnut Hills, Mass.

Preliminary hearing was set for Friday afternoon before Ulster Town Justice Sherwood E. Davis. The defendants appeared with counsel and pleaded guilty to lesser charges involving drugs. The fines of $500 were paid by each defendant.

At the time of the arrests, Trooper Turck said he found about two pounds of drugs in the car, including opium, marijuana and heroin.

Late Friday afternoon, Troopers E. C. Scott and Jack Sellnow of the Leeds barracks, arrested three men on charges of criminal possession of dangerous drugs, a felony and criminal possession of hypodermic instruments. Troopers said a quantity of heroin and marijuana was seized.

The men were booked as Alvin Terry, 17, Clarence Washington, 21, and Joseph Riddick, 20, all of Queens. They were held in the Greene County jail at Catskill pending disposition of the charges.

forces north, west and south of Saigon.

Lt. Gen. Fred C. Weyand, commanding the 56th Infantry Division, said the goal is to "cover all the principal populated areas so that the people will know that the government is still in control."

Friday's major clash, 20 miles west of Saigon, began when an estimated 500 guerrillas opened up with automatic weapons and anti-aircraft rockets on the U.S. 11th Armored Cavalry Regiment. The Americans called in artillery, helicopter gunships and jet fighter-bombers.

Infantrymen from the South Vietnamese 25th Division moved in to block enemy escape routes, a U.S. spokesman said. The fighting ended at dusk.

The spokesman said no Americans were killed but 21 were wounded. The South Vietnamese said their casualties were light.

At about the same time, other government infantrymen in the sweep operation fought a pair of battles 18 miles northwest of Saigon. They reported killing 60 guerrillas and capturing two while losing seven killed and 14 wounded.

1st Major Operation

Quiet Thang is the first major allied operation in the Saigon area since the Viet Cong's lunar new year offensive exploded Jan. 31 with 5,000 guerrillas fighting police and government troops in Saigon and its suburbs.

Troops of the U.S. 25th Infantry Division uncovered 12 122mm rockets and 58 mortar rounds 25 miles northwest of Saigon and only a mile from where other arms caches were found earlier. So far, the battalions have found a total of 30 122mm rockets—the kind the Viet Cong have been using against Saigon's Tan Son Nhut airbase—plus rifles, machine guns, grenades, explosives and thousands of rounds of ammunition.

Some 400 miles to the north, a unit of the U.S. 1st Air Cavalry Division dug up 560 mortar rounds hidden near Quang Tri City 19 miles south of the demilitarized zone.

The U.S. and Vietnamese commands reported two other sharp fights Friday in the Mekong Delta.

Government rangers, infantrymen and guerrillas reported killing 53 guerrillas without a casualty of their own in a battle 75 miles southwest of Saigon.

Soldiers of the U.S. 9th Infantry Division battled guerrillas of the 263rd Main Force Battalion and reported killing 13 of the enemy, 34 miles southwest of Saigon. U.S. casualties were 6 killed and 22 wounded.

Two men were injured in separate one-car traffic accidents investigated by State Police early today.

Herman P. Meyer, 24, of Box 67, Maple Street, Rifton, was taken to Benedictine Hospital by Fatum's Ambulance and treated for chin lacerations and possible back injuries. Trooper A. J. Demonstrations End in Milwaukee MILWAUKEE, Wis. (AP) — The long trail that Milwaukee open housing demonstrators marched from summer until nearly spring has ended with its goal unachieved.

The Milwaukee Youth Council of the National Association for the Advancement of Colored People called off the marches, abruptly and without explanation, Friday—one day after the 200th consecutive nightly demonstration.

Milwaukee still has no strong open housing ordinance, only a measure that reflects the Wisconsin state law and leaves some two-thirds of the inner city's dwelling units exempt.

More than a hundred days ago, the Rev. James E. Groppi, white Roman Catholic priest and adviser to the youth council, said the Milwaukee marches could be, perhaps, one of the last tests of peaceful demonstration for racial goals.

'Dove' Sutton Leading Choice For N.Y. Senate

ALBANY, N.Y. (AP) — Percy Sutton, Manhattan borough president, appeared to have the inside track for nomination here today by state Democratic "doves" for a U.S. Senate seat.

Rep. John G. Dow of Rockland County was among others mentioned, but Sutton's name became prominent Friday on the eve of Sen. Robert F. Kennedy's declaration of his presidential candidacy.

Sutton, a Negro opposed to the Vietnam war, has said either Kennedy or Sen. Eugene McCarthy of Minnesota would be a good Democratic candidate to oust President Johnson.

The state group meeting here—known as the Coalition for a Democratic Alternative—endorsed McCarthy in January for the presidential nomination, but a spokesman said the endorsement was "flexible." That is, the group could switch to Kennedy in its commitment against Johnson.

Today's meeting was called, however, only to name a candidate to try to unseat Republican Sen. Jacob K. Javits. Delegates eligible to vote numbered more than 120.

Sutton had no plans to attend.

Sutton, 47, a veteran of World War II and the Korean War, was reported to have the support of Kennedy backers, including Democratic State Chairman John J. Burns.

Burns has scheduled a meeting of the Democratic State Committee for March 30 in New York City concerning a Senate candidate.

Rep. Joseph Y. Resnick of Ellenville and Rep. Otis G. Pike of Riverhead have been campaigning for the nomination but have not received leadership endorsement. A fight in the party primary June 18 is almost certain.

Challenge Speaker

Leonard Auchmoody, a senior student of the Teen Challenge School of Rhinebeck, will preach the sermon Sunday at the Shokan Reformed Church at 11 a.m.

Auchmoody was converted some years ago from a life of drug addiction and alcoholism. Since then he has studied with the Teen Challenge School and will graduate next month. He will sing a special number during the service.

Ulster Grange 969 will sponsor a teenage dance tonight at the Grange Hall in Ulster Park. It had been previously reported that the dance was at Lake Katrine Grange.

Poodles, Bird Victims In Ravine St. Blaze

Two French poodles and a pet bird were the victims of a house fire which swept through a two-story brick multiple dwelling at 14-16 Ravine Street at 1:20 a.m. today.

Five engines were sent to combat the blaze along with a salvage and aerial truck from the Central station.

A fire department spokesman said that the blaze started in a concealed drop ceiling above the kitchen in an apartment occupied by William Boone.

The flames spread to the second floor after having involved the entire first floor.

The engines from Central, Cornell, Rapid Hose, Union Hose and Cordts Hose stations responded.

Other fire apparatus in the city was shifted to fill in gaps at the other stations.

Under the direction of Fire

Chief James Brett and Deputy Chief Glen Southern, firefighters had to break several windows to relieve the apartments of the intense heat.

An aerial ladder was extended to the roof of the house and firemen had to cut two holes in the roof to let the smoke out and to get into the building.

There was severe fire, heat, smoke and water damage in the Boone and Johnson apartments.

Damage was less severe in the Weonda and Fitzgerald apartments.

The cause of the fire is still under investigation.

At 5:20 a.m., the Central station received a call and rushed to another blaze at 62 South Washington Avenue.

The fire involved a two-story frame house owned and occupied by Donald DeWitt.

Upon arriving, the firefighters discovered that the blaze was centered in the rear bedroom of the house with part of a hallway involved.

Hurley Slates Public Hearings

Two public hearings sponsored by the Hurley Recreation Association are scheduled for Monday at St. Joseph's Mission Hall and Wednesday at West Hurley Firehouse.

The association will use the hearings to determine future plans for park development in Hurley. A non-profit corporation, the association is open to any Hurley resident. It was formed by town residents interested in developing recreational facilities for the town. A recent report by Brown and Anthony planning firm to the town planning board indicated that 45 to 60 acres of land should be set aside for recreation. At present there is only a Little League ball field and a skating rink for the entire town.

$500 Fines Levied In Narcotics Cases

Imposition of $500 fines on four Massachusetts residents arrested on the Thruway on Feb. 23 on narcotics charges, and the arrest of three men found in possession of dangerous drugs, were latest developments in incidents involving drugs in this area.

State Trooper John Turck arrested three men and a woman on the superhighway in the Town of Saugerties last month and charged them with criminal possession of dangerous drugs. They were booked as Gerald Michael Sullivan, 18, of 17 Valley Road, Concord, Mass.; driver of the car in which the four were riding; Charles Lawrence Mason, Jr., 26, of Northboro Mass.; Gregory Howard Sweiger, 18, of Boston, Mass.; and Marjorie Ann Hotz, 20, of Chestnut Hills, Mass.

Preliminary hearing was set for Friday afternoon before forces north, west and south of Saigon.

Lt. Gen. Fred C. Weyand, commanding the 56th Infantry Division, said the goal is to "cover all the principal populated areas so that the people will know that the government is still in control."

Friday's major clash, 20 miles west of Saigon, began when an estimated 500 guerrillas opened up with automatic weapons and antitank rockets on men of the U.S. 11th Armored Cavalry Regiment. The Americans called in artillery, helicopter gunships and jet fighter-bombers.

Infantrymen from the South Vietnamese 25th Division moved in to block enemy escape routes, a U.S. spokesman said. The fighting ended at dusk.

The spokesman said no Americans were killed but 21 were wounded. The South Vietnamese said their casualties were light.

At about the same time, other government infantrymen in the sweep operation fought a pair of battles 18 miles northwest of Saigon. They reported killing 60 guerrillas and capturing two while losing seven killed and 14 wounded.

1st Major Operation

Quiet Thang is the first major allied operation in the Saigon area since the Viet Cong's lunar new year offensive exploded Jan. 31 with 5,000 guerrillas fighting police and government troops in Saigon and its suburbs.

Troops of the U.S. 25th Infantry Division uncovered 12 122mm rockets and 58 mortar rounds 25 miles northwest of Saigon and only a mile from where another arms cache was found earlier. So far, the battalions have found a total of 30 122mm rockets—the kind the Viet Cong have been using against Saigon's Tan Son Nhut airbase—plus rifles, machine guns, grenades, explosives and thousands of rounds of ammunition.

Some 400 miles to the north, a unit of the U.S. 1st Air Cavalry Division dug up 560 mortar rounds hidden near Quang Tri City 19 miles south of the demilitarized zone.

The U.S. and Vietnamese commands reported two other sharp fights Friday in the Mekong Delta.

Government rangers, infantrymen and militia reported killing 53 guerrillas without a casualty of their own in a battle 75 miles southwest of Saigon.

Soldiers of the U.S. 9th Infantry Division battled guerrillas of the 263rd Main Force Battalion and reported killing 13 of the enemy, 34 miles southwest of Saigon. U.S. casualties were 6 killed and 22 wounded.

The association would like to develop two recreational facilities—one in Old Hurley and one in West Hurley. Each park would consist of a swimming pool, wading pool, ball field, tennis courts, picnic grounds and a few campsites. The size of each park would be approximately 15 acres.

The cost of construction and maintenance of the two parks will be discussed in detail at the open town meeting.

Donald Sweeney of the Hurley Recreation Association stressed that the project will in no way affect taxes. He urged all residents of the town to attend the public meetings to hear reports and air views.

Chamber to Sponsor Economic Discussion

"Understanding Economics," a new 10-session discussion course developed by the National Chamber will be presented for the benefit of area businessmen and residents by the Kingston Area Chamber of Commerce.

Chamber president, S. James Matthews indicated that the course presents, in laymen's language, an up-to-date timely discussion of our national economy and what makes it tick. Matthews announced that Alexander J. McKittrick, executive vice president of the First Federal Savings and Loan Association and currently chairman of the chamber's business development committee will be the course discussion leader.

"Understanding Economics" will consist of ten 90-minute weekly breakfast meetings starting at 7:30 a.m. and adjourning promptly at 9 a.m. The $15 registration fee covers a continental breakfast each week, also incorporated in this cost are all materials to be used in the course, including a set of 10 booklets. Each deals with one important area of the enterprise economy. The set of 10 booklets becomes the property of the participant upon his or her completion of the course.

A highlight of each discussion session will be the Eco-Tape; a recorded interview with 10 national authorities. Each will discuss events in his own field as they relate to the particular subject of the session.

McKittrick is a graduate of Lafayette College in Easton, Pa., with a major in mathematics and a minor in economics. Married and the father of three children, he has been with First Federal Savings and Loan Association since July, 1961. Since February, 1966, he has been the executive officer

'Dove' Sutton Leading Choice For N.Y. Senate

ALBANY, N.Y. (AP) — Percy Sutton, Manhattan borough president, appeared to have the inside track for nomination here today by state Democratic "doves" for a U.S. Senate seat.

Rep. John G. Dow of Rockland County was among others mentioned, but Sutton's name became prominent Friday on the eve of Sen. Robert F. Kennedy's declaration of his presidential candidacy.

Sutton, a Negro opposed to the Vietnam war, has said either Kennedy or Sen. Eugene McCarthy of Minnesota would be a good Democratic candidate to oust President Johnson.

The state group meeting here — known as the Coalition for a Democratic Alternative — endorsed McCarthy in January for the presidential nomination, but a spokesman said the endorsement was "flexible." That is, the group could switch to Kennedy in its commitment against Johnson.

Today's meeting was called, however, only to name a candidate to try to unseat Republican Sen. Jacob K. Javits. Delegates eligible to vote numbered more than 120.

Sutton had no plans to attend.

Sutton, 47, a veteran of World War II and the Korean War, was reported to have the support of Kennedy backers, including Democratic State Chairman John J. Burns.

Burns has scheduled a meeting of the Democratic State Committee for March 30 in New York City concerning a Senate candidate.

Rep. Joseph Y. Resnick of Ellenville and Rep. Otis G. Pike of Riverhead have been campaigning for the nomination but have not received leadership endorsement. A fight in the party primary June 18 is almost certain.

Challenge Speaker

Leonard Auchmoody, a senior student of the Teen Challenge School of Rhinebeck, will preach the sermon Sunday at the Shokan Reformed Church at 11 a.m.

Auchmoody was converted some years ago from a life of drug addiction and alcoholism. Since then he has studied with the Teen Challenge School and will graduate next month. He will sing a special number during the service.

The pastor, the Rev. O. Phillips and the church consistory extend an invitation to the public to attend.

To Sponsor Dance

Poodles, Bird Victims In Ravine St. Blaze

Two French poodles and a pet bird were the victims of a house fire which swept through a two-story brick multiple dwelling at 14-16 Ravine Street at 1:20 a.m. today.

Five engines were sent to combat the blaze along with a salvage and aerial truck from the Central station.

A fire department spokesman said that the blaze started in a concealed drop ceiling above the kitchen in an apartment occupied by William Boone.

The flames spread to the second floor after having involved the entire first floor.

The engines from Central, Cornell, Rapid Hose, Union Hose and Cordts Hose stations responded.

Other fire apparatus in the city was shifted to fill in gaps at the other stations.

Under the direction of Fire

Chief James Brett and Deputy Chief Glen Southern, firefighters had to break several windows to relieve the apartments of the intense heat.

An aerial ladder was extended to the roof of the house and firemen had to cut two holes in the roof to let the smoke out and to get into the building.

There was severe fire, heat, smoke and water damage in the Boone and Johnson apartments.

Damage was less severe in the Weonda and Fitzgerald apartments.

The cause of the fire is still under investigation.

At 5:20 a.m., the Central station received a call and rushed to another blaze at 62 South Washington Avenue.

The fire involved a two-story frame house owned and occupied by Donald DeWitt.

Upon arriving, the firefighters discovered that the blaze was centered in the rear bedroom of the house with part of a hallway involved.

It was discovered that the fire originated in the rear bedroom. Flames had gone through the ceiling and to the roof and it had branched into the hall.

Engine two and truck two from the Central Station responded, with engine one returning from the Ravine Street blaze.

There was fire damage to the bedroom, wiring, and a portion of the hall, with smoke damage throughout the remainder of the structure. The probable cause of the fire was considered to be smoking in bed.

St. Patrick's Day

Sunday is St. Patrick's Day, the anniversary of the patron saint of Ireland. The "wearing of the green" signifies no race or creed as many nationalities will join in holding social functions tonight. As a salute to Ireland, green is displayed everywhere.

Loved by people in many lands, legends have grown up in connection with his career. One of the better known of all the legends is how he was responsible for the Shamrock becoming the familiar Irish emblem. One day a group of followers came to him and admitted that it was difficult for them to believe in the doctrine of the Holy Trinity. Plucking a leaf from the Shamrock, St. Patrick held it before them, bidding them to behold the living example of this "three-in-one." The simple beauty of this explanation convinced them and from that day the Shamrock has been revered throughout Ireland.

St. Patrick overcame many perils of his time and made many friends. The Irish look back to him with great affection, because his courage and cheerfulness have been handed on to so many of his followers.

New City Every Day

A city the size of Sacramento, the capital of California, is born every day. The Population Reference Bureau figures it this way: 324,000 babies enter the world on an average day; 10,000 either starve to death or die of malnutrition, and 123,000 die from other causes. The net gain is 191,000—almost exactly the population of Sacramento.

The bureau, which keeps track of demographic information, finds that the developed nations with a third of the world's population have brought their death rates into approximate balance with their birth rates and their populations are at a static level. Growth in the "have" nations is slowing down, per capita incomes are high, literacy is widespread and food supplies adequate.

The problem is with the underdeveloped, or have-not nations, where two-thirds of the world population lives. Here literacy and income levels are almost stagnant, food production is falling behind population growth, and the population explosion is real.

If these population trends continue, the bureau predicts that the world's total population would pass 3.5 billion by next January 1 and double to seven billion by the year 2,000.

Until recently, developed nations were worrying about their population growth. They need only pass their know-how in agricultural, industrial and social sciences to developing nations to manage the growth that could engulf the world in an insoluble problem.

Teacher Certification

With one-fifth of teachers in this country receiving their university preparation in a state other than the one in which they are first employed, a need has arisen for teacher certification that would adhere to standards recognized and accepted in other states.

Representatives of ten states are attempting to develop uniform procedures for a single certification that would be accepted by all participating states. Their foremost thought is that there shall be no weakening of teaching as a result of the interstate certification.

The states working on this project are California, Connecticut, Kentucky, Michigan, New Jersey, New York, North Carolina, Ohio, Pennsylvania and Rhode Island. Illinois is an active observer. The aim is for participating states to fix similar standards of preparation for teachers, and to make sure the colleges and universities in the states adhere to them.

The object is to create a pool of certified qualified teachers who could move across state lines without having to take qualifying examinations. Enabling legislation is being introduced in some of these states. Once it is passed, then the states which legalize interstate certification will accept teachers from each participating state.

Eventually, of course, all participating states will so upgrade their teaching staff that the educational system of the whole country—or at least all the states which enlist in the project—will be on a higher but even par.

Sunday chicken dinner for four cost $3.78 in January and a roast beef dinner for the same family $5.27. These Labor Department figures are for dinners prepared at home. In many parts of the country, they are approaching levels where it is more economical to eat out in small town restaurants untouched by glamour.

On the 15th anniversary of Joseph Stalin's death this week, it was recalled that several hundred citizens were crushed to death or seriously injured as hundreds of thousands crammed the streets to march to view his body. Now the tyrant's name was completely forgotten in his native country.

Henry J. Taylor Says

Examples of Satellite Freedom

By HENRY J. TAYLOR

Prague's attempt to extradite Czech defector Maj. Gen. Jan Sejna who sought asylum here February 25, contains a ton of irony. It is also a beautiful example of satellite freedom and what happens when the thieves fall out. His fellow Reds want this Red home to hang him.

The irony dates back exactly one year. Bloody-fisted Sejna was cock of the walk when his government and the Soviet Union diverted a Soviet plane en route Moscow to Paris to seize in Prague Czech-born American citizen Vladimir Kazan-Komarek.

Sejna and others questioned Kazan-Komarek a torturous nine hours a day on a regular schedule to get him to condemn the United States and charged Kazan-Komarek about $2 a day for being in Prague's Ruzyně prison.

Said Kazan-Komarek later: "My brother Miroslav served 10 years in jail just because he knew me."

But, now that Sejna himself is in trouble, where does he rush to? The United States of America.

The final test of a country's freedom is freedom to leave. Sejna, typically, stole out in a midnight ruse. Or, closer home, there's a three-year backlog of Cuban applicants for the Miami-bound planes. Each refugee must present himself at the airport six hours before the flight. He is forced to turn in almost every personal belonging. These are dumped, sorted and sold in the loyers and halls of Havana's Capitol. Baby shoes, eyeglasses, skirts and scarfs, sandals, Panama hats, and religious medals are stacked in marble corridors like the sorting bins and warehouses of Auschwitz.

Asylum-seeking Sejna should remind us that we've been sold a bill of goods about what's happening in the satellite countries. The slaves merely get different bosses from time to time, as is happening now in Czechoslovakia.

The horrible tyranny remains. The millions sleep with one eye open waiting for the knock. If a neighbor dislikes you his word may kill you.

Propagandizing us with the false idea that "freedom" is somehow sprouting in the satellites is like suggesting that an octopus is shedding its own tentacles. The tentacles are in the nature of the octopus and the octopus couldn't survive without them.

Moreover, we should remember that each satellite's Red chief owes his job to her Soviet Union. He and his old or new cabal would be out of a job in five minutes if the Kremlin blew the whistle. Do you think these stooges want to wake up in Siberia?

Communism is not a political, social or racial phenomenon. It is a manifestation of human brutality and dishonesty. It is not even an economic innovation. The economic failure of communism is famous. In fact, no Communist state ever survived without the aid of free countries.

American-French Friendship Thrives Despite DeGaulle

WASHINGTON—The Union Pacific railroad made a significant move in Cheyenne, Wyo., the other day which President de Gaulle of France didn't know about. Whether it interests him or not, it will interest other Frenchmen.

The Union Pacific took an ancient French boxcar which had carried forty men and eight horses up to the front lines in World War I, and put the car on a small grassy park alongside its Cheyenne railroad station. The new location gives every passenger a chance to see the boxcar, a token of French-American friendship.

This particular boxcar is of special significance because it was given to the people of Wyoming by the people of France in 1918, as a gesture of gratitude for the Friendship Train which the American people sent to Western Europe during the dark days of 1947 when France, Italy and other countries were near starvation.

The Union Pacific and other American railroads played the major part in organizing that Friendship Train, so the French people in gratitude sent their "Merci Train," consisting of 50 World-War I boxcars filled with paintings, statuary and other typically French gifts.

The Wyoming Eagle, commenting on the gesture of the Union Pacific in moving the French boxcar to a more conspicuous place, said:

"Today the small boxcar at its new location stands as a reminder of the historic friendship between the people of the United States and France. If aging, arrogant President Charles de Gaulle remembers that historic friendship, he has done precious little to demonstrate it in recent months."

"But we strongly suspect that millions of French citizens, despite the attitude of their president, would be proud and pleased to know that at least one car of their Merci Train stands on a brand new base, where thousands can see it and be reminded of a historic friendship."

Several other recipients, notably North Dakota, Louisiana, the cities of Fresno, Calif., Honolulu, and Manchester, N. H., have exhibited their boxcars from the French Merci Train in conspicuous places. And the action of the Union Pacific in highlighting this gift from the French people, at a time when official friendship is on the downgrade, is a reminder that relations between people are much more important than relations between governments.

We agree with the Union Pacific that the 200-year-old friendship between the French and American people will survive long after the imperious "Le Grand Charley" passes on.

Gridiron-Go-Round

Rep. Jerry Ford of Michigan tried desperately at the Gridiron Club dinner to overcome the charge that Republicans have no sense of humor. "President Johnson has been claiming that Jerry Ford never got over being kicked in the head because he didn't wear a head guard playing football," said the House GOP Leader. Then, to illustrate the Johnson credibility gap, Jerry produced his old football helmet and tried to put it on. Much to his chagrin it wouldn't fit. "Jerry's head grew," audibly snickered the Democrats.

Harold Stassen who was present wearing his new toupee, got a lot of ribbing, and took it goodnaturedly. So did Gov. George Romney over his withdrawal from the Presidential race. Vice President Humphrey, who gets a little weary of playing second fiddle to LBJ, ribbed himself for about five minutes, then, looking at his watch, he told the crowd: "They told me that if I hadn't arrived by this time I could go ahead with my regular speech."

Gas Lobby

While the nation was worrying about danger in Vietnam, three lobbyists for the natural gas industry were unobtrusively trying to create more danger at home. They wanted to undermine the tough pipeline safety bill which Sen. Warren Magnuson, D-Wash., engineered through the Senate with President Johnson's blessing to make sure that old and corroding pipe carrying heavy pressures of natural gas do not explode near towns and cities.

There's been increasing loss of life from exploding pipelines and one terrible fire in Queens of five city blocks, which would have cost many lives had it not been for the alert New York City fire department.

Samuels Will Face Severe Test at Gridiron Dinner

By CHARLES DUMAS

ALBANY, N. Y. (AP)—Howard Samuels is going to face one of the most unnerving experiences of his public life tonight.

Depending on how he handles it, his political career could take on new lustre, or it could be dimmed.

The challenge confronting Samuels is one that has made many a strong politician quake—delivering one of the speeches at the annual gridiron show and dinner of the Legislative Correspondents Association.

Assembled in the banquet hall Saturday night will be one of the most politically sophisticated and critical audiences a speaker could face.

The roster of 448 guests for the formal, stag affair is always headed by the governor and reads like a who's who of men in government, politics and allied professions and industry in New York State. It's a prestige audience conscious of its prestige. In political parlance, they are "king makers."

The audience assembles, at the invitation of Capitol reporters, to watch the newsmen lampoon the foibles of the state's politicians in a three-act musical, elaborately staged and costumed.

After the theatrics comes the piece de resistance, for many guests—watching three top-ranking politicians compete to make the best impression in brief, off-the-record speeches.

The object is to score with the most witty or urbane or pungent remarks—almost anything goes—so that the guests will depart saying, "So and so really can handle himself, can't he?"

By tradition, the governor is always the third and last speaker. And, being governor, he's usually more relaxed about it all.

Customarily a balance is struck between the preceding speakers by having one Republican, Last year, for example, U.S. Sen. Robert F. Kennedy and Lt. Gov. Malcolm Wilson were tapped, and they acquitted themselves well—much to the relief of their staff aides and ghost-writers.

Such has not always been the case, however, and it's difficult to find a politician more woeful than one who has struck out at the LCA affair.

Happened to O'Connor

It happened to Frank O'Connor two years ago. Riding into the Democratic nomination for governor, O'Connor turned up confidently with a funny speech that just didn't go over. The audience sat on its hands, and he finished crestfallen.

Later, after O'Connor was crushed by Rockefeller in the election, aides said his confidence was so shaken by the LCA experience that he never was quite able to regain his buoyancy.

Besides Samuels and Rockefeller, the other speaker this year is Senate Majority Leader Earl W. Brydges. He'll want to make a good impression, of course, but Brydges has little to lose, because he's secure in his political niche and does not nurse ambitions for higher office.

By contrast, Samuels, the young self-made millionaire from upstate Canandaigua, has great aspirations. Although he failed in a bid for the 1966 nomination for governor, he put on a strong campaign in the lieutenant governor's slot and was rewarded with an appointment as undersecretary of commerce.

His political career now is at a quiescent stage, and there hasn't been much talk lately of Samuels for major elective office. But such talk could be revived, if he managed to project himself favorably with the right people.

What better time than now, when Democrats are looking for a U.S. Senate candidate? And what better opportunity than the one that will present itself Saturday night?

The Humane Law

Editor, The Freeman

Dear Sir:

The stealing of pets for laboratory experimentation was supposed to have been outlawed when Congress passed Public Law 89-544 in 1966. But in practice this law has been a great disappointment. The bill only covers dealers who sell animals directly to laboratories or who transport dogs and cats across state lines for that purpose. The "procurers" who steal pets and sell them to the dealers are not covered by the law.

The bill has been widely acclaimed as setting humane standards for animals with laboratories. In this, too, it is inadequate. It sets standards only in about 20% of the laboratories and then for about 5% of the animals, and then only when they are not under experimentation—the very time when they need protection most. Rabbits in drug testing laboratories, monkeys in the large primate centers, horses and farm animals, all these are not covered by a humane law at all.

Senator Jacob Javits and Representative Paul Rogers have introduced new legislation which will extend care to all animals in all laboratories, and among other provisions will prescribe anesthesia and pain-relieving drugs during and after operations. But the Senators who wrote the very weak "dealers" bill last year are standing out against any bill which would extend or improve it. They have taken the unprecedented step of putting a "hold" on the Rogers-Javits humane bill (S. 2481) so that it cannot be referred to a Committee for study and debate, or to the whole Senate for a vote. These enemies of good legislation know that if the Rogers-Javits bill comes to a vote it will almost surely pass.

Apparently, Majority Leader Mike Mansfield must give his permission to remove the "hold." Therefore, let me urge all people among your readers who care about animals to write Senator Mike Mansfield, Senate Office Building, Washington, D.C., and strongly request him to use his influence in support of the Rogers-Javits bill for protection of laboratory animals (S. 2418) without delay.

Yours faithfully

the human spirit remain.

Hungary, in contradiction to Poland, blamed private ownership for its failures. The little-known fact is that Hungary did not collectivize its farms until 1960. Hungarian agriculture, nevertheless, continues downhill at toboggan speed.

For centuries this Balkan nation was the breadbasket of Eastern Europe, an enormous wheat exporter. Today Hungary grows hardly enough wheat for home consumption.

Castro pays Czechoslovakia for training his guerrillas—in sugar. But Czechoslovakia's own beet sugar is siphoned off to the Soviet Union for practically nothing. What good does it do the Czech people to have its Red government train Castro's guerrillas.

I visited the immense Skoda industrial complex at Pilsen, Czechoslovakia. The Czech railroads are in terrible shape. Skoda makes excellent Diesel-electric locomotives. They're siphoned off to the Soviet Union.

There's a home shortage of the country's famous Pilsen beer. Russian throats are thirsty for it. There's also a shortage of the beautiful Czech glass we so admire in our country. The Soviet takes most of this—practically gratis.

Communists not only govern countries, they pillage them—economically, morally, ethically and spiritually. How can nations show a greater distrust of their own citizens than to build an electrified fence around them to keep them in?

The liberal blindness on these points must astound any fair-minded American.

Jim Bishop: Reporter

The first brief smile of Spring adorns the land and the whole nation starts to discuss summer vacations. Some will go to the same old lake; others will trudge the mountains, or walk barefooted along damp beaches. A few will sleep at home through the entire two weeks.

This is the year that Industry and Government asked you to take a look at America. It's worth a look, not only because it is a place of, stunning beauty, but it will also keep a couple of billions of dollars from flowing into foreign hands, to be redeemed for gold at Fort Knox.

If I had three weeks to spare, I'd buy tourist vacation tickets on the airlines and see the whole country. Three weeks? This proves that more than the air is balmy. Permit me to dream on. I'd start in New York. . . NEW YORK is a great departure point. If you enjoy legitimate theatre, in addition to Grant's Tomb and the Statue of Liberty, it may be worth a two-day stay. It's loaded with hot canyons and cold eyes.

DETROIT is a favorite short stop, because of Dearborn, which has restored the original courtroom in which Abraham Lincoln practiced; the Wright Brothers laboratory, with their books and drawings of planes; Henry Ford's first efforts at making a horseless carriage; Thomas Edison's first generator and electric light bulb. Besides, one can ride through the Windsor Tunnel and visit Canada.

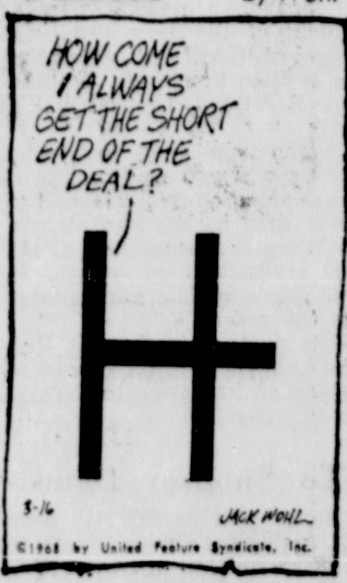

DENVER: This mile-high city sits in the shadow of the lofty Rockies. An hour's drive from an original mining town, complete with hitching posts, dance hall, opera house, the face on the bar-room floor, Denver has some swinging joints for dinner.

LAS VEGAS: A billiard table desert with a diamond-studded cue in the middle. Beautiful roulette, sophisticated roulette wheels—sleep all day, play all night. See gigantic Hoover Dam. Only the losers jump.

SEATTLE: The northwestern edge of the United States. Fine restaurants, good golf courses, the whole Cascade Range is in view. There is the Columbia River. Vancouver to the north and Olympic National Park on the Pacific Ocean.

SAN FRANCISCO: The personality kid of municipalities.

Drew Pearson Says American-French Friendship Thrives Despite DeGaulle

WASHINGTON—The Union Pacific railroad made a significant move in Cheyenne, Wyo., the other day, which President de Gaulle of France didn't know about. Whether it interests him or not, it will interest other Frenchmen.

The Union Pacific took an ancient French boxcar which had carried forty men and eight horses up to the front lines in World War I, and put the car on a small grassy park alongside its Cheyenne railroad station. The new location gives every passenger a chance to see the boxcar, a token of French-American friendship.

This particular boxcar is of special significance because it was given to the people of Wyoming by the people of France in 1938, as a gesture of gratitude for the Friendship Train which the American people sent to Western Europe during the dark days of 1947 when France, Italy and other countries were near starvation.

The Wyoming Eagle, commenting on the gesture of the Union Pacific in moving the French boxcar to a more conspicuous place, said: "Today the small boxcar at its new location stands as a reminder of the historic friendship between the peoples of the United States and France. If aging, arrogant President Charles de Gaulle remembers that historic friendship, he has done precious little to demonstrate it in recent months."

"But we strongly suspect that millions of French citizens, despite the attitude of their president, would be proud and pleased to know that at least one car of their Merci Train stands on a brand new base, where thousands can see it and be reminded of a historic friendship."

Several other recipients, notably North Dakota, Louisiana, the cities of Fresno, Calif., Honolulu, and Manchester, N. H., have exhibited their boxcars from the French Merci Train in conspicuous places. And the action of the Union Pacific in highlighting this gift from the French people, at a time when official friendship is on the downgrade, is a reminder that relations between people are much more important than relations between governments.

We agree with the Union Pacific that the 200-year-old friendship between the French and American people will survive long after the imperious "Le Grand Charley" passes on.

Gridiron-Go-Round

Rep. Jerry Ford of Michigan tried desperately at the Gridiron Club dinner to overcome the charge that Republicans have no sense of humor. "President Johnson has been claiming that Jerry Ford never got over being kicked in the head because he didn't wear a head guard playing football," said the House GOP Leader. Then, to illustrate the Johnson credibility gap, Jerry produced his old football helmet and tried to put it on. Much to his chagrin it wouldn't fit. "Jerry's head grew," audibly snickered the Democrats. Harold Stassen who was present wearing his new toupee, got a lot of ribbing, and took it goodnaturedly. So did Gov. George Romney over his withdrawal from the Presidential race. Vice President Humphrey, who gets a little weary of playing second fiddle to LBJ, ribbed himself for about five minutes, then, looking at his watch, he told the crowd: "They told me that if he hadn't arrived by this time I could go ahead with my regular speech."

Gas Lobby

While the nation was worrying about danger in Vietnam, three lobbyists for the natural gas industry were unobtrusively trying to create more danger at home. They wanted to undermine the tough pipeline safety bill which Sen. Warren Magnuson, D-Wash., engineered through the Senate with President Johnson's blessing to make sure that old and corroding pipe carrying heavy pressures of natural gas do not explode near towns and cities.

There's been increasing loss of life from exploding pipelines and one terrible fire in Queens of five city blocks, which would have cost many lives had it not been for the alert New York City fire department.

The three lobbyists who test-tified before the House Commerce Subcommittee were: W. A. Straus of the Independent Natural Gas Association.

Robert Hornby of the American Gas Association; Kenneth C. Vaughan of the American Petroleum Institute.

They proposed to gut the entire Senate bill with the following amendments:

1. No safety standard would apply to existing pipelines, only to new lines built in the future. This would exempt 700,000 miles of old and medium pipe.
2. Eliminate any criminal penalty for companies which fail to properly police and strengthen their pipe; also reduce the civil penalty from a maximum of $400,000 to $100,000.
3. Write into the law the requirement that the government use pipeline company standards for quality of pipe rather than government standards.

4. Put enforcement of safety standards under the individual states, not the Federal Power Commission.
5. The American Petroleum Institute proposed the exemption of all gathering lines—in other words, branch lines leading to the main trunk line.

6. Eliminate a key provision of the Senate bill to give home owners and tenants the right to challenge inadequate safety standards.
7. No federal government reports on pipeline accidents would be made available for use by victims of these accidents. This would make it difficult if not impossible for citizens to sue gas companies in case of pipeline explosions.

Chairman Torbert MacDonald, Massachusetts Democrat, presided. He has been a critic of the gas industry in the past. Note—while these hearings were in progress, Assistant Secretary of Transportation John Sweeney, in charge of protecting the public regarding pipelines, had a TV set in his office and was watching Gov. Romney of Michigan withdraw from the race. Sweeney wants to be governor of Michigan. Meanwhile, he has done nothing to draft the oil safety standards under a law passed by Congress in 1965, requiring the federal government to set oil pipeline safety standards. Nearly three years have passed and nothing has happened.

Samuels Will Face Severe Test at Gridiron Dinner

By CHARLES DUMAS

ALBANY, N. Y. (AP)—Howard Samuels is going to face one of the most unnerving experiences of his public life tonight.

Depending on how he handles it, his political career could take on new lustre, or it could be dimmed.

The challenge confronting Samuels is one that has made many a strong politician quake—delivering one of the speeches at the annual gridiron show and dinner of the Legislative Correspondents Association.

Assembled in the banquet hall Saturday night will be one of the most politically sophisticated and critical audiences a speaker could face.

The roster of 448 guests for the formal, stag affair is always headed by the governor and reads like a who's who of men in government, politics and allied professions and industry in New York State. It's a prestige audience conscious of its prestige. In political parlance, they are "king makers."

The audience assemblies, at the invitation of Capitol reporters, to watch the newsman lampoon the foibles of the state's politicians in a three-act musical, elaborately staged and costumed.

After the theatrics comes the piece de resistance, for many guests—watching three top-ranking politicians compete to make the best impression in brief, off-the-record speeches.

The object is to score with the most witty or urbane or pungent remarks — almost anything goes — so that the guests will depart saying, "So and so really can handle himself, can't he?"

By tradition, the governor is always the third and last speaker. And, being governor, he's usually more relaxed about it all.

Customarily a balance is struck between the preceding speakers by having one Republican. Last year, for example, U.S. Sen. Robert F. Kennedy and Lt. Gov. Malcolm Wilson were tapped, and they acquitted themselves well—much to the relief of their staff aides and ghost-writers.

Such has not always been the case, however, and it's difficult to find a politician more woeful than one who has struck out at the LCA affair.

Happened to O'Connor

It happened to Frank O'Connor two years ago. Riding into the Democratic nomination for governor, O'Connor turned up confidently with a funny speech that just didn't go over. The audience sat on its hands, and he finished crestfallen.

Later, after O'Connor was crushed by Rockefeller in the election, aides said his confidence was so shaken by the LCA experience that he never was quite able to regain his buoyancy.

Besides Samuels and Rockefeller, the other speaker this year is Senate Majority Leader Earl W. Brydges. He'll want to make a good impression of course, but Brydges has little to lose, because he's secure in his political niche and does not nurse ambitions for higher office.

By contrast, Samuels, the young self-made millionaire from upstate Canandaigua, has great aspirations. Although he failed in a bid for the 1966 nomination for governor, he put on a strong campaign in the lieutenant governor's slot and was rewarded with an appointment as undersecretary of commerce.

His political career now is at a quiescent stage, and there hasn't been much talk lately of Samuels for major elective office. But such talk could be revived, if he managed to project himself favorably with the right people.

What better time than now, when Democrats are looking for a U.S. Senate candidate? And what better opportunity than the one that will present itself Saturday night?

The Humane Law
Editor, The Freeman

Dear Sir: The stealing of pets for laboratory experimentation was supposed to have been outlawed when Congress passed Public Law 89-544 in 1966. But in practice this law has been a great disappointment. The bill only covers dealers who sell animals directly to laboratories or who transport dogs and cats across state lines for that purpose. The "procurers" who steal pets and sell them to the dealers are not covered by the law. The bill has been widely acclaimed as setting humane standards for animals used in laboratories. In this, too, it is inadequate. It sets standards only in about 20% of the laboratories and then for about 5% of the animals, and then only when they are not under experimentation—the very time when they need protection most. Rabbits in drug testing laboratories, monkeys in the large primate centers, horses and farm animals, all these are not covered by a humane law at all.

Senator Jacob Javits and Representative Paul Rogers have introduced new legislation which will extend care to all animals in all laboratories, and among other provisions will prescribe anesthesia and pain-relieving drugs during and after operations. But the Senators who wrote the very weak "dealers" bill last year are standing out against any bill which would extend or improve it. They have taken the unprecedented step of putting a "hold" on the Rogers-Javits humane bill (S. 2481) so that it cannot be referred to a Committee for study and debate, or to the whole Senate for a vote. These enemies of good legislation know that if the Rogers-Javits bill comes to a vote it will almost surely pass.

Apparently, Majority Leader Mike Mansfield must give his permission to remove the "hold." Therefore, let me urge all people among your readers who care about animals to write Senator Mike Mansfield, Senate Office Building, Washington, D.C., and strongly request him to use his influence in support of the Rogers-Javits bill for protection of laboratory animals (S. 2418) without delay.

Yours faithfully
STEPHANIE GODWIN

Girl Scouts at Legislature Meeting

By ALBERT J. CAWEIN

A delightful distraction from the hard core problems of running the county was the appearance of Linda Polowski and members of her Girl Scout troop with Mrs. Ronald Hill, leader at the Thursday night session of the County Legislature.

The charming teenager speaking for her troop advised the legislators of the great need for a county-operated indoor ice skating rink and asked for their support in promoting such a project.

Several other items were discussed by the Legislature in addition to action taken on the county bounty, Memorial Day closing, automated chicken farms and junk cars as reported in Friday's Freeman.

In another measure concerning the county college, the legislators by resolution offered by Chairman Peter J. Savago, accepted a sum of $58,391.69 from the trustees of the McDonald DeWitt Trust Fund for the cost of the Dr. Anthony Tocco residence and nine acres of land purchased as a permanent residence for the community college president. The purchase of the property was approved by the Legislature at a previous meeting.

ton. Nagy said the blasting is threatening to rupture a gas transmission line and declared the situation as extremely dangerous. Nagy said, "the blasting is knocking the foundations out from under us."

Legislator Raichle urged the residents of the area to individually write letters to the County Legislature about the matter in order that they may study some course of action.

A resolution supporting legislation in Albany that provides special aid for reorganization of school districts, filed by Legislator Orrie Riehl, D-Kingston, was referred to the Legislative and Rules Committee.

The bill proposes that a bonus increase to merging districts of 10 per cent in operating aid and 25 per cent in construction aid, now available to districts merged since 1962 be extended to those consolidated between 1957 and 1962.

Liddy Issues Ham Fish a Challenge

Gordon Liddy, a Republican candidate for Congress, today challenged his opponent, Hamilton Fish, Millbrook, to debate the issues.

Liddy said, "I'm calling upon Ham to state his positions and debate the issues. The voters will not be able to make a determination on Primary Day unless Ham makes his views known."

"I propose," Liddy continued, "that a frank discussion of the issues could be arranged through a series of debates. I feel a number of civic organizations, fraternal groups or public spirited citizens would be only too happy to sponsor such a forum."

Liddy noted that the debates should be arranged in all five counties. Dutchess, Ulster, Greene, Columbia and Schoharie Counties comprise the 28th Congressional district.

Liddy, a former supervisor with the FBI and assistant district attorney for Dutchess County, chided Fish for what he termed "hiding in the shadow of the courthouse."

Liddy explained, "By that I mean Ham has side-stepped discussion of the issues. He has refused to list his qualifications, his views or his programs. Ham apparently feels he must remain silent in order to win, but the people will never stand for it."

"I predict," Liddy concluded, "that Ham will continue to remain silent."

Sportsmen Back Bounty, Score Protagonist's Report

The Federated Sportsmen's Clubs of Ulster County at a meeting Thursday night at Phoenixia Rod and Gun Club voted unanimously to support continuation of the county bounty on foxes and bobcats.

William J. Meyers, federation president took a dim view of lobbying for repeal of the bounty law by Mrs. Marguerite Isaacs and her recent press release attacking figures presented in a Kingston Freeman article on the subject.

Meyers released the following statement:

Issue Statement
Federated Sportsmen's Clubs of Ulster County embracing 40 fish and game clubs in the county took sharp issue today with an article in Wednesday night's Kingston Daily Freeman released by the protagonist seeking to abandon the county bounty on foxes and bobcats.

The press release by Marguerite Isaacs, R.R.A.L. Group chairman was a deliberate attempt at character assassination to assail the integrity of Al Cawein, county editor of the Freeman who wrote a factual report giving reasons why the county bounty system should be continued. His name was mentioned 13 times in the article giving evidence that this was a personal attack.

The figures stated in Al Cawein's article were substantiated in a report from the county auditor's office to Ernest Gardner, legislator of the 11th District and chairman of the Propagation of Game Committee.

The 1967 take of red fox was 139 for a payment of $278; gray fox 71 for $213, and bobcat 10 at $5 each totaling $30. The total bounty paid for 1967 is $541 and not $741 as stated in the Isaacs release. She states she got the figures from County Auditor Nick Gentile. Actually the county auditor's name is Joseph Gentile.

Backs Freeman
Office administrative expenses mentioned in the Isaacs release are not mentioned in Al Cawein's article so her correction of this item is erroneous. A $341 cost to control predators can hardly be called a "county tax waste."

The Isaacs article says game wardens and forest rangers agree to the scarcity of foxes and bobcats. This could be true, but a report of 210 foxes taken in the county during 1967 hardly indicates there is a scarcity of these predators. What she failed to mention was that game wardens in areas where the fox population runs rampant support the use of the bounty system for control.

The statement that most of the bounty goes to trappers is totally incorrect and does not correspond with bounty applications filed in the various townships in the county. Occasionally one man files an application for bounty covering three or four foxes but this happens only when a farmer or hunter cleans out a den. A check of applications show that individual farmers and hunters, many of them boys names, are listed as the claimers of the bounty. None of the applications in the several townships checked indicate that there is any organized hunt for foxes and that one man is collecting the majority of the bounty money.

It is only natural that the bounty system is in force in counties where the fox population is abundant.

The fact that fertility inhibitor for foxes is being tested, according to the Isaacs article further proves that the laboratory at Cornell is concerned with the rapid reproduction of the species.

Rabies Theory
It is illogical to believe that dogs and cats are the cause of rabies when rabies in domestic animals can be controlled by immunizations. It is impossible to immunize the fox population. The National Wildlife Federation may or may not be for the bounty system for controlling foxes. However, they do not represent the thinking of the thousands of sportsmen's organization in the country as the Isaacs article infers.

It would seem rather foolish for the county to allocate $1,000 in its enabling fund for the propagation of game and then permit predators to kill the very same game that it pays to distribute, the statement concluded.

The County Legislature Thursday night defeated a proposal to eliminate the county bounty by a vote of 26 to 5 with one abstention.

Sportsmen Back Bounty, Score Protagonist's Report

The Federated Sportsmen's Clubs of Ulster County at a meeting Thursday night at Phoenicia Rod and Gun Club voted unanimously to support continuation of the county bounty on foxes and bobcats.

William J. Meyers, federation president took a dim view of lobbying for repeal of the bounty law by Mrs. Marguerite Isaacs and her recent press release attacking figures presented in a Kingston Freeman article on the subject.

Meyers released the following statement:

Issue Statement

Federated Sportsmen's Clubs of Ulster County embracing 40 fish and game clubs in the county took sharp issue today with an article in Wednesday night's Kingston Daily Freeman released by the protagonist seeking to abandon the county bounty on foxes and bobcats.

The press release by Marguerite Isaacs, RRAL Group chairman was a deliberate attempt at character assassination to assail the integrity of Al Cawein, county editor of the Freeman who wrote a factual report giving reasons why the county bounty system should be continued. His name was mentioned 13 times in the article giving evidence that this was a personal attack.

The figures stated in Al Cawein's article were substantiated in a report from the county auditor's office to Ernest Gardner, legislator of the 11th District and chairman of the Propagation of Game Committee.

The 1967 take of red fox was 139 for a payment of $278; gray fox 71 for $213, and bobcat 10 at $5 each totaling $50. The total bounty paid for 1967 is $541 and not $741 as stated in the Isaacs release. She states she got the figures from County Auditor Nick Gentile. Actually the county auditor's name is Joseph Gentile.

Backs Freeman

Office administrative expenses mentioned in the Isaacs release are not mentioned in Al Cawein's article so her correction of this item is erroneous. A $541 cost to control predators can hardly be called a "county tax waste."

The Isaacs article says game wardens and forest rangers agree to the scarcity of foxes and bobcats. This could be true of bobcats, but a report of 210 foxes taken in the county during 1967 hardly indicates there is a scarcity of these predators. What she failed to mention was that game wardens in areas where the fox population runs rampant support the use of the bounty system for control.

The statement that most of the bounty goes to trappers is totally incorrect and does not correspond with bounty applications filed in the various townships in the county. Occasionally one man files an application for bounty covering three or four foxes but this happens only when a farmer or hunter cleans out a den. A check of applications show that individual farmers and hunters, many of them boys names, are listed as the claimers of the bounty.

None of the applications in the several townships checked indicate that there is any organized hunt for foxes and that one man is collecting the majority of the bounty money.

It is only natural that the bounty system is in force in counties where the fox population is abundant.

The fact that fertility inhibitor for foxes is being tested, according to the Isaacs article further proves that the laboratory at Cornell is concerned with the rapid reproduction of the species.

Rabies Theory

It is illogical to believe that dogs and cats are the cause of rabies when rabies in domestic animals can be controlled by immunizations. It is impossible to immunize the fox population.

The National Wildlife Federation may or may not be for the bounty system for controlling foxes. However, they do not represent the thinking of the thousands of sportsmen's organization in the country as the Isaacs article infers.

It would seem rather foolish for the county to allocate $1,000 in its enabling fund for the propagation of game and then permit predators to kill the very same game that it pays to distribute, the statement concluded.

The County Legislature Thursday night defeated a proposal to eliminate the county bounty by a vote of 26 to 5 with one abstention.

The Teen Scene

Movie Music Moves

By LEI

Hang in there, bunnies, we'll hit our stride before too long. This is a new gig, and we're trying to fit into a new scene, but last week was too straight. "Too straight" describes the music that has been coming out of the movie scene for generations, too. Generally "Hollywood music" (though not all of it came out of Hollywood) fell into two general bags—theme music from non-musical pictures ("Theme from a Summer Place," "Moon River," "The Shadow of Her Smile")—and the scores of musical movies ("Getting to Know Her," "Tammy"). Related to the latter, but in a different mood, were songs from vehicles filmed for the teen set, and starring teen idols ("Jailhouse Rock," "Peppermint Twist").

Generally, movie themes appealed to the adult market only, unless a singer popular with some of the young adapted the song to the pop market, such as "Moon River" by Andy Williams and "Theme from a Summer Place" by several popular groups. When these became popular it was in spite of their aura of "squareness."

Scores Score

Scores from musical movies were a little better, probably because these songs were the product of clever Broadway writers, and usually had lively lyrics. However, once again, the versions of the songs on the sound track were rarely popular with the young. Success depended on a song's being re-done by a popular singer.

Exceptions, were, of course, those flicks already starring popular singers, filmed for the teen market. Unfortunately, Elvis Presley, Frankie Avalon, and Annette could never be accused of Oscar-quality acting, and some might say they could never even be accused of singing. Certainly, they never claimed to be able to compose music. Movie sound tracks, whether performed by Mancini, Sammy Davis Jr., or Fabian, were still the product of the adult population, with practically no exceptions.

With the Sixties came the Beatles, and "A Hard Day's Night." The stars composed their own music, even though it had to be scored by others for the orchestra pieces. (This movie, notably, while intended for the teen audience, did not nauseate the mature viewers—probably a first.) On three continents, a new generation was coming onto the flick scene—a generation of talented young who could write music as well as sing. For a time, their talents were limited to pictures in which they appeared. But there was a new breed of directors, too, and not all of them wanted Henry Mancini to back their love scenes.

Revolution

The revolution was swift, but not particularly publicized. A few innovators utilized rock music, rapidly followed by everyone who wanted to get onto the bandwagon, not always with complete success. In small letters in the ads for "The Family Way" starring Hayley Mills and Hywel Bennett was "music by Paul McCartney." The Lovin' Spoonful composed the track for a comedy with even less publicity. The Yardbirds played "behind the scenes" in "Blow Up" with hardly a note, and Ray Charles did a bit back of "Heat of the Night" which received its only publicity in unfavorable criticism.

"Georgy Girl," "The Trip," and "Privilege" all had swinging soundtracks, and "To Sir, with Love" incorporated Lulu and a chart-topping song in a flick only loosely musical. Simon and Garfunkle contributed the music for "The Graduate" with hardly a credit, but one number, "Scarborough Fair" is going for a gold record.

And people who had never heard of Flatt and Scruggs, the Nashville bluegrass stylists, liked what they heard during chase scenes in "Bonnie and Clyde," went out, and purchased enough copies of "Foggy Mountain Breakdown" to rearrange C&W charts for weeks. Today, the actors aren't all that's moving at the movies. The music moves too, and it's a welcome change. Assuming, of course, that your name isn't Mr. Mancini.

Next was the photo plating department where G. Knute Belchert explained how a photograph is prepared for newspaper use.

The composing room was one of the highlights of the tour as the students were shown how type is set and laid out. Finally, the press room where 21,000 copies of The Freeman are rolled six days a week. Students on the tour included May Grett, Dawn Kelder, Linda Casey, Mary Yost, Kathy Smith, James Davis, Jeffrey Mackey, Richard LaBarbera, Mark Grazer, Milton Klitz, Carl Metzger, Mark Bailey and Bert Winnie.

STUDENT ENTERTAINMENT AT PALTZ COFFEEHOUSE

Coffeehouse Concept Provides Paltz Spot

By JEAN F. DOLAN

The coffeehouse concept of entertainment for the young has been around for the past few years gaining favor nationwide.

Versions have crept into Ulster County and now fledgling efforts are being made in Kingston. Down in New Paltz, a groovy college crowd has been digging the weekend scene at the Cave In for the past year even though the spot stemmed from a church project which sounds pretty square.

Young Leaders

Success of the coffeehouse is directly traceable to a young leadership which reads the current concerns and doesn't clutter the fun with too much adult fantasy.

The Cave In started as a joint project of a concerned church and a young college crowd, grew into an ecumenical adventure as well as a fun place to be.

Located in the former coach-house of the Argonian Sorority residence, the coffeehouse opened January, 1967, under the auspices of the Methodist Campus Ministry. Volunteers converted the building which had been used by the church as a sexton's residence into night-spot through long hours of hard work and ingenuity. It became a jointly financed ecumenical center beginning with the fall semester.

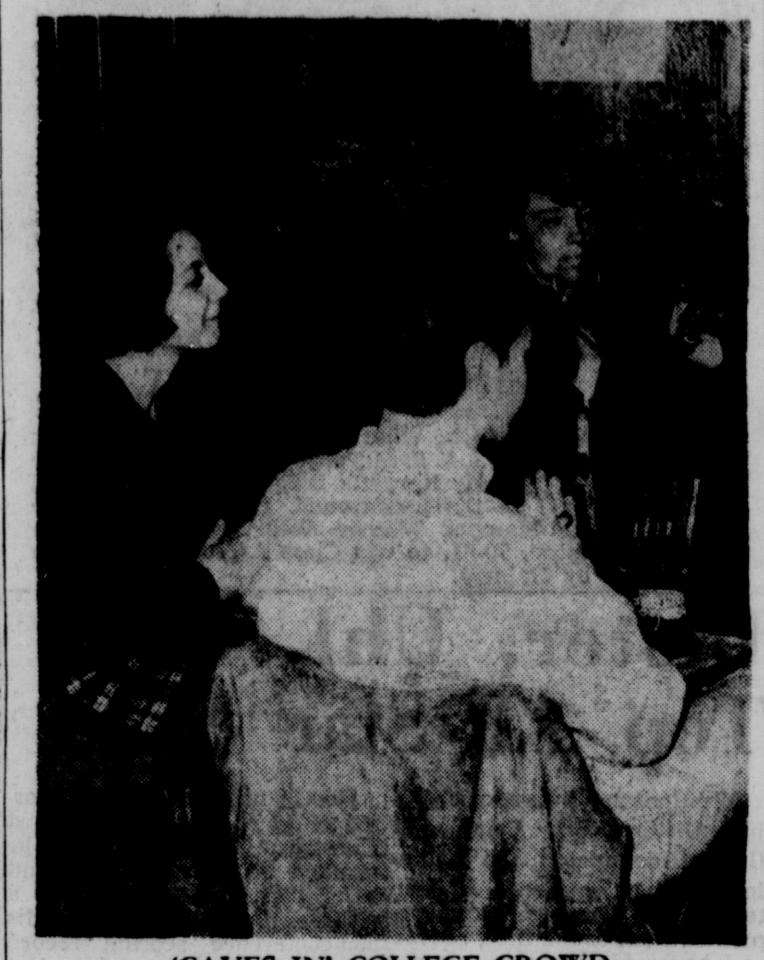

The Rev. John VanNess, full-time college chaplain, and his wife are the spark plugs in the successful operation of the Cave In assisted by Mr. and Mrs. Paul Hickox, a college couple in-residence who serve as caretakers and supervisors.

Testifying to the popularity of the coffeehouse with college students, the original Saturday night programs have been expanded to accommodate Friday night packed houses too.

Students themselves supply the entertainment which includes folk singing, poetry readings and good discussion sessions on vital issues. Foreign students have presented native song and dance in exciting departure from the usual fare.

Refreshments such as coffee, hot chocolate and snacks are offered at low price and there are no admission or membership fees. Approximately 40 to 50 college students jam the Cave In on Friday and Saturday nights and it is strictly a college crowd.

Efforts to provide a coffeehouse atmosphere for Kingston young people have so far met with hesitant success. Some were Kingston High School citizens and team photographs, with

'CAVES IN' COLLEGE CROWD

It's Worry Season For College Bound

It's nail-biting time for college bound high school juniors and seniors. And nervous anticipation reached its high point this past week.

College boards results were due yesterday, marking the end of torture time, at least for some. College boards were administered in a day long grueling session earlier this month to test knowledge and potential of college-minded juniors. Now with the results in some will be pleased and some will have to vow to improve their standing on the senior version of the tests.

Seniors have had college applications on file for many months now and are anxiously awaiting letters of acceptance or rejection. Rumor has it that the bulkiness of the envelope received from the college is an indication of its contents—fat ones are yeses and thin ones, oh woes, noes.

So its good luck to sweating juniors and seniors. Sophomores, enjoy yourselves while you may.

Career Offerings

Kingston High

Approximately 75 business students from secretarial and clerical classes at Kingston High School will attend a series of workshops at the Kingston IBM plant March 18 through 22.

The workshops have been organized to give beginning student majoring in business an insight into the needs and procedures of business and industry.

Arrangements for the series are being supervised by Loryne B. Connick, business department head and Mrs. Elizabeth Milano, secretarial teacher and coordinator of the IBM work experience program.

John Coleman

John A. Coleman High School students interested in careers in nursing heard about a new course to be offered at Ulster County Community College in September.

Mrs. Florence Irwin, chairman of the nursing education department at the college, outlined the proposed course of study which will lead to an associate degree in applied science. Graduates will be eligible to take the New York State licensing examination for registered nurses.

The film, Idea with a Future, depicting a typical associate degree nursing program was shown in conjunction with the lecture.

Teen Quiz

Q—How did the financial district of New York City get the popular name of Wall Street?

A—This is because its six points represent the six days of creation. The star is formed by two equilateral triangles. Sometimes they are interwoven and sometimes one is imposed on the other with the points in the opposite direction.

Q—Who was known as the Paul Revere of the South?

A—Jack Jouett, who in 1781, rode 40 miles in the night to warn Thomas Jefferson then governor of Virginia, of the impending British attack on Richmond.

Mixed Emotions On Mini-Modes

What do young people think about the latest styles and mini-skirts in particular?

In a poll of 25 juniors at Kingston High School, wide diversity of opinion was revealed. The students were asked what you think of the feminine style in mini-skirts and were asked to comment briefly but anonymously.

The comments ranged from whole hearted acceptance—"Personally I think they're great. I think they are in to stay and soon they will be accepted by everyone."—through qualified acceptance—"I think the latest feminine styles are appropriate when worn in moderation and only on certain people."—to outright dislike—"I feel that the latest styles in mini-skirts are terribly disgusting."

With Reservations

Most comments fell into middle ground—acceptance with some reservations.

A girl said Most mini-skirts that are worn are very cute, but it depends on the girl's looks. She must have gorgeous legs and a good figure.

"I like the latest styles in mini-skirts for only certain females," one boy commented, adding "let the girls with good legs wear them and keep the girls with not so good legs out of them."

A surprising "double standard" developed in this middle ground as boys said they liked them on everyone "except my girl friend."

And the boys were not the only ones who qualified their acceptance of the fashion fad. Girls approved of the fashion for models but "on some girls they are pure disgusting."

Eight Opposed

Eight students out of the 25 polled vehemently disapproved. One boy said "I think they are immoral, or at least headed in that direction." A girl said she disagreed very much with the feminine attire of today, adding "I feel that if a girl is supposed to be feminine, why does she have to have a miniskirt to show it."

One outspoken miss minced no words. "I personally think that mini-skirts are disgusting."

It seems to me that girls who wear them wear them because they are the 'in' thing to wear, not because they look good in them or really want to wear them."

There are two comments from boys which stand alone and are self explanatory.

"I personally enjoy looking at girls so anything that makes them look sexier is okay with me."

"I wouldn't want my mother wearing one but I think my girl friend wears them very well."

entertainment in the form of juke box music and pool tables.

Initially the Huddle Club opened Friday and Saturday nights and Sunday afternoons. As a weekend attraction, it was a complete flop.

Revised to provide a noon-time haven for nearby high schoolers, the Huddle Club now enjoys a capacity crowd every day. Cokes and hamburgers are available and both the juke-box and pool tables get heavy play during the lunch hour.

Proposals for a weekend coffeehouse ambitiously offering name entertainment have been brought to the fore by Thomas Phillips, a Bard College student who with several others from the Annandale-on-Hudson campus hopes to gain the aid of church and community groups in the project have resulted in two meetings and a student poll.

Survey Results
The survey taken at Kingston High School and Ulster County Community College revealed that students were overwhelmingly in favor of the venture with 100 per cent of the college students and 91 per cent of the high schoolers quizzed voting yes.

It remains to be seen whether the coffeehouse for Kingston will become a reality and whether it would work as well as the New Paltz Cave In. If student approval is any indication, it appears it will.

Mixed Emotions On Mini-Modes

What do young people think about the latest styles and mini-skirts in particular?

In a poll of 25 juniors at Kingston High School, wide diversity of opinion was revealed. The students were asked What do you think of the feminine style in mini-skirts and were asked to comment briefly but anonymously.

The comments ranged from whole hearted acceptance—"Personally I think they're great. I think they are in to stay and soon they will be accepted by everyone."—through qualified acceptance—"I think the latest feminine styles are appropriate when worn in moderation and only on certain people"—to outright dislike—"I feel that the latest styles in mini-skirts are terribly disgusting."

With Reservations

Most comments fell into middle ground—acceptance with some reservations.

A girl said Most mini-skirts that are worn are very cute, but it depends on the girl's looks. She must have gorgeous legs and a good figure.

"I like the latest styles in mini-skirts for only certain females," one boy commented, adding "let the girls with good legs wear them and keep the girls with not so good legs out of them."

A surprising "double standard" developed in this middle ground as boys said they liked them on everyone "except my girl friend."

And the boys were not the only ones who qualified their acceptance of the fashion fad. Girls approved of the fashion for models but "on some girls they are pure disgusting."

Eight Opposed

Eight students out of the 25 polled vehemently disapproved. One boy said "I think they are immoral, or at least headed in that direction." A girl said she disagreed very much with the feminine attire of today, adding "I feel that if a girl is supposed to be feminine, why does she have to have a miniskirt to show it."

One outspoken miss minced no words, "I personally think that mini-skirts are disgusting."

It seems to me that girls who wear them wear them because they are the 'in' thing to wear, not because they look good in them or really want to wear them."

There are two comments from boys which stand alone and are self explanatory. "I personally enjoy looking at girls so anything that makes them look sexier is okay with me."

"I wouldn't want my mother wearing one but I think my girl friend wears them very well."

It's Worry Season For College Bound

It's nail-biting time for college bound high school juniors and seniors. And nervous anticipation reached its high point this past week.

College boards results were due yesterday, marking the end of torture time, at least for some. College boards were administered in a day long grueling session earlier this month to test knowledge and potential of college-minded juniors. 'Upset-of-Year:' NFA Stuns Kingston High, 70-61

By MIKE HELFNER
(Freeman Sports Staff)

Newburgh, losers to Kingston High's basketballers twice during the regular season, pulled off what must be considered the upset of the season last night, stunning the Maroon, 70-61. The win brought the Goldbacks the Section Nine Class A championship.

Kingston, trying for an unprecedented third straight Class A title, had history reverse itself.

Three seasons ago, Kingston lost a pair of contests to NFA in the DUSO League season. In the A finals, the Maroon came up with a surprise win to begin their now-ended two-year reign over Class A.

The Goldbacks, in duplicating the Kingston feat, used a sparkling first half. They took advantage of a "flat" Maroon unit, building up a large 31-18 halftime margin. NFA mentor, Mickey Burkoski, termed it his team's "finest effort."

The season came to a disappointing end for KHS. The loss closed out a campaign that trudged from November 1 until last night. Over the course of those 20 weeks, KHS compiled a fantastic 18-2 record (including 14 straight wins). "A record any team would be proud to possess," Coach Jack Gilligan said.

For the Maroon, it was one of two bad performances this year. "A poor performance, poorer than they showed against White Plains (the other loss)," a fan said.

Kingston, in Coach Gilligan's words, "Didn't play too well." "We executed well," were a little flat. Newburgh played inspired basketball, did a good job out there and deserved to win. Give them credit. As for us, I think we might have been a little tired after the long season," the coach said.

Kingston held the lead just once, taking a 1-0 margin early in the first quarter. That came on a foul shot by Bruce Gilligan, 1:13 into the game.

Bruce was shooting a two-foul shot. He sank the first, but the second, perhaps giving an indication of what was to come, rolled around the rim and out. Had it gone in, it wouldn't have counted, for the referee blew it dead—claiming Bruce was over the line when he shot.

NFA Seven Straight
Newburgh promptly went to work, reeling off seven straight before A. J. Murphy hit a lay-up—missing a chance for a three-point play as his foul shot rolled off the rim.

The score went to 11-6 midway in the period. NFA then ran off another eight straight, to make it 19-6 with just 15 seconds left. Ray Lindhorst's tally made it 19-8 at the end of the opening period.

NFA added three more quickly, dimming KHS' chances. When Lindhorst had to leave with a bruised knee, Kingston's hopes sagged even further in despair.

A pair of quick buckets by Bruce Gilligan cut the lead to nine and brought a rise in KHS' sagging fortunes. Staying one jump ahead, NFA held a 31-18 halftime lead.

Coach Gilligan opened the second half with 6-foot-6 Ted Wood, hoping to hypo Kingston's poor rebounding.

Newburgh dumped in five quick points to open the half. Out came Wood, in went Lindhorst (knee heavily taped) and Kingston shifted into the "Perimeter Zone" defense.

This didn't help either as NFA upped its margin to 20, 43-23, with five minutes remaining in the third.

KHS chipped away at that lead, bringing it down to 13, 47-32, with two minutes remaining. NFA fought back, leaving itself a 53-36 base heading into the final stanza.

The last period was 45 seconds old when Newburgh's 6-foot-7 freshman center, Jim Rogers, fouled out. Just 10 seconds later, Briggs went out on fouls and Kingston began rolling.

The score at that point read Newburgh 55, Kingston 36. In two minutes, KHS had it down to 55-44, running off eight in a row before Lindhorst went out on fouls. A minute earlier, fouls cost KHS the services of Murphy.

Kemp Takes Over
Kemp took over the show for NFA (10 points in the last quarter) as his bucket with 4:47 left ended KHS' streak. The margin now went back to 13.

The Kemp then singlehandedly put the Maroon out of it by tallying back-to-back buckets at the 4:12 and 4:01 marks. The two ducks sent the score to 63-47, a 16-point bulge.

Ken Gilligan finally got hot from outside, clicking on a series of jumpers from atop the key. This cut the lead to seven, 68-61 with just five seconds left. Kamp's bucket at the last tick gave NFA its winning margin.

It was a case of Kingston simply not being able to buy a basket—at the same time NFA not missing. KHS shot only 31% (22-68), way below its season percentage of 44. It was the lowest field goal total all year.

Newburgh wound up with only 39% made (25-64), par percentage-wise for the Goldbacks. The 58% first half was the difference for NFA.

Last night's inspired Goldbacks were the only team to really control the boards on the Maroon. KHS was out-rebounded narrowly a couple of times, but never by the huge 50-23 margin piled up by NFA.

NFA Zone Effective
Newburgh's collapsing two-three zone did an especially effective job, blocking off the inside. With the game play destroyed, the Maroon had to shoot from outside, something they were not geared to. Those outside shots were short, bounding off the rim into waiting NFA arms.

With the guards shooting, the Maroon had to give up something on defense. Moving in closer to take the shots, Kingston had to leave NFA's guards unprotected. The Goldbacks could—and did—fast break.

The fast break, the poor shooting, the impenetrable zone, plus the lack of rebounding all cost Kingston. It was the hidden factor, "flatness," that was the one item responsible for KHS' loss.

"I don't want to sound like I'm making excuses. It's been a long, hard season. A team is bound to have a bad ball game in a 20-game season. This was ours. But, the boys gave me their best. They came back from 20-down to seven near the end. They never gave up, even though each break went against them," coach Gilligan said.

Had a few shots gone the other way," the coach added, "it might have been a different ball game. Anyway, the boys made me proud of them by not giving up. Even in losing, they were a credit to Kingston."

Tuxedo Faces Liberty, Suffern-NFA Tonight

Newburgh's surprise victory over Kingston was only one of a trio of shocks last night. In the Class B title game, Suffern, given an even chance against the Willie Bradley-Less Monticello Panthers, won by a lopsided, (largest margin of the night) 52-42 score.

Over at Valley Central, Liberty captured the Class C three crown with a 73-68 upset over eight minutes. Liberty controlled the backboards after HF's 6-foot-6 Wydel (White Owl) Johnson went out on fouls.

Johnson hit the showers shortly after the fourth-quarter tap. The Indians then took over with their pair of 6-foot-5 insiders, Steve Osterhout side without the 6-foot-3 high school All-America, forced its shots all game. The 10-point difference came in the second and fourth quarters. Suffern outscored the Monties by five each time.

Liberty took Class C with a 20-12 final stanza. Down by three heading into the last minutes, Liberty controlled the backboards after HF's 6-foot-6 Wydel (White Owl) Johnson went out on fouls.

Johnson hit the showers shortly after the fourth-quarter tap. The Indians then took over with their pair of 6-foot-5 insiders, Steve Osterhout and Jim Dinnerstein, sweeping the boards. Once Liberty had control, they broke things open. For Tuxedo to win, it had to get a 13-point fourth quarter from Jay Mottola.

Tuxedo was up 29-25 at half, but fell behind, 47-41 at the end of three. Mottola's 13 enabled the Tornados to outscore the Hambletonians, 19-9.

It was the fourth straight year that Tuxedo won the D crown.

Tonight at New Paltz State, Liberty and Tuxedo go at it at 7 p. m. Immediately following that game, Newburgh and Suffern meet.

IT'S MINE—seems to be what Newburgh's Pete Karassik is saying to Kingston's A. J. Murphy, left, as he battles for a rebound. Helping Karassik is Sam Walker (11) and Bill Briggs (45) in the background. Lending a hand to Murphy is the Maroons' Werner Kollin (41). Newburgh stunned Kingston, 70-61, to win Class A crown. ALL TIED UP—are Newburgh's Jim Rogers, center and Bill Briggs, right. The pair of Goldbacks both have possession of the ball as Kingston's Bruce Gilligan (45) looks on. KHS got the ball as the two were called for travelling. (Freeman staff photo by Haines).

Scott Sneers at Challenge, Responds With Home Runs

You'd think pitchers would let a man George Scott's size have his way. But they keep challenging the big guy and so he keeps hitting baseballs out of sight.

Scott, Boston's huge first baseman, hammered his third home run of the spring Friday, lifting the Red Sox to a 3-1 exhibition victory over the Houston Astros.

It was Scott's ninth hit in 17 at bats and it traveled pretty far for a man who has dedicated himself to stroking the ball up the middle.

In other action Friday, Oakland whacked Washington 8-4, Detroit shaded Philadelphia 2-1. Pittsburgh tagged the New York Mets 8-1, and Cincinnati topped Atlanta 7-5.

Also, St. Louis nipped Minnesota 5-4, California defeated San Francisco 3-1, Cleveland dropped the Chicago Cubs 4-3, the New York Yankees beat the Chicago White Sox 4-2 and Baltimore topped Los Angeles 4-2.

Davidson edged Columbia 61-59 in overtime, Ohio State beat East Tennessee 79-72 and Kentucky routed Marquette 107-89 as the NCAA field was cut to eight survivors.

The results set up these pairings for tonight's quarter-finals at four regional sites:
At Raleigh, N.C.—Davidson, 24-4, vs. North Carolina, 26-3.
At Lexington, Ky.—Ohio State, 19-7, vs. Kentucky, 22-4.
At Wichita, Kan.—Houston, 30-0, vs. Texas Christian, 15-10.
At Albuquerque, N.M.—UCLA, 26-1, vs. Santa Clara, 22-3.

In other tourney play Friday, Kansas downed Temple 82-76 and Villanova whacked Wyoming 77-68 in first-round games of the National Invitation Tournament in New York.

Kentucky Wesleyan defeated Indiana State 63-52 in the championship final of the NCAA College Division tourney at Evansville, Ind. Central State of Ohio whipped Westminster, Pa. 72-51 and Fairmont, W. Va., edged Oshkosh, Wis. State 6-4 in the semifinals of the NAIA at Kansas City.

"We'll need five Lew Alcindors to beat Houston," said Johnny Swaim, Texas Christian coach, after TCU's upset over Kansas State. The Horned Frogs wiped out a 13-point deficit and went ahead for good on Mickey McCarty's layup with 90 seconds left.

Upstarts Pull Off Host of Surprises

By TED MEIER

A couple of upstarts, Texas Christian and Santa Clara, startled college basketball circles Friday night.

The Horned Frogs of TCU upset Kansas State 77-72 and the Broncos bowled over the New Mexico Lobos, 86-73 in second-round play in the NCAA tournament.

Their surprising triumphs overshadowed Houston's 91-75 rout of Louisville, UCLA's 58-49 conquest of New Mexico State and North Carolina's 91-72 defeat of previously unbeaten St. Bonaventure.

Davidson edged Columbia 61-59 in overtime, Ohio State beat East Tennessee 79-72 and Kentucky routed Marquette 107-89 as the NCAA field was cut to eight survivors.

The results set up these pairings for tonight's quarter-finals at four regional sites:
At Raleigh, N.C.—Davidson, 24-4, vs. North Carolina, 26-3.
At Lexington, Ky.—Ohio State, 19-7, vs. Kentucky, 22-4.
At Wichita, Kan.—Houston, 30-0, vs. Texas Christian, 15-10.
At Albuquerque, N.M.—UCLA, 26-1, vs. Santa Clara, 22-3.

In other tourney play Friday, Kansas downed Temple 82-76 and Villanova whacked Wyoming 77-68 in first-round games of the National Invitation Tournament in New York.

Kentucky Wesleyan defeated Indiana State 63-52 in the championship final of the NCAA College Division tourney at Evansville, Ind. Central State of Ohio whipped Westminster, Pa. 72-51 and Fairmont, W. Va., edged Oshkosh, Wis. State 6-4 in the semifinals of the NAIA at Kansas City.

"We'll need five Lew Alcindors to beat Houston," said Johnny Swaim, Texas Christian coach, after TCU's upset over Kansas State. The Horned Frogs wiped out a 13-point deficit and went ahead for good on Mickey McCarty's layup with 90 seconds left.

Swaim referred to UCLA's towering 7-foot-1 Alcindor who paced the Bruins over New Mexico State with 28 points. He obviously was thinking of a way to stop Elvin Hayes, the Big E of Houston's unbeaten and top-ranked Cougars.

The 6-9 Hayes, voted Player of the Year in The Associated Press poll, turned in one of his greatest games as the Cougars thumped Louisville for their 31st in a row, 30-0 this season.

Hayes pumped in 35 points and had the better of his duel with fellow All-American Westley Unseld of Louisville. The Big E got his points on 16 field goals and three fouls. Unseld finished with 23 points. Hayes grabbed 24 rebounds to Unseld's 22.

A fantastic 25-3 spurt in the first half that turned a 12-8 deficit into a 33-15 Houston advantage put an end to Louisville's 12-game winning streak. Don Chaney's many steals tore us apart," as Louisville coach John Dromo put it.

Santa Clara, with a more respectable record than TCU but unranked nationally, like the Horned Frogs, opened a 20-point lead over New Mexico. The Lobos, though playing on their home court, never caught up. Bud Ogden, with 22 points, led Santa Clara, which hit on 11 of its first 14 shots.

Larry Miller's 27 points paced North Carolina over St. Bonaventure. The Bonies had won 25 in a row, 23 this season. Davidson beat Columbia on Wayne Huckle's two foul shots that put the Wildcats ahead for good with two minutes left in overtime.

Columbia had a chance to win in the last two seconds of regulation time with the score tied 53-53, but Bruce Metz missed a free throw.

Dan Issel's 36 points sparked Kentucky over Marquette. Steve Howell got 22 and led Ohio State over East Tennessee.

'Upset-of-Year:' NFA Stuns Kingston High, 70-61

(Freeman Sports Staff)

Newburgh, losers to Kingston High's basketballers twice during the regular season, pulled off what must be considered the upset of the season last night, stunning the Maroon, 70-61. The win brought the Goldbacks the Section Nine Class A championship.

Kingston, trying for an unprecedented third straight Class A title, had history reverse itself.

Three seasons ago, Kingston lost a pair of contests to NFA in the DUSO League season. In the A finals, the Maroon came up with a surprise win to begin their now-ended two-year reign over Class A.

The Goldbacks, in duplicating the Kingston feat, used a sparkling first half. They took advantage of a "fat" Maroon unit, building up a large 31-18 halftime margin. NFA mentor, Mickey Burkoski, termed it his team's "finest effort."

The season came to a disappointing end for KHS. The loss closed out a campaign that trudged from November 1 until last night. Over the course of those 20 weeks, KHS compiled a fantastic 18-2 record (including 14 straight wins). "A record any team would be proud to possess," Coach Jack Gilligan said.

For the Maroon, it was one of two bad performances this year. "A poor performance, poorer than they showed against White Plains (the other loss," a fan said.)

Kingston, in Coach Gilligan's words, "Didn't play too well." "We were a little flat. Newburgh played inspired basketball, did a good job out there and deserved to win. Give them credit. As for us, I think we might have been a little tired after the long season," the coach said.

Kingston held the lead just once, taking a 1-0 margin early in the first quarter. That came on a foul shot by Bruce Gilligan, 1:13 into the game.

Bruce was shooting a two-foul shot. He sank the first, but the second, perhaps giving an indication of what was to come, rolled around the rim and out. Had it gone in, it wouldn't have counted, for the referee blew it dead—claiming Bruce was over the line when he shot.

NFA Seven Straight
Newburgh promptly went to work, reeling off seven straight before A. J. Murphy hit a lay-up—missing a chance for a three-point play as his foul shot rolled off the rim.

The score went to 11-6 midway in the period. NFA then ran off another eight straight, to make it 19-6 with just 15 seconds left. Ray Lindhorst's tally made it 19-8 at the end of the opening period.

NFA added three more quick-dimming KHS' chances. When Lindhorst had to leave with a bruised knee, Kingston's hopes sagged even further in despair.

A pair of quick buckets by Bruce Gilligan cut the lead to nine and brought a rise in KHS' sagging fortunes. Staying one jump ahead, NFA held a 31-18 halftime lead.

Coach Gilligan opened the second half with 6-foot-6 Ted Wood, hoping to hypo Kingston's poor rebounding.

Newburgh dumped in five quick points to open the half. Out came Wood, in went Lindhorst (knee heavily taped) and Kingston shifted into the "Perimeter Zone" defense.

This didn't help either as NFA upped its margin to 20, 43-23,

with five minutes remaining in the third.

KHS chipped away at that lead, bringing it down to 13, 47-32, with two minutes remaining. NFA fought back, leaving itself a 53-36 base heading into the final stanza.

The last period was 45 seconds old when Newburgh's 6-foot-7 freshman center, Jim Rogers, fouled out. Just 10 seconds later, Briggs went out on fouls and Kingston began rolling.

The score at that point read Newburgh 55, Kingston 36. In two minutes, KHS had it down to 55-44, running off eight in a row before Lindhorst went out on fouls. A minute earlier, fouls cost KHS the services of Murphy.

Kemp Takes Over
Kemp took over the show for NFA (10 points in the last quarter) as his bucket with 4:47 left ended KHS' streak. The margin now went back to 13.

Kemp then singlehandedly put the Maroon out of it by tallying back-to-back buckets at the 4:12 and 4:01 marks. The two duc-rats sent the score to 63-47, a 16-point bulge.

Ken Gilligan finally got hot from outside, clicking on a series of jumpers from atop the key. This cut the lead to seven, 68-61 with just five seconds left. Kamp's bucket at the last tick gave NFA its winning margin.

It was a case of Kingston simply not being able to buy a basket—at the same time NFA not missing. KHS shot only 31% (22-68), way below its season percentage of 44. It was the lowest field goal total all year.

Newburgh wound up with only 39% made (25-64), par percentage-wise for the Goldbacks. The 58% first half was the difference for NFA.

Last night's inspired Goldbacks were the only team to really control the boards on the Maroon. KHS was out-rebounded narrowly a couple of times, but never by the huge 50-23 margin piled up by NFA.

NFA Zone Effective
Newburgh's collapsing two-three zone did an especially effective job, blocking off the inside. With the game play destroyed, the Maroon had to shoot from outside, something they were not geared to. Those outside shots were short, bounding off the rim into waiting NFA arms.

With the guards shooting, the Maroon had to give up something on defense. Moving in closer to take the shots, Kingston had to leave NFA's guards unprotected. The Goldbacks could—and did—fast break.

The fast break, the poor shooting, the impenetrable zone, plus the lack of rebounding all cost Kingston. It was the hidden

KHS Stats
Substitute Jerry Corrado came off the bench and hit three of four field goals and three fouls for a total of nine. His 75 per cent from the field led the entire KHS squad. Other stats show: A. J. factor, "flatness," that was the one item responsible for KHS' loss.

"I don't want to sound like I'm making excuses. It's been a long, hard season. A team is bound to have a bad ball game in a 20-game season. This was ours. But, the boys gave me their best. They came back from 20-down to seven near the end. They never gave up, even though each break went against them," coach Gilligan said.

"Had a few shots gone the other way," the coach added, "It might have been a different ball game. Anyway, the boys made me proud of them by not giving up. Even in losing, they were a credit to Kingston."

Tuxedo Faces Liberty, Suffern-NFA Tonight

Newburgh's surprise victory over Kingston was only one of a trio of shockers last night. In the Class B title game, Suffern, given an even chance against the Willie Bradley-Less Monticello Panthers, won by a lopsided, largest margin of the night 52-42 score.

Over at Valley Central, Liberty captured the Class C crown with a 73-68 upset over Highland Falls. Class D went to Tuxedo in a struggle over Chester, 60-56.

Bradley (20.0 average) watched the game from the bench. Suspended in disciplinary action, Bradley could only lend moral support.

Ulster, Uhl, Grab Top All-Star Spots

Mid-Hudson Conference champion Ulster County Community College dominated the balloting for the Conference All-Star team. The Senators placed two men on each of the first, second and honorable mention squads. The Senators compiled a 10-0 conference mark.

Joe Uhl led the balloting, nosing out Ed Strong of Sullivan by a small margin. Uhl established a new conference one-game scoring record of 46 points when he paced Ulster to a 135-92 romp over Sullivan County Community College. He also led the conference season scoring with 328 points in 10 games for a 32.8 average.

Strong was runnerup in the scoring department with 226 points in 10 games for a 22.6 scoring pace.

Frank Roselli of Ulster was also named to the first quintet, along with Charlie Chambers and Mike Cusato of Orange County Community College.

Roselli notched his best scoring effort of the season against Kingsboro Community, when he chalked up 39 points. He hit 135 tallies in 10 games for a conference mark of 13.5. His non-conference scoring record was 307 in 27 games for an 11.4 average.

The two second team berths went to Rod Chando and Leon Hanna. Second and third point producers for the Senators. Also named were Richie Lawrence of Dutchess, Jim Kiernan of Sullivan and Ron Braia of Westchester.

The Senators' two teammates on the honorable mention list were Bill Zilliox and Stan Henderson. Also named were John Thomas of Rockland, Ed Sweeney of Dutchess and Jerry Allen of Sullivan. Ulster's Senators, coached by Mike Perry, placed five starters among the top 15 scorers in the conference. Uhl led starters Rod Chando, Roselli, Zilliox and Hanna.

Scott Sneers at Challenge, Responds With Home Runs

You'd think pitchers would let a man George Scott's size have his way. But they keep challenging the big guy and so he keeps hitting baseballs out of sight.

Scott, Boston's huge first baseman, hammered his third home run of the spring Friday, lifting the Red Sox to a 3-1 exhibition victory over the Houston Astros.

It was Scott's ninth hit in 17 at bats and it traveled pretty far for a man who has dedicated himself to stroking the ball up the middle.

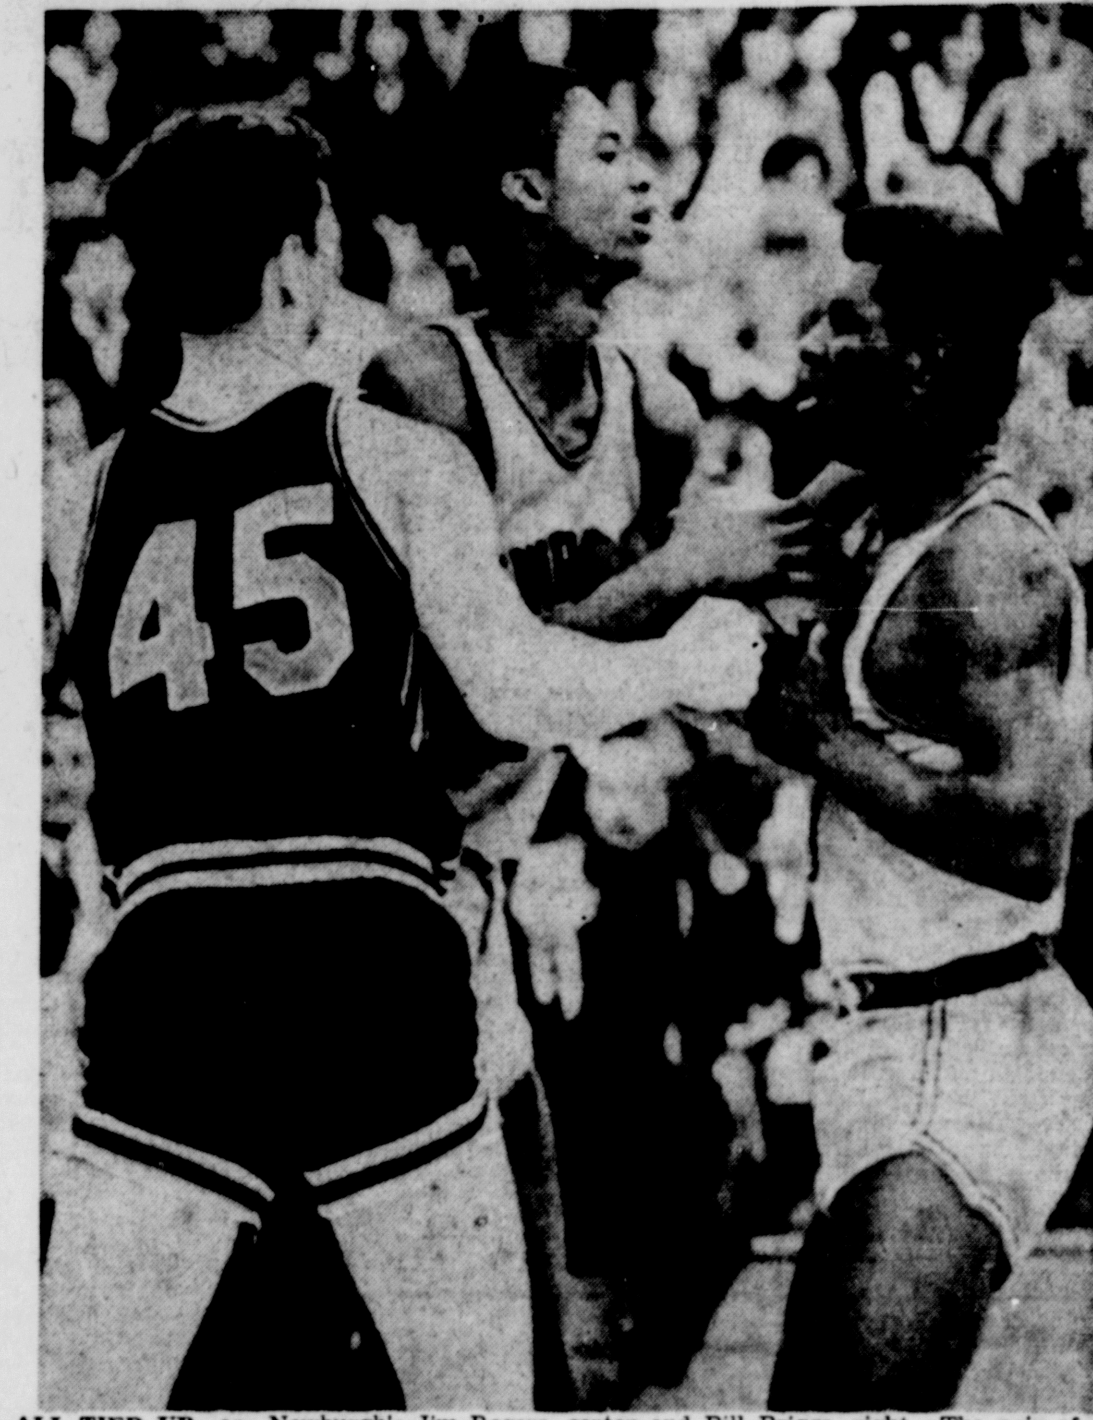

In other action Friday, Oakland whacked Washington 8-4. Detroit shaded Philadelphia 2-1. Pittsburgh tagged the New York Mets 8-1, and Cincinnati topped Atlanta 7-5.

Also, St. Louis nipped Minnesota 5-4. California defeated San Francisco 3-1. Cleveland dropped the Chicago Cubs 4-3. The New York Yankees beat the Chicago White Sox 4-2 and Baltimore topped Los Angeles 4-2.

The Cadets will depart Wednesday for the University of Miami campus where, over the span of the following four days, they will square off against Michigan State, Ohio State, Western Michigan and Miami.

Hopefully, the results from that proving ground will go a long way toward shaping the outlook for the regular season which begins April 2.

Army lost only three players by graduation—but three big ones—shortstop Kenny Smith, who batted .348 and shattered the Academy record for career home runs; centerfielder John Boretti, an All-Eastern League choice and leftfielder Bob Cenci, who had a career mark of just under .300. All three lettered three times.

Since Army hit only .250 as a team last spring (and Smith, Boretti and Cenci had a composite .288) it's clear that the Cadets must find batting power somewhere else.

"We haven't had a chance to get outdoors yet and have been limited in our batting drills in the field house," Coach Tipton explains. "I just hope we get a break from the weather while in Florida, for we definitely need work at the plate," he adds.

Three of the eight returning lettermen from last year's 10-8 squad are pitchers and it is here that the real strength of the '68 edition may lie.

Top moundman is junior southpaw Roger Vandenberg, who topped the 1967 pitchers with a 5-1 record and 2.58 ERA in 60 innings. Scott Church, another junior, compiled a 2-2 record, including a one-hit shut-out win over Pennsylvania in his varsity debut. Senior Dick Powell, a relief specialist, returns to bolster the bullpen.

Coach Tipton will look at three other pitchers in Florida — Larry Van Horn, a senior who may reach full potential; newcomer Eric Pedersen and junior Jack Gifford, spot starter two years ago who may be tried as a reliever.

Senior Dick Scaglione, despite a .184 average last year, seems to have the backstop job nailed down. Coach Tipton thinks Scaglione, a superb receiver, may improve on that mark.

Junior Reggie Pettitt, who didn't play an inning his rookie season, is pushing Scaglione for the job.

Wilson and Rolison Oppose Gun Controls

Assemblyman Kenneth L. Wilson and State Senator Jay P. Rolison will vote against any bills designed to impose stringent curbs on guns and rifles.

This is the pledge they gave members of the Federated Sportsmen's Clubs of Ulster County before an unusually large attendance at the Phoenix Fish and Game Club.

After explaining the impact of many gun control bills now pending before the Legislature, Assemblyman Wilson urged support of the Terry Bill, which he described as the best of all.

The assemblyman revealed that a recent survey of a cross section of Ulster County residents indicated 60 per cent were opposed to gun or rifle registration in any form.

Although he did not disclose details of Governor Rockefeller's proposed bill, Wilson indicated the only measure he and Senator Rolison would support was the Terry Bill which guarantees the right of the individual to own and bear arms as stipulated in the American Constitution.

"We, the sportsmen, must educate the general public regarding the disadvantages of gun registration and conduct a thorough campaign against it," said Wilson. "A gun law will not prevent crime and criminals will continue to purchase guns. Today, 35 states have written into their constitutions a law similar to the Terry Bill.

Clubs desiring bumper stickers are urged to contact William Meyer, Federation president. To date more than 2,000 have been distributed.

Semiz Leader In Buffalo PBA

BUFFALO, N.Y. (AP) — Teesta Semiz of River Edge, N.J., defeated Nelson Burton Jr. of St. Louis, 246-217, in the position-round game Friday night to earn the No. 1 ranking for today's finals of the Professional Bowlers Association's $45,000 Greater Buffalo Open.

Semiz, who has never won a PBA title, won the decisive game after a nip-and-tuck battle with Burton, the defending champion, in action earlier Friday night.

Meanwhile, Bob Strampe of Detroit finished third at the end of match play, although losing to fourth-place Term Davis of Chicago, 211-203 in the final game.

Young Bobby McMillin of College Point, N.Y., gained the fifth spot for the nationally televised finals by upending Tommy Tuttle of King, N.C. 218-200.

Semiz averaged 229 for his five winning games Friday afternoon and won six more at night to edge out Burton, who had six victories in the afternoon but was four and four in the evening play.

The one-game elimination finals for the $6,000 winner's check begins with McMillin meeting Davis. The winner of that game challenges Strampe, with the victor going against Burton for the chance to meet Semiz.

Dear Abby

Cult Is Going Too Far

By ABIGAIL VAN BUREN

DEAR ABBY: My wife has always been the religious type but she's never stayed with one religion. We have been married for 16 years, and she's been just about everything you can name.

Now she's joined a new church on the edge of town. Some man picks her up at 6 o'clock Sunday morning and she doesn't get home until noon on Monday. I asked her what kind of church lasted all day and all night and she tells me they pray all day, then they go to the Deacon's house for "bodily nourishment" and special prayers.

After that they all go outside and commune with nature and meditate, and pray some more. Then they go somewhere for "communion and berry juice"

(they don't drink tea or coffee), then someone drives her home. I went along with this for four Sundays, but now she has started to go on THURSDAYS, too. What do you think?

SUSPICIOUS DEAR ABBY: You could easily solve the mystery by offering to go with her.

DEAR ABBY: You said in your column that engaged couples usually select the engagement ring TOGETHER. Well, I beg to differ with you. My husband and I have been married for 22 years, and HE selected my engagement ring himself.

I am of the opinion that if a young man doesn't know a young lady's likes and dislikes well enough to select a ring for her, he doesn't have any business marrying her.

An engagement ring is a gift, and it's none of the lady's business how much the man paid for it.

B. J. D.

DEAR B. J. D.: Things have changed a lot in 22 years. If you ask a jeweler who sells engagement and wedding rings, I'll wager he will tell you that he sells more rings to couples than to men. And it would not surprise me one bit to learn that many a woman will shop alone first, and later bring the man in—to buy.

DEAR ABBY: I have been keeping steady company with a good-looking widow for a year now. She is 34 and has four kids. I am 39 and have never been married.

The problem is her kids. About an hour is all I can take, then the kids start getting on my nerves. I never met a woman I like as much as this one, Abby, but those kids are too much! We could send them to camp during the summer, but I don't think I could stand them the rest of the year. This woman says she loves me, and she's really too good to let go. So what should I do? She says she is not going to wait around much longer.

IN DOUBT DEAR IN: You've got a package deal here. If you "can't stand" her kids, better find yourself a woman with no children, or grown children, or one who's "unbearable."

CONFIDENTIAL TO DOESN'T WANT TO GET INVOLVED: If you truly believe it is no business of yours if your neighbor is brutally mistreated, and that there is nothing one can do about his government, then you had better teach your children to count in rubles.

Everybody has a problem. What's yours? For a personal reply write to Abby, Box 69700.

Los Angeles, Cal., 90069 and en-close a stamped, self-addressed envelope.

Horoscope By SYDNEY OMARR

It's In The Stars —

("The wise man controls his destiny... astrology points the way.")

FORECAST FOR SUNDAY, MARCH 17, 1968

ARIES (March 21-April 19): Your review of finances adds up to favorable news. Affects partner, those within family circle familiar with monetary situation. Better to finish than to start project.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20): Accent on how you react to outside circumstances. Key is ability to co-operate and combine forces. Pressure exists on marriage, partnership angle. Obtain fresh viewpoint.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20): You may expect more than is received. Key is to utilize materials at hand. Grumbling, complaining accomplishes nothing. If you offer to teach, others provide valuable material.

CANCER (June 21-July 22): Your desire to create, to be free and loose is emphasized. Pleasure is fine; but disciplined creative effort provides real satisfaction. Know this—respond accordingly.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22): Important to be thorough today—otherwise you may have to retrace steps. Future is highlighted. You must answer questions related to what you want, how to achieve it. Be wary.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22): Accent on journeys which renew acquaintances. Includes relatives, friends. Strive to communicate. One individual you respect waits for you to make a first gesture. Do it. Then you feel good.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 22): Your ability to evaluate opportunity is brought into play. You are approached by one with claim of magnificent bargain. Realize you get nothing for nothing. Word to wise.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23-Nov. 21): Cycle high. Lunar position stresses the way you look at others. Be aware, dynamic. Don't tell all you know. Maintain air of mystery. Some will confide important information.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22-Dec. 21): Pressure is put on by some who might wish to test or frighten you. Realize this. Maintain poise, sense of balance. Club or group contains answer to what you seek. Investigate.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19): Spotlight on what you think you need. Circumstances today may dictate something else. Be willing to accept changes. Be independent and original. Refuse to follow the crowd.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 18): Push forth ambitions. Others may not know what you really desire. Today be a self-starter. Get credit for accomplishments. Throw modesty aside. Assert yourself.

PISCES (Feb. 19-March 20): Fine day for visits, strengthening ties with relatives. Cement the line between past and present. Realize you do not live by bread alone. Delve deep to inner feelings.

IF TODAY IS YOUR BIRTHDAY you may appear weak, but when chips are down you are more than capable of fulfilling obligations. You are a natural executive, but you never lose interest in the underdog. If single, you could marry this year. If married, opportunity for solid advancement soon becomes evident.

GENERAL TENDENCIES: Lunar position excellent for fishing, planting. Cycle high for SCORPIO. Special word to TAURUS: new projects succeed if you take initiative without alienating allies.

FORECAST FOR MONDAY, MARCH 18, 1968

ARIES (March 21-April 19): Interest in how to better financial status is emphasized. Answer apt to be obscured by those who want to hang on to past. Think ahead. Modernize and streamline your methods.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20): Be receptive but adhere to principles. Some would have you bend over backward to see other viewpoints. Key is to be sympathetic without being weak. Steer clear of legal complications.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20): Study TAURUS message. Make goodwill gesture toward one who serves you. Show appreciation. Be mature in dealing with co-workers, associates. Keep those health resolutions.

CANCER (June 21-July 22): Overcome temptation to speculate, take unnecessary risks. Children can bring pleasure. Give time, attention to needs of young persons. Romance is in the air tonight.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22): Take conservative view where property is concerned. One who is older speaks from experience. Combine your desires with what you know to be practical. Strike constructive balance.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22): Relatives, including brothers, sisters, appear to be in spotlight. Others tend to drain your vitality. Tonight you get on more solid footing. Your great ally today is sense of humor.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 22): Perceive truth in back of any offer. Some have their eyes on your assets, including cash. Conserve assets. See persons, situations as they actually exist. Be realistic.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23-Nov. 21): Lunar cycle high; means intuition, judgment apt to be sharpened. Take initiative. Be aware of personal appearance. New contacts prove favorable. Be a self-starter.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 21-Dec. 21): Work in background. Be sure others know their jobs. Help organization to be smooth-flowing. There is nothing to fear—ignore threats, rumors, gossip. Dine out tonight.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19): Have you been keeping faith with friends? If not, start today. Write, communicate—let others know you care about them. If you make gesture, rewards follow. Throw out false pride.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 18): Take steps to enhance prestige. This could be done through community or professional project. Your efforts attract favorable attention of superiors. Go to it.

PISCES (Feb. 19-March 20): Plans which have to do with future should be nurtured. Key is imagination and versatility. Be in touch with those concerned with your progress. Don't hide light under bushel.

How Experts Make Errors

By Oswald and James Jacoby

deliberately violated some rule or principle of bidding or play because he feels that his partner has made a mistake and he, the expert, wants to correct it.

South's six heart bid shows one of these expert gambles. South had really bid his full strength when he jumped to three hearts and then went on to four hearts when his partner was doubled at three spades.

There was nothing wrong with North's four no-trump bid. He could expect a spade lead against any heart contract and at worst a heart slam would depend on a club finesse. Then, when expert South showed only one ace in response to four no-trump, North became scared and bid only five hearts.

This was a bad bidding error. It is inexcusable to use Blackwood and then stop short of a slam when your side holds three aces. In other words if you aren't sure that you want to be in a three-ace slam you don't use Blackwood.

It is even more inexcusable to go on to a slam after your partner has used Blackwood and signed off at five, but expert South didn't care about rules. He would have looked silly if North held only one ace but South didn't care. He bid the slam anyway and was right. He actually made an overtrick because West opened a spade.

Frequently that is just what the expert has done. He has

By ABIGAIL VAN BUREN

DEAR ABBY: My wife has been the religious type since she was a child, but she's never stayed with one religion. We have been married for 16 years, and she's been just about everything you can name.

Now she's joined a new church on the edge of town. Some man picks her up at 6 o'clock Sunday morning and she doesn't get home until noon on Monday. I asked her what kind of church lasted all day and all night and she tells me they pray all day, then they go to the Deacon's house for "bodily nourishment" and special prayers.

Horoscope By SYDNEY OMARR

It's In The Stars —

("The wise man controls his destiny... astrology points the way.")

FORECAST FOR SUNDAY, MARCH 17, 1968

ARIES (March 21-April 19): Your review of finances adds up to favorable news. Affects partner, those within family circle familiar with monetary situation. Better to finish than to start project.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20): Accent on how you react to outside circumstances. Key is ability to co-operate and combine forces. Pressure exists on marriage, partnership angle. Obtain fresh viewpoint.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20): You may expect more than is received. Key is to utilize materials at hand. Grumbling, complaining accomplishes nothing. If you offer to teach, others provide valuable material.

CANCER (June 21-July 22): Your desire to create, to be free and loose is emphasized. Pleasure is fine; but disciplined creative effort provides real satisfaction. Know this—respond accordingly.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22): Important to be thorough today—otherwise you may have to retrace steps. Future is highlighted. You must answer questions related to what you want, how to achieve it. Be wary.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22): Accent on journeys which renew acquaintances. Includes relatives, friends. Strive to communicate. One individual you respect waits for you to make first gesture. Do it. Then you feel good.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 22): Your ability to evaluate opportunity is brought into play. You are approached by one with claim of magnificent bargain. Realize you get nothing for nothing. Word to wise.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23-Nov. 21): Cycle high. Lunar position stresses the way you look to others. Be aware, dynamic. Don't tell all you know. Maintain air of mystery. Some will confide important information.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22-Dec. 21): Pressure is put on by someone who might wish to test or frighten you. Realize this. Maintain poise, sense of balance. Club or group contains answer to what you seek. Investigate.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19): Spotlight on what you think you need. Circumstances today may dictate something else. Be willing to accept changes. Be independent and original. Refuse to follow the crowd.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 18): Push forth ambitions. Others may not know what you really desire. Today be a self-starter. Get credit for accomplishments. Throw modesty aside. Assert yourself.

PISCES (Feb. 19-March 20): Fine day for visits, strengthening ties with relatives. Cement the line between past and present. Realize you do not live by bread alone. Delve deep to inner feelings.

IF TODAY IS YOUR BIRTHDAY you may appear weak, but when chips are down you are more than capable of fulfilling obligations. You are a natural executive, but you never lose interest in the underdog. If single, you could marry this year. If married, opportunity for solid advancement soon becomes evident.

GENERAL TENDENCIES: Lunar position excellent for fishing, planting. Cycle high for SCORPIO. Special word for TAURUS: new projects succeed if you take initiative without alienating allies.

FORECAST FOR MONDAY, MARCH 18, 1968

ARIES (March 21-April 19): Interest in how to better financial status is emphasized. Answer apt to be obscured by those who want to hang on to past. Think ahead. Modernize and streamline your methods.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20): Be receptive but adhere to principles. Some would have you bend over backward to see other viewpoints. Key is to be sympathetic without being weak. Steer clear of legal complications.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20): Study TAURUS message. Make goodwill gesture toward one who serves you. Show appreciation. Be mature in dealing with co-workers, associates. Keep those health resolutions.

CANCER (June 21-July 22): Overcome temptation to speculate, take unnecessary risks. Children can bring pleasure. Give time, attention to needs of young persons. Romance is in the air tonight.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22): Take conservative view where property is concerned. One who is older speaks from experience. Combine your desires with what you know to be practical. Strike constructive balance.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22): Relatives, including brothers, sisters, appear to be in spotlight. Others tend to drain your vitality. Tonight, you get on more solid footing. Your great ally today is sense of humor.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 22): Perceive truth in back of any offer. Some have their eyes on your assets, including cash. Conserve assets. See persons, situations as they actually exist. Be realistic.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23-Nov. 21): Lunar cycle high; means intuition, judgment apt to be sharply honed. Take initiative. Be aware of personal appearance. New contacts prove favorable. Be a self-starter.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 21-Dec. 21): Work in background. Be sure others know their jobs. Help organization to be smooth-flowing. There is nothing to fear—ignore threats, rumors, gossip. Dine out tonight.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19): Have you been keeping faith with friends? If not, start today. Write, communicate — let others know you care about them. If you make gesture, rewards follow. Throw out false pride.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 18): Take steps to enhance prestige. This could be done through community or professional project. Your efforts attract favorable attention of superiors. Go to it.

PISCES (Feb. 19-March 20): Plans which have to do with future should be nurtured. Key is imagination and versatility. Be in touch with those concerned with your progress. Don't hide light under bushel.

IF TODAY IS YOUR BIRTHDAY you are a hard worker once you become involved with a special cause. You would be invaluable in charity drives, efforts to build an organization. You are the one people seek to help them with problems. Major cycle is being completed—new opportunities are on the horizon.

GENERAL TENDENCIES: Lunar position good for fishing, planting, gardening. Cycle continues high for SCORPIO. Special word to GEMINI: steady pace proves more constructive than flashy claims, methods. Freeway and Africa as Well Since Daktari went on the air in January, 1966, Africa U.S.A. has had a steadily growing problem with persons who want to see the locale in which the series is made and the animals that are among its acting stars. Like any film set, however, it's designed primarily for the convenience of the professionals working there and closed to everyone else. Other parts of the ranch, such as the remarkable simulation of the African veldt, complete with herds of zebra and antelope, can easily be seen from a passing car.

Fans with field glasses often line the sandy shoulder of the roadside bluff a half mile or so further on to see the activity of the animal trainers. Not long ago, while many watched, a tiger bounded away from its trainer and started toward the road. Some headed anxiously toward their cars but their concern was unjustified. A heavy rain had the local streams overflowing, and what the big cat wanted was a splash in the water. It couldn't care less about the people—and it certainly wouldn't hurt them.

This is why Africa U.S.A. probably will open some of its territory to the public either this summer or next. It will be a special sort of private zoo in which the visitors will see the grounds in trams. Africa U.S.A. as long as you are willing to make a fuss over them, they will keep up their end of the conversation. And it doesn't sound the least bit ominous.

"Affection training," Helfer insisted, "leads in the long run to results that are more effective than fear training can provide. One of our lions or tigers will do all the usual circus stunts for his trainer, or an actor with whom he has had a chance to make friends. And you don't have to worry about turning your back on him. At worst he may decide to lick your face to show how much he likes you."

Helfer's animals regard their trainers as friends, accept strangers without hostility or fear and can be taken to work off the compound so long as their trainers are around to give them all the security they need. However, Helfer's feline star Clarence, the cross-eyed lion, makes few personal appearances since regulations would require him to be caged in public. This, it is felt, would spoil his image. It is also quite possible that Clarence would sleep through the event.

It is more often from pride than from want of intelligence that people oppose with so much obstinacy the most received opinions. They find the best places taken in the good party, and do not like to put up with inferior ones.

Freeway and Africa as Well

Chicago Sun-Times Special

LOS ANGELES — You expect to find all sorts of things in Los portion of East Africa.

Nonetheless it's there, about eight miles off a Freeway and

Hollywood and Vine. The name is Africa U.S.A. It's the 200-acre ranch and animal compound by

Daktari and Cowboy in Africa are shot for TV and many outdoor sequences are filmed for broadcast, movies or advertising

A Growing Problem

Since Daktari went on the air in January, 1966, Africa U.S.A.

has had a steadily growing problem with persons who want to see the locale in which the series is made and the animals that are among its acting stars.

Like any film set, however, it's designed primarily for the convenience of the professionals working there and closed to everyone else. A high board-fence along the road provides privacy for the area of the compound containing the Daktari

House and the heart of the Wameru study center for animal behavior.

Other parts of the ranch, such as the remarkable simulation of the African veldt, complete with herds of zebra and antelope, can easily be seen from a passing

Fans with field glasses often line the sandy shoulder of the roadside bluff a half mile or so further on to see the activity of the animal trainers. Not long ago, while many watched, a tiger bounded away from its trainer and started toward the road. Some headed anxiously toward their cars, but their concern was unjustified. A heavy rain had the local streams overflowing, and what the big cat wanted was a splash in the water. It couldn't care less about the people—and it cer-

This is why Africa U. S. A.

probably will open some of its territory to the public either this summer or next. It will be a special sort of private zoo in which the visitors will see the grounds in trams. Africa U.S.A. as long as you are willing to make a fuss over them, they will keep up their end of the conversation. And it doesn't sound the least bit ominous.

"Affection training," Helfer insisted, "leads in the long run to results that are more effective than fear training can provide. One of our lions or tigers will do all the usual circus stunts for his trainer, or an actor with whom he has had a chance to make friends. And likes you."

Helfer's animals regard their trainers as friends, accept strangers without hostility or fear and can be taken to work off the compound so long as their trainers are around to give them all the security they need.

However, Helfer's feline star

Clarence, the cross-eyed lion, makes few personal appearances since regulations would require him to be caged in public. This, it is felt, would spoil his image. It is also quite possible that Clarence would sleep

is the embodiment of an approach to animal training based on understanding and affection

as greater motivating forces than fear. It takes a primary notion that all animals have personalities and individual differences and that their behaviors will not be aggressive

if they feel secure and their essential needs are met.

"We have to teach them to snarl," said Ralph Helfer, who with executive producer Ivan

Tors is a key figure behind

Daktari. Africa U. S. A. is the fulfillment of Helfer's concept of affection training, and his animals can do just about anything any film sequence might require of them.

Snarling Another Trick

"For them snarling is another trick. Point a finger, a rifle or a stick at them and they snarl.

Lower it and they stop." One handsome tiger, who delivered his dialog on request, much preferred to talk to a friendly human in a series of grunts and sighs while his ears were scratched. Tigers don't purr, but

City Beat

By HUGH REYNOLDS
Freeman City Hall Reporter

One of the prime rules in the political game is Always Have an Out, or Options are a Guy's Best Friend. Failure to follow this rule can lead to the sticky situation of taking a stand. This is to be avoided at all costs.

The rule was violated by both political parties in the past two weeks with the usual results.

CASE ONE: Reapportionment. It was no accident that 15 judges refused to throw out the Democratic plan and adopt Clark Bell's at-large idea. Judge Kane tipped it off in January when he said Bell's plan was in effect the absence of a plan. The Republicans gave Kane no choice. They had time to come up with a plan but chose to stick with the at-large scheme, in later court proceedings.

Still, looking at the overall picture, that Democratic plan went through with amazing ease considering at least 11 of the 15 judges who reviewed it were Republicans. One gets the impression that the GOP was willing to give the Dems the city until 1971 when it will be reapportioned again. Perhaps they retained the option after all. Ten years of control is better than three.

CASE TWO: Garraghan against the Council, a long standing feud which Ray figures to lose since the aldermen have the last word. We're referring to the Al Brown controversy which, in any politician's opinion, was poorly handled.

Garraghan had the out but he used it at the wrong time. We don't doubt that if he had made a public statement BEFORE the Council voted on the memorial that he wasn't going to name a building after anyone but would go for a plaque it would have gone a lot smoother.

As far as the mayor being unaware of the Al Brown memorial request, we tend to doubt this. One of the things that is most impressive about Garraghan is his intimate knowledge of what is going on in the city at all times. Rarely have we asked him a question on city affairs and gotten an "I don't know" answer. Ray knew what was happening. He just couldn't believe it was happening so fast.

Right now the ball is going back and forth. The Council, which had no choice, handed it off to Ray who quickly passed it back with the veto. Now it's up to the aldermen who have a choice of who's favor they want the most, Ray's or the voter's. Doesn't look too good for Ray who's left himself in the unenviable position of having no options at all.

HALLMARKS—Who's top gun at City Hall? It has to be Stan Petro, the treasurer. Stan claims he needs the rod to protect all that money that pours into city coffers everyday. Rumor has it that after that March 26 tax deadline Stan will abandon his policy of friendly persuasion with delinquent taxpayers.

Finally, a word to our two buddies down in the court clerk's office. Micky Porto and Mary Bosco work like a couple of beavers for Judge Richter but they always seem to find time to help us when asked. Of course, it isn't all work down there. There are a few chuckles, too.

Two Area Residents New State Troopers

TERRY L. GRANT

JOHN A. PENNEY

Two Ulster County residents were among 80 new troopers in the New York State Police who graduated from the Basic Training School of the State Police Academy at exercises today at Chancellor's Hall in Albany.

They were, Terry L. Grant of Shandaken and John A. Penney, PO Box 533, Vineyard Avenue, Highland.

The new troopers will begin their field assignments on Monday. Grant and Penney will be assigned to Troop K in Hawthorne.

Grant, 27, is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Lester Grant of Shandaken. He graduated from Ontario Central High School in 1959. Prior to joining the State Police he was employed by the New York City Transit Police Department as a patrolman.

Penney, 21, is married to the former Nina Busick of 16 Reservoir Road, Highland, and they have one daughter. He is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Ralph S. Penney of Highland. He graduated from Highland High School in 1964 and attended the State University of New York at New Paltz. Prior to joining the State Police he was employed by IBM Corporation in Poughkeepsie. Other new troopers residing in this area are, Richard W. Hart of 310 Spackenkill Road, Poughkeepsie, and Tarran T. Cummings of Pawling.

Two of the three top honors in the class went to Trooper Joseph W. Heritage III, a negro and former Erie County deputy sheriff. He was selected by his classmates to speak as the class representative and, in addition, received the award for academic excellence. The academic prize is a .38 caliber Magnum revolver.

A similar award for excellence in combat shooting was presented to Trooper Thomas J. Paluch of Checktowaga. Robert R. Douglass, counsel to Governor Rockefeller, delivered the graduation address and diplomas were presented by Supt. William E. Kirvan.

Also participating in the program were Deputy Supt. John J. McGuire, who presided, and the Rev. Dr. Carlyle Adams, stated Clerk of the Presbytery of Albany, and the Rev. Donald L. Starks, pastor of St. Francis DeSales Church, Albany, who delivered the invocation and benediction.

Bankers' Views on Crisis: Action Taken Long Overdue

By ALBERT J. CAWELN

Officials of local banking institutions pretty well agree that measures taken by the Federal Reserve Bank and the U.S. Government to stem the attack of foreign speculators on dwindling gold supplies is long overdue.

All of those contacted for their views of the situation on how these measures will effect the local economy agree that a tax surcharge proposed by President Johnson would help solve the situation and most of them believe it is almost too late.

There is some skepticism whether or not Congress would enact a tax increase during an election year.

The Federal Reserve Bank boosted discount rates on loans to member banks from 4 1/2 to 5 per cent to fight the inflation that is weakening the dollar. There have been some reports that immediate action is needed before the situation wrecks the world's monetary system.

Clifford A. Henze, executive vice president-secretary of Kingston Savings Bank agreed that the measures now in effect will slow down borrowing but observed that all these remedies in the past have failed to work out. He said the government should concentrate on fiscal control and raise income taxes in the form of a tax surcharge to slow down inflation. He sees the political aspects hovering over the entire situation. A tax increase will be unpopular especially in an election year but this is no excuse, he said. This should have been done a year ago when the first signs of a pending crisis appeared.

Also Economy
Henze said economies and a tax surcharge could be the solution. He also hit at the state's usury law which limits at 6 per cent the amount of interest that can be charged.

Other bankers contacted made similar remarks. Irving L. Eyles, executive vice president of Rondout National Bank said the immediate effects of the anti-inflation measures will be higher borrowing rates for school districts and municipalities. He said there has actually been a crisis for the past two years and now it has finally been recognized as such. Eyles suggests an embargo on gold may be a solution.

A 6 per cent rate for home building is the biggest deterrent to construction and it should be 7 per cent, Eyles said. A tax surcharge is needed and is long overdue, the banker observed.

Surcharge Necessary
William J. C. Buddenhagen, president of Rondout Savings Bank said the mortgage market will suffer. Although he would not comment directly on enactment of a surcharge, Buddenhagen said the experts say a tax surcharge is necessary at this time to put a damper on inflation.

Howard DeWitt, vice president of State of New York National Bank observed that interest rates are as high as they can go and the current action will tighten credit and make people more aware of the situation. It should affect home building over the next few months. He also agreed that a tax surcharge is necessary and may be the solution.

Savings and loan associations will be ultimately affected by the increase in interest rates as money becomes tighter according to both savings and loan officials contacted.

William R. Stall, assistant vice president of Savings and Loan Association of Kingston said the new measure will mean restriction of credit but he sees no immediate effect. As money tightens up there will be higher interest rates, he said and this will divert money from the housing market. Stall agreed that a tax surcharge at this time would help to slow down inflation but he termed it an action of too little and too late. He stressed that inflation should be the concern of everyone.

DeWeese W. DeWitt, president of First Federal Savings and Loan Association said eventually the savings and loan institutions will be affected by borrowing if it becomes necessary for them to go to the money market to make funds available for loans.

DeWitt observed that when the stock market goes down people tend to put their money in savings and loan institutions and then money is available without going to the money market. He also said that expansion in the business depends on additional savings.

DeWitt said he did not foresee much effect on the savings and loan business due to the gold crisis and he indicated that he believed a tax surcharge will solve the situation.

The immediate need is to restore confidence by foreigners in U.S. currency, he noted. DeWitt said he hoped that the government will hold the price of gold at its present level.

Johnson and Kennedy: Their Widening Rift

By CARL P. LEUBSDORF

WASHINGTON (AP) — When President Johnson removed Robert F. Kennedy from consideration for vice president in 1964, Kennedy pledged to devote himself to "the programs and ideals" of John F. Kennedy which he said Johnson "is carrying on."

But throughout these nearly four years Kennedy has insisted he supports Johnson for re-election. And he has said repeatedly that he himself would not seek the presidency in 1968.

Then, last Wednesday, Kennedy said the strong showing by Sen. Eugene J. McCarthy against Johnson in the New Hampshire primary led him to reassess the situation—a reassessment climaxed by his decision to challenge Johnson and McCarthy for the Democratic presidential nomination.

Eight Years Later
The challenge comes eight years after Robert Kennedy managed the campaign of his late brother for the same nomination against a field of other Democrats that included Johnson and his vice president, Hubert H. Humphrey.

The nomination of Johnson for vice president in 1960 and the Democratic victory in the November election united the party. But some bitterness remained between the Johnson camp and the Kennedy's over Kennedy's reported advice to his brother against asking the Texas senator to be his running mate.

Johnson moved quickly following the assassination of John F. Kennedy Nov. 22, 1963, to assure Robert Kennedy he wanted him to remain as attorney general. But rumors of coolness between the two began to circulate again within months.

The White House sought to discount them. "I think the Republicans are promoting it to embarrass us," said a close Johnson associate.

A Kennedy associate tried to put the matter into perspective: "The attorney general and President Johnson have never been very close. But they are no further apart today than they were three months ago. This talk of a feud is just silly."

Kennedy said of Johnson: "I have the highest regard for him. He's been kind to me and my family and to Mrs. (John F.) Kennedy. He is continuing where my brother started."

Six months later, when Kennedy resigned Sept. 3 as attorney general to run for senator from New York, Johnson said he was pleased that you will soon be back in Washington where I can again call upon your judgment and counsel."

But Kennedy's return to Washington the following January as a senator was followed closely by the big U.S. buildup in Vietnam.

On May 6, 1965, Kennedy spoke in the Senate on Johnson's request for an additional $700 million to meet new military commitments, a request Johnson made clear was to be regarded as a vote of confidence in his policies.

Kennedy said that while he supported the request "I do so with the understanding . . . it is not a blank check." He said he assumed Johnson would seek approval from Congress for any expansion of the war.

The escalation continued. In December 1965, Kennedy still took the public position that he basically supported the administration's position in Vietnam.

Backing From Morse
But by March 1966 his criticism of administration policy led Sen. Wayne Morse, D-Ore., to say he would back Kennedy for president in 1968 if he "continues to support a change in American Vietnam policy."

and I support President Johnson in 1968."

Slowly, his criticism of Vietnam began to spread into other areas.

In August 1966, he said that despite three years of racial riots in its cities, the United States "as a government" has not "made the kind of commitment necessary to deal with the problems of the ghetto."

But when a New York psychiatrist, Dr. Martin Sheppard, formed "Citizens for Kennedy Fulbright" to promote a 1968 ticket of Kennedy and Sen. J. W. Fulbright, D-Ark., the New York senator told him to stop.

"I am not under any circumstances going to run for president or vice president," he said. By the fall of 1967, the circumstances began to change. Sen. Eugene J. McCarthy, D-Minn., like Kennedy a prime possibility for vice president in 1968 before Humphrey was chosen, began to talk of running against Johnson to protest his Vietnam policies.

McCarthy made clear he would step aside if Kennedy decided to run.

Kennedy called McCarthy's subsequent candidacy a "healthy influence" but said, "I expect that President Johnson will be the nominee." He added: "I am not taking a position during the time the primaries are going on."

Grave Concern
Last January 30, Kennedy gathered political reporters for a breakfast at which he expressed grave concern over the course of the country, especially in Vietnam. But the only thing he permitted them to say was that he did not plan to oppose Johnson under any foreseeable circumstances.

That week, in Vietnam, the Communists launched their Tet offensive, bringing the war into the cities and increasing expressions of doubt in this country about the course of the war.

On Feb. 8, in a speech at Chicago, Kennedy charged Johnson's policy was based on illusions, such as the thought that the presidency and the ambition "the events of the past two of both of them."

Still, Kennedy kept his ground about not running while McCarthy trudged the snows of New Hampshire, en route to last Tuesday's primary. McCarthy won a startling 42 per cent of the presidential preference vote and 20 of 24 convention delegates.

Last Sunday, in an interview with the British Broadcasting Corp., taped earlier in the week, Kennedy again said he would not run.

But when the news of McCarthy's showing came through last Tuesday, Kennedy indicated his mind was changing. "At the moment," he said, "my plans haven't changed."

By the middle of Wednesday he had announced that the vote showed the party was already split so "I am reassessing my position as to whether I'll run against President Johnson."

Later that day he discussed the situation with McCarthy.

McCarthy made clear his earlier offer to withdraw was no longer valid and he said a Kennedy candidacy might divide opponents of the war and help re-nominate Johnson.

Might Combine Strength
But both McCarthy and Kennedy have indicated since that even if they compete against each other they might combine their strength next August at the Democratic National Convention if they feel they can stop Johnson.

Johnson has said nothing of the recent turn in events except for some joking remarks indicating he didn't think the New Hampshire results were meant to be a defeat.

But last December the President made clear he saw the two senators as a joint force as offensive, bringing the war into the cities and increasing expressions of doubt in this country about the course of the war.

French Gold General Wants to Double Price

NEW YORK (AP) — "The ridiculous monetary system is breaking up before our eyes, the foremost gold general in France's war on the dollar said in Paris as other European monetary managers flew to Washington for an emergency meeting today.

Jacques Leon Rueff is considered the monetary general behind The General, or the main influence on the gold policy of Charles de Gaulle, president of France.

His advice is widely credited with putting De Gaulle atop the second largest gold hoard in the world, estimated to be about $5 billion.

Rueff is chancellor of the Institute of France, economist, honorary vice governor of the Bank of France—and an advocate of increasing the price of gold.

Speaking in Boston last fall, Rueff said: "The American economy is still the most powerful in the world, the only trouble is, the balance of payments."

Dangerous Situation
He termed the situation in the United States dangerous "because of the accumulation of the deficits in the balance of payments—on a dwindling amount of gold."

Judging from his various utterances, Rueff wants the United States to correct that imbalance. If it doesn't, the situation might "ultimately result in nothing less than an embargo on gold."

Under Rueff's plan tying currencies directly to gold, a nation, such as the United States, could inflate its currency only at the risk of having foreign nations redeem their dollars for gold. The United States, as a result, would have to deflate, reducing its spending and retrenching until it got more gold.

The imbalance, therefore, would be corrected automatically. "We have to re-create an international monetary system in which the debtor country loses ultimately result in nothing less than an embargo on gold," he said.

On Feb. 8, in a speech at Chicago, Kennedy charged Johnson's policy was based on illusions, such as the thought that the presidency and the ambition "the events of the past two of both of them."

City Beat

One of the prime rules in the political game is Always Have an Out, or Options are a Guy's Best Friend. Failure to follow this rule can lead to the sticky situation of taking a stand. This is to be avoided at all costs.

The rule was violated by both political parties in the past two weeks with the usual results.

CASE ONE: Reapportionment. It was no accident that 15 judges refused to throw out the Democratic plan and adopt Clark Bell's at-large idea. Judge Kane tipped it off in January when he said Bell's plan was in effect the absence of a plan. The Republicans gave Kane no choice. They had time to come up with a plan but chose to stick with the at-large scheme, in later court proceedings.

Still, looking at the overall picture, that Democratic plan went through with amazing ease considering at least 11 of the 15 judges who reviewed it were Republicans. One gets the impression that the GOP was willing to give the Dems the city until 1971 when it will be reapportioned again. Perhaps they retained the option after all. Ten years of control is better than three.

CASE TWO: Garraghan against the Council, a long standing feud which Ray figures to lose since the aldermen have the last word. We're referring to the Al Brown controversy which, in any politician's opinion, was poorly handled.

Garraghan had the out but he used it at the wrong time. We don't doubt that if he had made a public statement BEFORE the Council voted on the memorial that he wasn't going to name a building after anyone but would go for a plaque it would have gone a lot smoother.

As far as the mayor being unaware of the Al Brown memorial request, we tend to doubt this. One of the things that is most impressive about Garraghan is his intimate knowledge of what is going on in the city at all times. Rarely have we asked him a question on city affairs and gotten an "I don't know" answer. Ray knew what was happening. He just couldn't believe it was happening so fast.

Right now the ball is going back and forth. The Council, which had no choice, handed it off to Ray who quickly passed it back with the veto. Now it's up to the aldermen who have a choice of who's favor they want the most, Ray's or the voter's. Doesn't look too good for Ray who's left himself in the unenviable position of having no options at all.

HALLMARKS—Who's the top gun at City Hall? It has to be Stan Petro, the treasurer. Stan claims he needs the rod to protect all that money that pours into city coffers everyday. Rumor has it that after March 26 tax deadline Stan will abandon his policy of friendly persuasion with delinquent taxpayers.

Finally, a word to our two buddies down in the court clerk's office. Micky Porto and Mary Bosco work like a couple of beavers for Judge Richter but they always seem to find time to help us when asked. Of course, it isn't all work down there. There are a few chuckles, too.

Two Area Residents New State Troopers

TERRY L. GRANT

JOHN A. PENNEY

Two Ulster County residents were among 80 new troopers in the New York State Police who graduated from the Basic Training School of the State Police Academy at exercises today at Chancellor's Hall in Albany.

They were, Terry L. Grant of Shandaken and John A. Penney, PO Box 533, Vineyard Avenue, Highland.

The new troopers will begin their field assignments on Monday. Grant and Penney will be assigned to Troop K in Hawthorne.

Grant, 27, is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Lester Grant of Shandaken. He graduated from Ontario Central High School in 1959. Prior to joining the State Police he was employed by the New York City Transit Police Department as a patrolman.

Penney, 21, is married to the former Nina Busick of 16 Reservoir Road, Highland, and they have one daughter. He is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Ralph S. Penney of Highland. He graduated from Highland High School in 1964 and attended the State University of New York at New Paltz. Prior to joining the State Police he was employed by IBM Corporation in Poughkeepsie. Other new troopers residing in this area are, Richard W. Hart of 310 Spackenkill Road, Poughkeepsie, and Tarran T. Cummings of Pawling.

Two of the three top honors in the class went to Trooper Joseph W. Heritige III, a negro and former Erie County deputy sheriff. He was selected by his classmates to speak as the class representative and, in addition, received the award for academic excellence. The academic prize is a .38 caliber Magnum revolver.

A similar award for excellence in combat shooting was presented to Trooper Thomas J. Paluch of Cheektowaga.

Robert R. Douglass, counsel to Governor Rockefeller, delivered the graduation address and diplomas were presented by Supt. William E. Kirwan. Also participating in the program were Deputy Supt. John J. McGuire, who presided, and the Rev. Dr. Carlyle Adams, stated Clerk of the Presbytery of Albany, and the Rev. Donald L. Starks, pastor of St. Francis DeSales Church, Albany, who delivered the invocation and benediction.

The Basic Training School held the past 16 weeks at Freehold in Greene County, included more than 600 hours of instruction in the Penal Law and the Code of Criminal Procedure, police procedures, investigative techniques, traffic control, civil rights and human relations, use of firearms, motor vehicle operation, first aid, public speaking, court procedures, radio and teletype operations, and the handling of various accidents and emergency situations.

Johnson and Kennedy: Their Widening Rift

By CARL P. LEUBSDORF

WASHINGTON (AP) — When President Johnson removed Robert F. Kennedy from consideration for vice president in 1964, Kennedy pledged to devote himself to "the programs and ideals" of John F. Kennedy, which he said Johnson "is carrying on."

Within a year, however, Robert Kennedy began to reveal in public his doubts Johnson was holding to this course.

The doubts have grown, and Kennedy has become increasingly critical of the Johnson administration's foreign and domestic course.

But throughout these nearly four years Kennedy has insisted he supports Johnson for re-election. And he has said repeatedly that he himself would not seek the presidency in 1968.

Then, last Wednesday, Kennedy said the strong showing by Sen. Eugene J. McCarthy against Johnson in the New Hampshire primary led him to reassess the situation—a reassessment climaxed by his decision to challenge Johnson and McCarthy for the Democratic presidential nomination.

Eight Years Later

The challenge comes eight years after Robert Kennedy managed the campaign of his late brother for the same nomination against a field of other Democrats that included Johnson and his vice president, Hubert H. Humphrey.

The nomination of Johnson for vice president in 1960 and the Democratic victory in the November election united the parties. But some bitterness remained between the Johnson camp and the Kennedy's over Robert Kennedy's reported advice to his brother against asking the Texas senator to be his running mate.

Johnson moved quickly following the assassination of John F. Kennedy Nov. 22, 1963, to assure Robert Kennedy he wanted him to remain as attorney general. But rumors of coolness between the two began to circulate again within months.

The White House sought to discount them. "I think the Republicans are promoting it to embarrass us," said a close Johnson associate.

A Kennedy associate tried to put the matter into perspective: The attorney general and President Johnson have never been very close. But they are no farther apart today than they were three months ago. This talk of a feud is just silly.

Kennedy said of Johnson: "I have the highest regard for him. He's been kind to me and my family and to Mrs. (John F.) Kennedy. He is continuing where my brother started."

Six months later, when Kennedy resigned Sept. 3 as attorney general to run for senator from New York, Johnson said he was pleased that you will soon be back in Washington where I can again call upon your judgment and counsel."

But Kennedy's return to Washington the following January as a senator was followed closely by the big U.S. buildup in Vietnam.

On May 6, 1965, Kennedy spoke in the Senate on Johnson's request for an additional $700 million to meet new military commitments, a request Johnson made clear was to be regarded as a vote of confidence in his policies.

Kennedy said that while he supported the request "I do so with the understanding . . . it is not a blank check." He said he assumed Johnson would seek approval from Congress for any expansion of the war.

The escalation continued. In December 1965, Kennedy still took the public position that he basically supported the administration's position in Vietnam.

Backing From Morse

But by March 1966 his criticism of administration policy led Sen. Wayne Morse, D-Ore., to say he would back Kennedy for president in 1968 if he "continues to support a change in American Vietnam policy."

Three months later, Kennedy said "I have no plans to run for anything but the Senate in 1970 and I support President Johnson in 1968."

Slowly, his criticism of Vietnam began to spread into other areas.

In August 1966, he said that despite three years of racial riots in its cities, the United States "as a government" has not "made the kind of commitment necessary to deal with the problems of the ghetto."

But when a New York psychiatrist, Dr. Martin Shepard, formed "Citizens for Kennedy-Fulbright" to promote a 1968 ticket of Kennedy and Sen. J. Fulbright, D-Ark., the New York senator told him to stop.

"I am not under any circumstances going to run for president or vice president," he said. By the fall of 1967, the circumstances began to change. Sen. Eugene J. McCarthy, D-Minn., like Kennedy a prime possibility for vice president in 1968 before Humphrey was chosen, began to talk of running against Johnson to protest his Vietnam policies.

McCarthy made clear he would step aside if Kennedy decided to run. Kennedy called McCarthy's subsequent candidacy a "healthy influence" but said: "I expect that President Johnson will be the nominee." He added: "I am not taking a position during the time the primaries are going on."

Grave Concern

Last January 30, Kennedy gathered political reporters for a breakfast at which he expressed grave concern over the course of the country, especially in Vietnam. But the only thing he permitted them to say was that he did not plan to oppose Johnson under any foreseeable circumstances.

That week, in Vietnam, the Communists launched their Tet offensive, bringing the war into the cities and increasing expressions of doubt in this country about the course of the war.

On Feb. 8, in a speech at Chicago, Kennedy charged Johnson's policy was based on illusion, such as the thought that "the events of the past two of both of them."

But last December the President made clear he saw the two senators as a joint force against any ambition.

"I don't know what the effect of the Kennedy-McCarthy move is having in the country," he said, adding: "I do know the interest of both of them in the presidency and the ambition of the past two of both of them."

French Gold General Wants to Double Price

NEW YORK (AP) — "The ridiculous monetary system is breaking up before our eyes," the foremost gold general in France's war on the dollar said in Paris as other European monetary managers flew to Washington for an emergency meeting today.

Jacques Leon Rueff is considered the monetary general behind the General, or the main influence on the gold policy of Charles de Gaulle, president of France.

His advice is widely credited with putting De Gaulle atop the second largest gold hoard in the world, estimated to be about $5 billion.

Rueff is chancellor of the Institute of France, economist, honorary vice governor of the Bank of France—and an advocate of increasing the price of gold.

Speaking in Boston last fall, Rueff said: "The American economy is still the most powerful in the world, the only trouble is . . . the balance of payments."

Dangerous Situation

He termed the situation in the United States dangerous "because of the accumulation of the deficits in the balance of payments—on a dwindling amount of gold."

Judging from his various utterances, Rueff wants the United States to correct that imbalance. If it doesn't, the situation might "ultimately result in nothing less than an embargo on gold."

This, he feels, would be dangerous for world economies, perhaps even the cause of a recession. It would stifle trade. It would also thwart France's hope to see all the trading world's currencies on a rigid gold standard.

Sometimes Rueff's motives have been called in question. Critics have said the reason France accumulated gold was to weaken the dollar and, conversely, to strengthen itself in relations with the United States.

Whatever the motive, Rueff wants the price of gold doubled and he has been outspoken in saying so. Since France now has about $5 billion worth of the metal, it would stand to make a fortune—even for a nation.

As Rueff sees it, the world must continue to back its currencies with gold, because gold, a scarce metal, is an automatic agent of discipline. Other nations feel that eventually currencies must be detached from gold if world trade is to grow. Discipline would be imposed through agreements.

Under Rueff's plan tying currencies directly to gold, a nation, such as the United States, could inflate its currency only at the risk of having foreign nations redeem their dollars for gold. The United States, as a result, would have to deflate, reducing its spending and retrenching until it got more gold.

The imbalance, therefore, would be corrected automatically. "We have to re-create an international monetary system in which the debtor country loses what the creditor country gains," he said.

Big Week for Author Gore Vidal

By TOBIE GEERTSEMA

Gore Vidal was found in Wilmington, Del., last weekend, carefully gauging audience reaction to his new play, "Weekend." The play, a comedy which returns John Forsythe to Broadway for the first time since he appeared in "Teahouse of the August Moon" in 1953, was playing in Wilmington before its scheduled opening at the Broadway Theater in New York City last Wednesday.

It had been a big week for Vidal, the brilliant playwright and author who lives in nearby Barrytown in a 150-year-old Hudson River mansion, originally built by one of the famed Livingston clan. Not only was "Weekend," his play about a Senator whose Presidential aspirations are rocked when his son returns from Paris with a Negro girl friend, slated to bow on Broadway—but his highly unorthodox novel, the best-selling "Myra Breckinridge," had just been bought by 20th Century-Fox for a whopping sum. When asked how much Fox had paid for the screen rights to "Myra," Vidal hedged; said the price was "close to $750,000," a tidy fee, indeed.

Three Broadway Hits

Versatile Vidal is one of the most prolific authors on the international scene today. From his Barrytown mansion, where he has lived since the end of World War II, he has turned out dozens of television plays and such Broadway hits as "Visit to a Small Planet," "The Best Man" and "Romulus." The costliest and largest screen epic of all time, "Ben Hur," was scripted by him in collaboration with Christopher Fry, and—before he was well into his '30s—he had penned such hit movies as "The Catered Affair" with Bette Davis, "I Accuse" with Jose Ferrer, "The Scapegoat" with Alec Guinness, and "Suddenly Last Summer" with Elizabeth Taylor. He had also seen his "The Left Handed Gun" with Paul Newman, "Visit to a Small Planet" with Jerry Lewis, and "The Best Man" with Henry Fonda made into movies.

His new play, a comedy which has plenty of sweets, adroitly administered by the author in a series of candy-coated pills, will probably make money for Vidal, who has already made a for-write plays to make money. If he does not have a profit motive, his previous plays made plenty of money anyway. So have many of his novels, including "Julian" and "Washington, D. C." and the latest, "Myra Breckinridge." But what is making Vidal stand up and cheer about Myra's sale is the fact that he will write and co-produce the screenplay for Fox. But filming is not expected to start in Hollywood until next year, which may or may not lend credence to rumors that Vidal is considering a return to the political arena.

Ran for Congress

The author, then a youthful 34-year-old, ran unsuccessfully but none the less strongly in 1960 as Democratic nominee for Congress in the Congressional District which includes Ulster and Dutchess Counties. Gossip emanating out of the smoke-filled rooms in this area recently would have it that Vidal is thinking of seeking the seat being vacated by Congressman Joseph Y. Resnick, who is stepping down to run for the U. S. Senate. The author is also said to be considering an invitation to run as a delegate to the Democratic National Convention this summer on the Coalition for a Democratic Alternative slate, which will be anti-Lyndon Johnson and pro-Eugene McCarthy.

Politics aside, however, the opening of his new play and the sale of his novel to the movies is big news in the arts world. Controversy has raged around the book, which describes satirically the bizarre adventures in Hollywood of a trans-sexual, an individual who has undergone, a la Christine Jorgensen, an operation for alteration of sex.

The novel soared to popularity and notoriety almost immediately after it was published last month without any prior publicity or fanfare of any kind. Slipped into windows of bookstores across the country unannounced, it gleaned more attention than it probably would have had it been highly advertised, because of the very unusualness of the procedure.

Circus Is Backdrop for a New Style Musical Bowing Locally

The Grand Return Of DIXIELAND

By TOBIE GEERTSEMA

There's a new band in the area, called "The Cinderella Rooftop Orchestra"—and it's a red hot trio.

The band is the creation of and a sounding board for Robin Wetterau, jazz pianist, composer of such original pieces as "23 Kazoo," and a sometimes radio personality.

Wetterau's creative vitality is startling. A musician totally dedicated to the New Orleans jazz sound, he evokes the ghosts of Lou Walters, Bessie Smith, Muggsy Spanier, and early Louis Armstrong. In recent years in this area, he has headed up such jazz groups as The Easy Winners, The New Easy Winners, and a jug band that proved highly popular. Now he's lending his distinctive arranging and piano talents, recorded by a number of record companies, to the Cinderella Rooftoppers. The rough-and-ready Dixieland ensemble also includes John LeFever on clarinet and Lon Clark on drums.

At Village Jug

The group debuted to an enthusiastic crowd at The Village on rock 'n roll and folk music Jug, on Rock City Road in recent years, jazz has never Woodstock, last weekend. Their really gone out of style — at finesse on such true blue numbers as Bill Bailey, Mecca Flat Blues, Silver Dollar and St. James Infirmary has seemingly assured them of a long playing stand at the art colony nitery. They have been signed up to provide swinging, bouncy music at the Jug every Saturday evening from 9 to 1 . . . and the Rooftoppers can be expected to blow off the roof tonight, when the new owners of the Jug toss their grand opening.

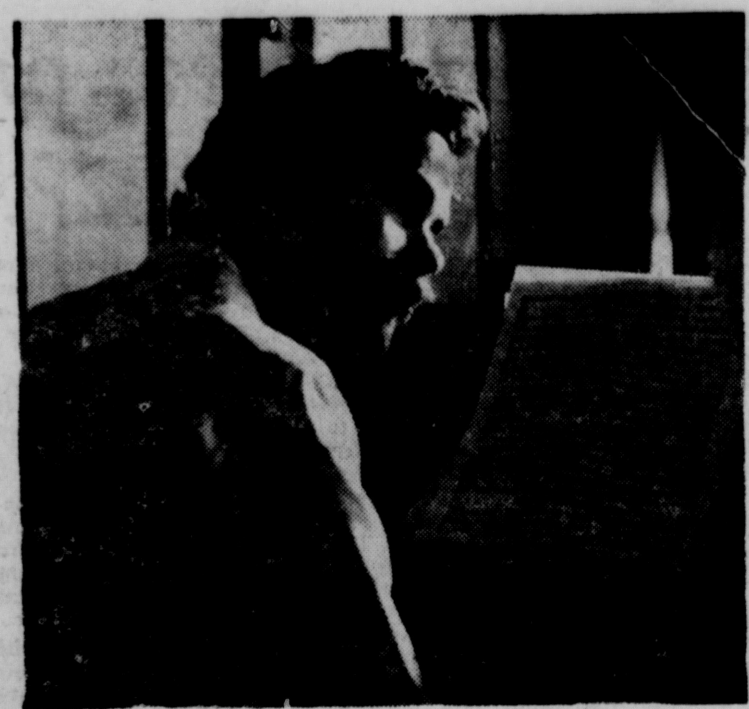

Wetterau is known from New York to San Francisco for his jazz style, for the plasticity of his piano, and for his refusal to abandon the New Orleans sound. There's a surprising lot of emotion in the playing of the new trio and the group's renditions of ragtime, blues and spirituals are always guaranteed to keep the toes of an audience tapping and the applause coming fast and furiously. The Rooftoppers create good music by sticking with the tempo of their own choosing. The tempo of "true jazz" which bred the Charleston and the Cake Walk.

In spite of all the emphasis

The new trio builds on the old traditions of the 1920's marching bands of Louisiana's French Quarter district. And they have a sufficiently perceptive sense of what that tradition is all about to avoid the pitfalls of many of the big jazz bands. There is no pretentiousness with this group . . . just an aim to please with rollicking good music.

Homage to '20s

At its best, this is a tremendously exciting trio. LeFever, a former Kingstonian who now lives in West Hurley, makes good use of the sounds that can be drawn from a liquid clarinet. Lon Clark, an artist as well as a musician, is a versatile man on the drums. And Wetterau, a professional musician and teacher of piano for many years, knows the value of showmanship and a piano solo. It would be decidedly difficult to find a jazz band anywhere with an approach as traditional and as positive as that of The Cinderella Rooftop Orchestra. The group plays remarkably well, offers exceptional homage to that remarkable and relaxing period of yesteryears in jazz history and, together, manages to weave a rhythmic tapestry of blues colors, with all the contrasts and shadings found in original Dixieland.

There is a forthrightness and cleancut directness in the playing of the Cinderella band that should appeal to anyone out for a Saturday night's entertainment in Woodstock. Verve and flair has always marked the music of Dixieland, of Jelly

Roll Morton and Barney Bigard, and the makeup of this trio enunciates the appeal of this thoroughly American music discourse, which spread around the globe in such classics as West End Blues, When the Saints Go Marching In, and Skip the Gutter.

There is nothing gimmicky about the Rooftoppers. They are dedicated to the illustrious musicianship of the Kid Olivers and the vital dexterity of the Jack Teagardens. They play jazz not as simple nostalgia, but with a totally discerning charm that says it does not have to make a comeback, because it has never really left the scene. This is music for everybody and everybody should hear the Rooftoppers at the Jug.

Sell-Out Predicted for Cliburn

When Van Cliburn comes to this area next week, he'll be offering a brilliant recital which will include music by Brahms, Beethoven and Chopin. Van Cliburn, who became an overnight sensation 10 years ago, will be heard in recital March 20 at 8:30 p. m. in the Poughkeepsie High School. Proceeds from his benefit concert there will contribute to the maintenance of the Hudson Valley Philharmonic Orchestra for the 1967-68 season.

Van, who first played in public at the age of four, performing a Bach prelude, will offer the following program at Poughkeepsie, according to music director Claude Monteux, of the Hudson Valley Philharmonic:

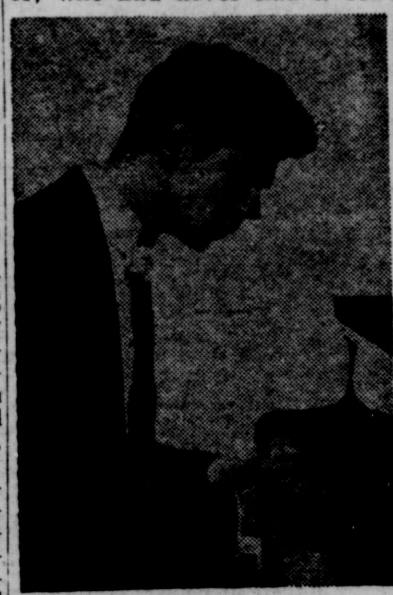

Two Rhapsodies, Op. 79, by Johannes Brahms; Sonata in E flat Major, Op. 31, No. 3, by Ludwig Van Beethoven; Sonata, Op. 26, by Samuel Barber; Two Etudes: Nocturne in E Major, Op. 62, No. 2; and Scherzo in B flat Minor, Op. 31, by Frederick Chopin.

The Cliburn concert is a tribute to the Hudson Valley Philharmonic which, although classified as a metropolitan orchestra in terms of budget and services, is actually a regional symphony which serves, and is supported by, the population of an area some 1,600 square miles in size. This area is fortunate in having such a fully professional symphony since orchestras of this type in an area other than a major city are extremely rare. By journeying here for a benefit concert, Cliburn brings home the point that Hudson Valley residents are able to enjoy one of the major benefits of living in a big city without having to exist in its midst.

Began at Three

The Van Cliburn story has now become legend. At the age of three, long before he learned to read words, he began to learn to read music. His pianist mother, who had never had a concert career of her own, was his only piano instructor until he left for New York City in 1951 to study at Juilliard.

By the time he was six, it was obvious that he was destined for a concert career. His father had a studio built for him on the back of a garage, and the prodigious child practiced faithfully each day before going to school, after school and after dinner.

As the whole world knows, in 1953 Cliburn became an overnight sensation by winning the Tchaikovsky Competition in Moscow. His most important victory, however, was not the winning of the Moscow Competition, but the capture of the Edgar M. Leventritt Foundation Award in 1954 with his playing of Liszt's Twelfth Rhapsody. Although the Leventritt competition is held annually, no prize is awarded unless the judges feel there is a worthy recipient. When Cliburn received the award for the piano in 1954, it had not been granted for the previous five years. This achievement brought him not only great honor and the opportunity to concertize, but also a reputation in musical circles.

His invasion of Moscow is well known. He immediately won the hearts of the Russian people, as well as the acclaim of the critics, and tickets to the Cliburn auditions were in such demand that people queued up for three or four days in advance. Word seeped back to America, which up till then had been fairly oblivious to the Moscow Competition, and by the time Van was proclaimed the winner, he was front page news around the world, and the idol of millions. After the Competition was over, Premier Krushchev asked to hear him, and Cliburn was then invited to play several concerts in the Soviet Union, each one to sold-out houses and tumultuous acclaim.

Now a national hero, whom

President Eisenhower had asked to meet, Cliburn was welcomed with the first ticker-tape parade New York City had ever given to a classical musician. RCA Victor gave him one of the most impressive recording contracts ever offered a young performer, and his first recording, the Tchaikovsky B-flat Concerto, immediately became a national best-seller. Cliburn was a full-fledged celebrity and an honored international figure, adored by music lovers everywhere. Honor after honor was bestowed upon him and his performances drew record crowds and critical applause. Fervent enthusiasm still greets him wherever he appears and his Poughkeepsie concert is expected to be a sell-out.

Only a limited number of seats are still available at $12.50 and $15, and those wishing to attend next week's recital are urged to secure tickets immediately. These may be obtained by calling the Hudson Valley Philharmonic office at 54 Noxon Street, Poughkeepsie.

A Melodic New Group

Afficionados of popular music will recognize the name of master bassist Ollie Richardson, who has just joined the new local musical group, "All That the Name Implies," after seven years with singer Della Reese and a year with the big band at the Copacabana.

Richardson and the other members of "All That the Name Implies" will be treating area music lovers to a concert tonight under the sponsorship of the Woodstock Artists Association at its gallery on Tinker Street in the art colony. The concert, which begins at 8 p.m., will feature the five vocalists of the new aggregation, with bass and guitar accompaniment. Local talent includes leader Kip Feva, tenor Roy Jimenez, alto Marlene Ryan, and lyric soprano Melinda Parke. Rhythm guitarist for the group is Alan Bree, who commutes to Woodstock from New York to play and rehearse with the group.

Tonight's concert will include songs from the original repertoire of "All That the Name Implies," mostly composed by Feva. He says the group's sound cannot be labelled by any popular name since the musical scope, mood, and construction is too wide in subject matter. But he promises "Name" is melodic and has been enjoyed by all who have heard it.

Not novices, "All That the Name Implies" have appeared at the Bitter End Cafe and Gerde's Folk City in Manhattan, and Feva, Miss Ryan and Jimenez toured Detroit as a trio and played a month's engagement at New York City's Club La Boheme, where they appeared with the famed Tony Scott Quintet and Lee Konitz.

Electronic Music Demonstration

A lecture-demonstration on electronic music will be given by Jean Eichelberger Ivey at Bard College Tuesday, March 19 at 8:30 p. m. She will include illustrations from her own and other compositions. The program will be held in Bard Hall and is open to the public. Mrs. Ivey's composition "Pinball" was released in 1967 on the Folkways record Electronic Music. Another electronic piece, "Continuous Form," is being used on Channel 13, the New York educational station, every weekday at 8:55 a. m. and through the daytime hours as station break filler. Besides electronic music, Mrs. Ivey has composed for most of the traditional music media; her "Ode for Orchestra" was premiered last spring under Howard Hanson at the Eastman American Music Festival, and also included on the Houston Symphony's Rockefeller Symposium. Her publications include both compositions and articles in various music magazines. Mrs. Ivey is editor of the Newsletter of the American Society of University Composers and a member of the summer faculty of Peabody Conservatory in Baltimore, teaching electronic music. Last summer she gave there an introductory workshop in electronic music for school music teachers, believed to be the first such course ever given anywhere. She is listed in the Schwann Record Catalog, Bull's Contemporary Composers, Cross's Bibliography of Electronic Music, and the forthcoming edition of Who's Who of American Women. Her home is in New Paltz, where her husband, Dr. Frederick M. Ivey, is associate professor of German at the State University College.

The Grand Return Of DIXIELAND

By TOBIE GEERTSEMA

There's a new band in the area, called "The Cinderella Rooftop Orchestra"—and it's a red hot trio.

The band is the creation of and a sounding board for Robin Wetterau, jazz pianist, composer of such original pieces as "23 Kazoo," and a sometimes radio personality.

Wetterau's creative vitality is startling. A musician totally dedicated to the New Orleans jazz sound, he evokes the ghosts of Lou Walters, Bessie Smith, Muggsy Spanier, and early Louis Armstrong. In recent years in this area, he has headed up such jazz groups as The Easy Winners, The New Easy Winners, and a jug band that proved highly popular. Now he's lending his distinctive arranging and piano talents, recorded by a number of record companies, to the Cinderella Rooftoppers. The rough-and-ready Dixieland ensemble also includes John LeFever on clarinet and Lon Clark on drums.

At Village Jug

The group debuted to an enthusiastic crowd at The Village Jug, on Rock City Road in Woodstock, last weekend. Their finesse on such true blue numbers as Bill Bailey, Mecca Flat Blues, Silver Dollar and St. James Infirmary has seemingly assured them of a long playing stand at the art colony nitery. They have been signed up to provide swinging, bouncy music at the Jug every Saturday evening from 9 to 1 . . . and the Rooftoppers can be expected to blow off the roof tonight, when the new owners of the Jug toss their grand opening.

Wetterau is known from New York to San Francisco for his jazz style, for the plasticity of his piano, and for his refusal to abandon the New Orleans sound. There's a surprising lot of emotion in the playing of the new trio and the group's renditions of ragtime, blues and spirituals are always guaranteed to keep the toes of an audience tapping and the applause coming fast and furiously. The Rooftoppers create good music by sticking with the tempo of their own choosing. The tempo of "true jazz" which bred the Charleston and the Cake Walk.

In spite of all the emphasis on rock 'n roll and folk music in recent years, jazz has never really gone out of style — at least not with the true believers and the Dixieland buffs. And the Rooftoppers are true believers. When they're playing, an audience knows automatically that they're interested in just one thing — how good the music can get.

The new trio builds on the old traditions of the 1920's marching bands of Louisiana's French Quarter district. And they have a sufficiently perceptible sense of what that tradition is all about to avoid the pitfalls of many of the big jazz bands. There is no pretentiousness with this group . . . just an aim to please with rollicking good music.

Homage to '20s

At its best, this is a tremendously exciting trio. LeFever, a former Kingstonian who now lives in West Hurley, makes good use of the sounds that can be drawn from a liquid clarinet. Lon Clark, an artist as well as a musician, is a versatile man on the drums. And Wetterau, a professional musician and teacher of piano for many years, knows the value of showmanship and a piano solo. It would be decidedly difficult to find a jazz band anywhere with an approach as traditional and as positive as that of The Cinderella Rooftop Orchestra. The group plays remarkably well, offers exceptional homage to that remarkable and relaxing period of yesteryears in jazz history and, together, manages to weave a rhythmic tapestry of blues colors, with all the contrasts and shadings found in original Dixieland.

There is a forthrightness and clean-cut directness in the playing of the Cinderella band that should appeal to anyone out for a Saturday night's entertainment in Woodstock. Verve and flair has always marked the music of Dixieland, of Jelly

Roll Morton and Barney Bigard, and the makeup of this trio enunciates the appeal of this thoroughly American music discourse, which spread around the globe in such classics as West End Blues, When the Saints Go Marching In, and Skip the Gutter.

There is nothing gimmicky about the Rooftoppers. They are dedicated to the illustrious musicianship of the Kid Olivers and the vital dexterity of the Jack Teagardens. They play jazz not as simple nostalgia, but with a totally discerning charm that says it does not have to make a comeback, because it has never really left the scene. This is music for everybody and everybody should hear the Rooftoppers at the Jug.

Sell-Out Predicted for Cliburn

When Van Cliburn comes to this area next week, he'll be offering a brilliant recital which will include music by Brahms, Beethoven and Chopin. Van Cliburn, who became an overnight sensation 10 years ago, will be heard in recital March 20 at 8:30 p. m. in the Poughkeepsie High School. Proceeds from his benefit concert there will contribute to the maintenance of the Hudson Valley Philharmonic Orchestra for the 1967-68 season.

Van, who first played in public at the age of four, performing a Bach prelude, will offer the following program at Poughkeepsie, according to music director Claude Monteux, of the Hudson Valley Philharmonic:

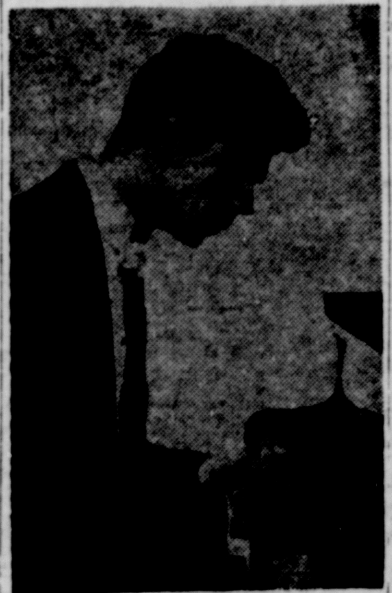

Two Rhapsodies, Op. 79, by Johannes Brahms; Sonata in E flat Major, Op. 31, No. 3, by Ludwig Van Beethoven; Sonata, Op. 26, by Samuel Barber; Two Etudes: Nocturne in E Major, Op. 62, No. 2; and Scherzo in B flat Minor, Op. 31, by Frederick Chopin.

The Cliburn concert is a tribute to the Hudson Valley Philharmonic which, although classified as a metropolitan orchestra in terms of budget and services, is actually a regional symphony which serves, and is supported by, the population of an area some 1,600 square miles in size. This area is fortunate in having such a fully professional symphony since orchestra of this type in an area other than a major city are extremely rare. By journeying here for a benefit concert, Cliburn brings home the point that Hudson Valley residents are able to enjoy one of the major benefits of living in a big city without having to exist in its midst.

Began at Three

The Van Cliburn story has now become legend. At the age of three, long before he learned to read words, he began to learn to read music. His pianist mother, who had never had a concert career of her own, was his only piano instructor until he left for New York City in 1951 to study at Juilliard.

By the time he was six, it was obvious that he was destined for a concert career. His father had a studio built for him on the back of a garage, and the prodigious child practiced faithfully each day before going to school, after school and after dinner.

As the whole world knows, in 1958 Cliburn became an overnight sensation by winning the Tchaikovsky Competition in Moscow. His most important victory, however, was not the winning of the Moscow Competition, but the capture of the Edgar M. Leventritt Foundation Award in 1954 with his playing of Liszt's Twelfth Rhapsody. Although the Leventritt competition is held annually, no prize is awarded unless the judges feel there is a worthy recipient. When Cliburn received the award for the piano in 1954, it had not been granted for the previous five years. This achievement brought him not only great honor and the opportunity to concertize, but also a reputation in musical circles.

His invasion of Moscow is well known. He immediately won the hearts of the Russian people, as well as the acclaim of the critics, and tickets to the Cliburn auditions were in such demand that people queued up for three or four days in advance. Word seeped back to America, which up till then had been fairly oblivious to the Moscow Competition, and by the time Van was proclaimed the winner, he was front page news around the world, and the idol of millions. After the Competition was over, Premier Krushchev asked to hear him, and Cliburn was then invited to play several concerts in the Soviet Union, each one to sold-out houses and tumultuous acclaim.

Now a national hero, whom

President Eisenhower had asked to meet, Cliburn was welcomed with the first ticker-tape parade New York City had ever given to a classical musician. RCA Victor gave him one of the most impressive recording contracts ever offered a young performer, and his first recording, the Tchaikovsky B-flat Concerto, immediately became a national best-seller. Cliburn was a full-fledged celebrity and an honored international figure, adored by music lovers everywhere. Honor after honor was bestowed upon him and his performances drew record crowds and critical applause. Fervent enthusiasm still greets him wherever he appears and his Poughkeepsie concert is expected to be a sell-out.

What's New on Your Screen??

Viewers of varying tastes will find TV homescreens offering a little something for everyone in the coming week. If you were one of those who appreciated the old Victory at Sea programs for their informative format, you'll be encouraged to know that NBC-TV will present a weekly review of the Vietnam conflict. This one debuts tomorrow, Sunday, March 17, is a half-hour show titled The War This Week; and is replacing Animal Secrets in the 4 p.m. time slot.

There's also good news for lovers of humor, whether it's the old, tried-and-true brand... or the mad, mod, new variety. The former gets an airing when Jack Benny, in the sole outing of the year as the star of his own show on NBC, gets an assist from Lucille Ball and Johnny Carson, among others, next Wednesday evening. Theme of the hour-long show is the carnival and it doesn't take much thinking to make a guess on who'll be pinching the pennies.

Benny has stocked his "side-show" with Ben Blue and Paul Revere and the Raiders, and cameo appearances will be made by Bob Hope, Dean Martin, Danny Thomas, the Smothers Brothers, George Burns and Don Drysdale. Sets are said to be eye-popping and Lucille Ball has a field day as Luscious Lucille, the knockout dancer.

Bill Cosby Show

Humor of a different sort is predicted on NBC March 18 when Bill Cosby does his first special, The Bill Cosby Show. Emmy award winner Cosby is expected to open all stops on this full-hour show, and the comedy will be based on his own experiences in life—what happens to children, what scares them needlessly, how they get back at their friends for tricks, and the tricks they play themselves.

For TEMPO's money, Cosby happens to be one of the most brilliant character comedians and one of the funniest men in show business, to say nothing of a dramatic talent that he's displayed in I Spy.

We hear tell that with the exception of two dance numbers, and an opening involving some kids from Philadelphia and a little girl musician, the Monday night show is all Bill—telling those wonderful tales of his boyhood.

While we're on the subject of comedy, we might as well answer some of those people who have chastised us for our outright and at-all-times endorsement of the humor on Rowan and Martin's Laugh-In. We admit at the outset that we push and plug this Monday night funfest. Like the Smothers Brothers, they do similar sharp material, but seem to be criticized more. May we suggest that this is perhaps due to the fact that the Smothers are such clean-cut, innocent-looking, young men, they can get away with things better than not so clean-cut and fortyish Rowan and Martin?

This Humor Bites

Quite frankly, this writer admires the satirical, biting humor of Rowan and Martin and looks upon them as "spear carriers" for this generation. Unlike the Smothers, they sustain comedy for an entire hour with no recourse to big production numbers, monologues by guest stars, song-after-song after-song by some crooner, or boring dancing routines.

A paragraph or two would seem to be called for on our likes and dislikes TV-wise during the past week. We were intrigued by the guests on The David Susskind Show, four ex-convicts who discussed prison life. New York State prisons were raked over the coals by a man who served 17 years of his life in such hostilities. It wasn't entertaining listening to the horrors these men endured in unwarranted mental and physical torture—but it was thought-provoking and illuminating.

The NET FESTIVAL special on Mexican composer and conductor Carlos Chavez proved excellent viewing fare. In reminiscing about his early life when he literally brought modern music to Mexico by introducing contemporary composers and creating the Symphony Orchestra there, he revealed his strong commitment to growth and action. It was illuminating to see the involvement in all aspects of Mexico's musical life during the past 50 years by this director-teacher-composer.

Ironside had a winning combination Thursday night in Raymond Burr and a baby. Script was a good one and had the baby being found in Burr's van after a plane on which he was supposed to go to Los Angeles had exploded on the runway. It looked as if someone had been trying to kill him—at first. But the baby provided a lead to a totally different plot. The baby was cute, the humor was good, and Burr turned out to be surprisingly adept at handling a squalling infant.

"Actor" Disappoints

We were disappointed in The Actor, narrated by Alec Guinness and billed beforehand as an "essay" on the craft of British thespians. Unfortunately for viewers, it was only 10 per cent visual and 90 per cent vocal with far too much emphasis on heavy descriptions. Even though it boasted such formidable talents as Joan Plowright, Tyrone Guthrie, the late Donald Wolfelt, Harold Pinter and Peter Brook, it could have used far more of the wonderful wry humor of Peter Bull and the pointed pugnaciousness of Nicol Williamson...or others similar to them.

Television

Not the least bit disappointing, however, was the NET PLAYHOUSE presentation of America's most celebrated revue, Julius Monk's "Plaza 9." This truly sophisticated cafe form, out of New York's famed Plaza Hotel, deserved high praise indeed for its hilarious and irreverent handling of such topics as the new morality, singles' bars, psychedelic drugs, Charles DeGaulle, the Great Society and the coming election.

Set "History of Western Art"

A survey course on "History of Western Art" from ancient times to the present will be offered to the general public at State University College, New Paltz, Friday evenings from 7 to 9 p.m. March 29 to June 7, the College's Center for Continuing Education announced this week.

Information and application forms may be obtained by writing Dr. Robert Davidson, Center Director. Registration and fee payment can be made by mail, Dr. Davidson said.

The Art History course, designed for those with little or no background in the history of art, follows a winter term course on Africa, the first in the general non-credit courses open to the public. Courses in economics, psychology, physics, sociology, and computer organization and programming will be given from March 25 to June 7 on the campus or at Stewart Air Force Base, Newburgh. This spring's Art course will Sessions will be devoted to the ancient world of the eastern Mediterranean, Greek, Roman, and Medieval art, the Renaissance in Italy and the North, baroque and rococo styles, and the 19th and 20th centuries. The course will be taught by Mr. Robert Frankel who is working on his doctorate in art history in New York City and teaching part-time at the New Paltz college.

Woodstock Playhouse is now offering a limited number of apprenticeships for the summer season.

The Playhouse, considered one of the finest stock theatres in the country, also offers a stimulating atmosphere in which young people interested in the arts can spend a summer because of its location in the Catskills art colony, where many painters, writers, composers, actors and leading figures in the arts and sciences are residents.

Applicants must be at least 16 years old before the season opens. Theatrical experience, though not required, is desirable. Young men and women applying for an apprenticeship at the Woodstock Playhouse should have a serious interest in legitimate theatre. The Playhouse only accepts 10-15 apprentices each year.

The Playhouse offers an 11 week season from June to September. Plays are selected from the best of Broadway, classics, revivals and originals, performed and produced by a professional Equity company. Some roles are available for apprentices.

Formal Classes

Apprentices are offered at least one formal class a week to be given by the producer, director, designer, and technical director, aided by the cast and technical staffs. The apprentice group will do a project of its own to be presented to a specially invited audience at the end of the season. They will receive practical working experience in all aspects of the theatre: acting, stage craft, production. All work done by the apprentice staff will be in relation to the Playhouse and its activities.

There is no tuition charged for an apprenticeship at the Woodstock Playhouse nor is remuneration offered for work done. Room and board are the applicants' own responsibility but aid will be given in obtaining convenient and reasonable housing.

Besides the exciting schedule set for the season, the Playhouse also operates on its premises the Woodstock Playhouse School of the Theatre, with a full time professional staff; the Polari Gallery, with exhibitions of paintings, drawings, prints, sculpture, pottery, and crafts; a series of folk concerts, chamber music concerts, children's shows and lectures.

Applicants should apply to M. Edgar Rosenblum, producer, Woodstock Playhouse, Box 265, Woodstock, N. Y., giving background and interests. Interviews will be given when possible. The Playhouse is also the home of the Hudson Valley Repertory Theatre Inc., a professional non-profit regional theatre.

Durable Veronica's Veil Holds Longevity Record

For a great many years now, Ulster County groups have been chartering buses or forming motorcades to journey down to Union City, N.J., to attend performances of "Veronica's Veil." Small wonder, since "Veil" is America's nationally renowned passion play.

The long-running drama, based on the Miraculous Veil portraying the sufferings and death of Christ and the beginnings of Christianity, has opened its 54th season during Lent.

Performances this year at the Park Theatre, which recently suffered wanton vandalism, began at the venerable old Union City building on Feb. 24 and will run through April 9. The durable cast and the play's producer, the Rev. Cletus Dawson, C.P., rehearsed, as usual, for the new season, despite the vandalism and a fire tragedy at the Holy Family Lyceum, where all rehearsals had previously been held.

One of the stars of the play, Fred Schneider, has had 18 years of experience with "Veil," playing some seven parts over the years. Another actor, Dante Rinato, has been with the play for 10 years in two different roles. Among the other veteran actors is Joseph Capomaggi, a cast member for eight years.

Veil's plot begins with Christ carrying the cross to Golgotha. The pious Veronica is moved to compassion and, forcing her way through the surging mobs surrounding Jesus, goes down on her knees to offer Him her veil to wipe away the sweat and blood. Tradition has it that when Christ returned the cloth to her, it bore the impression of His countenance in the colors of His blood.

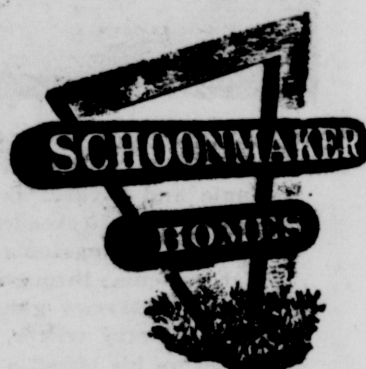

Since the play began continuous performances more than five decades ago, some 1,700,000 people of all religious beliefs have seen the drama. Performances this season have been following a schedule of Saturday and Sunday matinees at 1 p.m. Beginning tomorrow, late matinees at 5:30 p.m. will also be offered on alternate Saturdays and Sundays in addition to the earlier shows. Evening performances are also scheduled April 6 and 9 at 8 p.m.

The Park Theatre is just minutes from the Lincoln Tunnel and individuals and groups are urged to order tickets early.

ROCK 'N ROLL IDOL FABIAN gets romantic with Diane McBain in scene from "Maryjane," now playing at Kingston's Community. Anyone over 25 will be bored to tears since any appeal it has is aimed at the sneakers and bell-bottomed pants crowd as they make the beach and bowling alley scenes, even though it purports to document the facts behind the marijuana controversy. Featured on the double bill at the Community with "Maryjane" is "House of 1,000 Dolls," and it rates a distinction, it's that of being a Grade C potboiler. Vincent Price is the star and the plot's all about the beauty traffic racket.

WARREN BEATTY as Clyde Barrow isn't getting romantic at all with FAYE DUNAWAY as Bonnie Parker in scene from "Bonnie and Clyde," as those who have already seen this nominated for 10 Academy Awards film know. Now playing at both Kingston's Mayfair and Woodstock's Tinker Street Cinema through Tuesday, it's a movie to cheer about. The Barrow gang was the strangest in history, included a poetry writer, a Myrna Loy fan with a bluebird tattooed on his chest, a teller of corny jokes and incessant Kodak photographer, and a preacher's daughter who kept her fingers in her ears during gunfights.

ELI WALLACH would like to get romantic with ANNE JACKSON in "The Tiger Makes Out," but he doesn't know how. Off-beat comedy, opening at Woodstock's Tinker Street Cinema early next week, satirizes contemporary frustrations in urban and suburban life as experienced by two would-be intellectuals, an out-of-town house wife (Jackson) and a Manhattan postman (Wallach). It's a perfect pearl of a picture about a neurotic, second-class male, who decides to turn himself into a parcel of sexual energy; kidnaps a gal and spirits her off to his apartment. Sight and sound gags are marvelous to hear and behold.

Angeloch's Show Rates Raves

Woodstock artist Robert Angeloch, whose paintings were recently displayed at the Bryant Galleries in New Orleans, La., drew excellent reviews for his work in newspapers of that city. Said the Times-Picayune, which carried photographs of the artist's realistic and abstract styles: "Angeloch is definitely a lover of the natural scene but he interprets it in styles ranging from the strictly representational to the abstract."

Angeloch's show in New Orleans was a large one and included examples of both types of his work.

One Southern critic was especially attracted to his "Valley in Winter," which he called "carefully delineated," and said that, "Though closely patterned on the actual, it manages to catch something of the mysterious aura of the untouched woodland areas." The same critic also admired an Angeloch canvas of a blazing, golden oil sketch of trees in autumn garb, and cited as "very fine" the almost miniature painting of a New England cove.

He called all of the artist's paintings in the realistic vein "excellently handled, good in color and poetic in mood."

stract works — and one critic noted that the realistic styles "pale before the artist's more abstract works that, though much more removed from Mother Nature, reflect even more of her true essence."

Singled out for individual praise were such Angeloch paintings as "Road at Night," called "all high adventure under a pallid, full moon;" "Seashore at Night," praised as "a lovely composition made doubly exciting by its abstract-expressionist feeling;" and "Weeds No. 2," credited with "blowing up a lowly subject into a titan of regal beauty."

Also receiving kudos was Angeloch's vertical triptych, showing the cascades of a mountain stream, and praised by a New Orleans critic as "a magnificent thing — each of the units will stand alone, but the whole is more important than any of its parts."

Storming the Male Barricades

Now that the barriers have gone crashing down at the U.S. Military Academy at West Point where, for the first time in its history, a woman instructor was recently added to its teaching staff, another barricade nearby tumbled this week.

The first girl in the history of the New York Military Academy, a prep school at Cornwall which sends its fair share of cadets to the Point, will be taking a role in a Drama Club production.

She's Mary Dunphy, who will be playing the part of Sister Margaret when the NYMA Drama Club, "The Harlequins," produces the long-time Broadway hit, The Hasty Heart, next week. The Harlequins, until now, have refused to break with the traditions of Shakespeare's time, when female roles were always essayed by men. Now, however, pretty Miss Dunphy gets an unprecedented opportunity in the three-act comedy-drama by John Patrick.

Story of a Scot

"Hasty Heart," as most theatre-goers know, is the story of a Scot who has been sent to a temporary hospital hut maintained by the British in Southeast Asia. In critical condition and friendless, he is sent to the ward for cheering up by other patients. The part of Lachlan, the Scot, who has no chance of getting well, will be played at NYMA by Leopold Tormes. Michael Chrisman will be seen as the Commanding Officer, who feels "he should have friends around him when he dies." No one succeeds in cheering him up, however, since Lachlan is mad at the world, or so it seems.

Other cast members include: Bruce Bishins as Tommy, the Englishman; Anthony Perez as Yank; Mitchell Polstein as Blossom, the Basuto; Brice Adair as the Orderly; Michael Newman as Digger, the Australian; and Steve Rizzo as Kiwi, the New Zealander. The Academy Band will also be featured during the evening's entertainment.

"Heart," which has comedy as well as pathos, is being directed by Marion Arnold and Frank Steep and will bow in the NYMA Chapel on March 19, at 8 p.m., with tickets available at the door.

Paltz Man Named

Receives Grant for Biography On "Tristram Shandy" Author

Dr. Arthur H. Cash, English professor at State University College, New Paltz, has been named as one of two faculty members at four-year colleges in the State University of New York to receive a grant under the new University Awards program. He will receive $4,834 to work on a biography of 18th century English novelist Laurence Sterne.

Professor Cash is program chairman and New Paltz is a joint sponsor of the Laurence Sterne Bicentenary Conference being held in York, England in September. Other sponsors are the University of York, and McMaster University in Canada.

Dr. Cash, one of the nation's leading experts on Sterne, is also chairman of a committee of scholars working to restore the author's home, Shandy Hall, named for the fictional manor house of "Tristram Shandy," the title character of Sterne's best known work. The author also of "A Sentimental Journey" through France and Italy, Sterne died March 18, 1768, three weeks after that novel's appearance.

Announcing the grant, University Chancellor Samuel B. Gould said that 29 faculty members in the State University would share $311,305 under the new University research program. A $6,886 grant for biology research was awarded to Dr. William Bukovsan at State University College, Oneonta. Most of the awards went for science research at the four State University Centers at Stony Brook, Albany, Binghamton, and Buffalo.

Million State-wide

Other State University research grants to faculty members since September bring the total for the academic year to $1,150,000 State-wide. Additional grants will be made this Spring. Professor Cash said he hopes substantial progress can be made in the campaign to save Shandy Hall before the September Bicentenary Conference opens. Sterne's home was originally a medieval farm house, dating back to about 1450, and contained a single, high, barn-like room, with the dwellers sleeping on a balcony. A fire was built on the center of the floor and the smoke escaped through a hole in the roof without benefit of chimney. The house had been remodeled numerous times before Sterne knew it, and he himself made numerous tasteful additions including handsome paneling and paneled doors, Cash said.

Grants have been made by the Ministry of Public Buildings and the North Riding County Council for the restoration on condition that the funds be matched, Dr. Cash said.

The award to Dr. Cash supersedes two previous awards totaling $2,000 for his biography work.

Show Waugh Paintings

Sixteen oil paintings by Coulton Waugh, of Newburgh, are on display in the Mount Saint Mary College Library. Open to public viewing, the exhibit will run through Saturday, March 30, at which time paintings by Mrs. Odin Waugh will be displayed for the month of April.

A member of Grand Central Galleries, New York City, for 12 years, Coulton Waugh has displayed his works there in nine one-man shows and also has permanent exhibitions at the galleries, University of Syracuse has an accumulative collection of his oil paintings.

Permanently represented in art museums in Toledo, Ohio, and Davenport, Iowa, Waugh is a member of National Academy of Design, Carnegie Institute (Pittsburgh) and Cooperstown (New York) Art Association.

Waugh's style of paintings is purely personal and not dictated by other artists' works. He paints with a trowel shaped palette knife, picking up several colors at one time and keeping each color clean and pure on the canvas. The American Artist magazine has printed several articles on his techniques.

The paintings on exhibit at Mount Saint Mary College Newburgh, include "Spring in Green Pastures," "Farmer's Gold," "The Bridge in Spring," "Flood Tide," "Mountain Farm," "Afternoon," and "Green Sunset."

Both Mr. and Mrs. Waugh work together on cartoons for the Associated Press Syndicate.

Paltz Sculptor At NYC Gallery

Dorothy Robbins, assistant professor of sculpture at State University College, New Paltz, who has had four previous one-man shows of her work in New York City galleries, is currently exhibiting her latest bronze-welded sculptures and cast bronzes through April 10 at the Roko Gallery, Madison Avenue.

Her last major exhibit at that gallery was of wood carvings. The works of the artist, who is listed in "Who's Who of American Women," are now with many private collections and in apartment lobbies. She has exhibited at the New York World's Fair, in numerous museums and with traveling shows. Her awards include those from Cincinnati Museum of Women Artists, Connecticut Academy of Fine Arts, and American Society of Contemporary Artists, and she was the recipient of a Yaddo Fellowship.

Mrs. Robbins came to New Paltz from New York in 1966.

3,000 Miles for Music

Ticket reservations for Los Indios Tabajaras. Brazilian guitarists, appearing in Newburgh on March 23, may be placed at the Cultural Centre of Mount Saint Mary College. The box office in the theatre lobby is open weekdays from 10-12 and from 1-4. The number to call is: 561-5690. Los Indios Tabajaras represents the last professional offering in the adult season of the Culture Centre.

Thirty years ago, Los Indios were illiterate, barefoot boys living in northeastern Brazil, among their own people, the Tabajaras Indians, a tribe not far removed from the Stone Age.

Mussapere and Herundy, two of the 30 children of a Tabajaras chief, found a guitar one day. By 1936, they had achieved as much virtuosity on the guitar as could be expected of two self-taught musicians ignorant of western music. With 16 members of their family, they walked 3,000 miles to Rio de Janeiro where they worked developing their musical talent. In 1943, RCA hired them to make their first recording, released only in Latin America. Los Indios went to Mexico in 1947, where they began serious study of the fundamentals of music, teaching themselves from books and from close study of all the western music they could hear. One worked on melody while the other concentrated on accompaniment.

In 1950, their international career began with their first trip to Europe where they were acclaimed in Spain, Portugal, Italy, Switzerland, and Greece. A few years later, friends urged them to come to the United States. For three years they appeared on such shows as Jimmy Dean's and Jack Paar's; they played 14 weeks on the Arthur Godfrey Show, and had a three month's engagement at the Blue Angel, New York City.

Since then, RCA has released the Album Maria Elena and Los Indios have taken world-wide concert engagements.

Legal Music

WILMINGTON, Del. (AP) — There is sometimes a soft, brief musical accompaniment for proceedings in the New Castle County Common Pleas courtroom in the Wilmington Public Building.

Officials say the courtroom's loudspeaker system somehow picks up waves transmitted by police walkie-talkies. The sonic serenade always comes in groups of four notes, and each group is repeated three times.

Unofficial sources say it's the ghost of a lawyer — Most of the sounds are unintelligible.

girl friend, Mary-Ann. Myra moves in on Rusty to crush his masculinity and, at the same time, decides to seduce poor Mary-Ann. Her motive for all this seems to be to avenge "late husband" Myron for some past trauma that had been inflicted on him.

What has upset some critics, we suppose, is the fact that there is a great deal of sex in the book, discussed by Vidal in very blunt and literal terms, including emphasis on heterosexual passion as well as all the other, about rape and homosexuality.

Flair Familiar

Knowing Vidal's flair for comedy, we decided he intended a parody on pornography. His critics, however, insist he is too anatomically graphic, so much so that it jars the sensibilities of his readers.

Vidal, who was slated to confer with Fox movie moguls this week on plans for the script of "Myra," told a reporter this film version will not contain any of the "so-called graphic erotica which has been attributed to the story." He said he plans to begin writing the script in Rome at the end of March or the beginning of April and will not be working out of his Dutchess County residence this time around.

He seemed highly elated over the fact that, as co-producer, this will be his first absolute control over a picture. This was not the case with his previous scripts of "The Best Man," made from his play, and his work on "Ben Hur." He was also happy that Bud Yorkin, who directed the critically acclaimed "Divorce, American Style," will direct the color version of "Myra." His co-producer will be Robert Fryer, who is just completing "The Boston Strangler," his first movie, and who released a statement saying that he feels the best-selling "Myra" will make a movie that will fill theaters everywhere.

We'll go along with that! It's humorous and it's sexy ... so show can it miss?

Dry Skin Helped By Heat??

The young woman said, no, she hasn't junked her face creams (though she's using less) but her skin is less parched these past two winters than ever before in her life, and cream never helped before. The explanation: "It's our complete electric heating system that's doing it. The house never gets too hot, or too dry. It's always just right. The improvement in my skin, of course, is an unexpected dividend. We didn't change over just as a complexion treatment for me, you know, but because my seven-year-old daughter's doctor felt it would help in our battle against her severe allergies."

It seems that in addition to certain foods (not affected of course by the heating system), the little girl is sensitive both to dust (which is greatly minimized in electrically heated houses) and to abrupt thermal changes (which are absent, provided the heating system has been paired with proper insulating.)

Asked if this were a frequent reason, a representative of the Utility company said: "We have heard of electric heating as an aid in certain allergies — in fact I have a newspaper clipping in my files in which a noted physician makes much the same point — but the incidence of such specific needs is minute. Most people who are turning to electric home heating do so because it's comfortable to live in and easy to live with. It's effortless to operate, and just may never need professional maintenance. Then too, it's economical in the long run. The equipment outlasts anything else on the market. And it puts you a step ahead. Predictions are that in another fifteen years, most homes will be electrically heated."

He added: "I want to point out, in fact, I want to emphasize, that for ideal performance you must have high quality insulation too. That's the only way to eliminate drafts and seepage. Then you're assured of heating in accordance with the thermostat settings you select. And you can keep the right amount of moisture in the air to prevent dry skin and parched nasal membranes."

"Only electric heating is so even."

QUESTION BOX

Question: How efficient is electric heating?

Answer: Electricity is 100% efficient. It's the only fuel that is. So you see why the experts recommend a good insulation job to go with it. It can all go toward your comfort. And keep heating bills lower at the same time.

Question: On vacation last winter I came out of a theatre on a cold wet night and waited in perfect comfort — thanks to ceiling heating in the theatre. Since it was also a source of light I'm wondering why the ceiling heating for homes that I've been reading about is covered with plaster.

Answer: You're talking about two different things. The ceiling cable type of electric home heating systems is designed to function perfectly, — according to the thermostatic settings of your choice — when covered with plaster. It's preferred by many who appreciate its invisibility and space saving qualities as well. (Though let's add here that of the several types of electric heating equipment available, the "visible" ones are all sleek and unobtrusive).

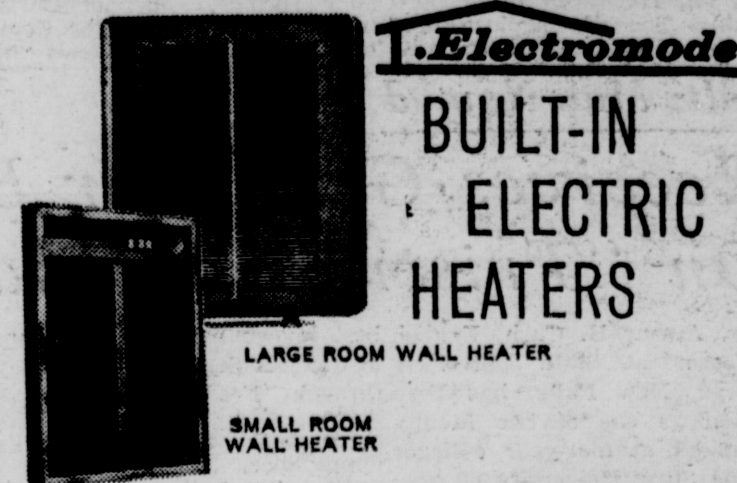

Now about that outdoor matter. That is just right for that particular usage, giving you a temporary island of comfort. Electric home heating heats the entire enclosed space . . . whereas what you describe is infra-red fixtures, keeps you warm while you're there, but doesn't warm the air; not the same thing at all, you see.

Question: Is the electric heat pump the correct name for the unit that cools as well as heats?

Answer: Yes. However, there are other equipment combinations often recommended. For instance, cooling can be added to an electric furnace system. Or, in some cases separate electric heating and cooling systems prove practical.

Question: It's been suggested that we get an estimate on what our operating costs would be if we convert to electric heat. How much store could we put by it, do you think?

Answer: You can count on it. The estimates by the utility companies figure your total usage, you know, including lighting as well.

For families who have small children in the house, the uniform floor to ceiling distribution of an Electromode Down-Flo Wall heater is ideal. Gentle, fan-circulated comfort is spread over the entire room, eliminating chilly, floor level drafts. Smudgeless, fumeless, Flameless electric heat prevents walls, drapes and other furnishings in your home from becoming soiled and greasy, so your home stays new-looking longer. The exclusive Electromode Safety-Grid is on the job, too, for carefree comfort for the whole family. Installation is simple. Down-Flo Heaters are available in models for small and larger rooms.

*Completely safe—Safety Grid outdates hazards. Heat producing wires are sealed within an aluminum casting. No hot wires are ever exposed. Only Electromode has the Safety Grid—your family deserves nothing less.

TINY'S TINY TALE

THE LITTLE LAMB CALLED "MUTTONHEAD" by R. Morrow

Once upon a time on a certain sheep ranch way up in the hills, there lived a little lamb called "Muttonhead". He was the whitest and fluffiest lamb that ever lived, but everyone thought he was also the dumbest. That's why they called him "Muttonhead".

He never did anything right. If the Shepherd, whose name was Tom, wanted the sheep to turn right, Muttonhead would turn left. If Tom wanted the sheep to graze in the fields, Muttonhead would run into the woods near the swamp and play hide-and-seek. When the sheep would bed down for the night, Muttonhead would stay awake until the others were fast asleep then at the top of his lungs he would go,

"Baa-aa, baa-aa, baa-aa."

And if that didn't wake all the other sheep, he would do it again, "Baa-aa, baa-aa, baa-aa."

Then he would curl up under his fluffy, white woolen coat and fall fast asleep.

One day Tom was talking to Mr. Tuttle, the owner of the ranch, and said,

"Mr. Tuttle, I just don't know what to do about Muttonhead, he can't seem to do anything right. I scold him all the time and he never pays any attention to me."

"All right, Tom", Mr. Tuttle said, "the next time I go into town, I'll take Muttonhead and sell him."

So it was settled, Muttonhead would be sold.

When Muttonhead heard from the other lambs that he would be sold, he became very, very sad. He decided to turn over a new leaf and for a day or two, he did everything he was supposed to do. This made Tom very happy and he thought that maybe Muttonhead wouldn't have to be sold after all.

But it was very hard for Muttonhead to be good for very long because he just loved getting into mischief.

One morning, a few days later, Muttonhead felt very playful and he thought to himself,

"Maybe I'll just get into a little mischief today, then tomorrow I'll start being good again."

Then he started running and jumping and chasing his friends. The more he ran and jumped and chased, the more the others laughed and ran around in circles. Soon, the lambs were scattered all over the fields.

When Tom saw what had happened, he got very mad and started shouting orders, trying to round up the scattered sheep. He finally managed to get them all together, except Muttonhead. Muttonhead had run off to his favorite hiding place in the woods, down near the swamp that was full of quicksand.

In his hiding place, Muttonhead stayed very still because he knew that Tom would come looking for him.

Pretty soon, he heard a rustling in the tall cattails at the edge of the swamp. He quietly peeked his fluffy head over the fallen log he was hiding behind. He couldn't believe what he saw! There was Mr. Tuttle's little three year old boy, Jimmy, chasing a butterfly and heading straight for the swamp.

Muttonhead didn't know what to do. If he came out of his hiding place, surely Tom would catch him and take him to town to be sold. But if he didn't do something, Jimmy might run right into the swamp. He peeked out again and saw that Jimmy was getting very, very close to the edge of the water.

Muttonhead didn't think it over any longer. He crouched down low and in one great leap, jumped completely over the log. Then he ran as fast and as hard as he could right at Jimmy. He was running so fast that when he crashed into Jimmy, he just bounced off and kept right on going through the air. When he finally landed, he found himself out in the middle of the swamp in very deep water.

At that moment, Tom was pushing his way through the cattails and saw the whole thing. He ran over and picked up Jimmy who was very frightened and crying very hard. Then he stepped very carefully into the swamp and rescued a very wet and soggy Muttonhead, who was also very frightened and baa-ing as loud as he could.

Just then, Mr. and Mrs. Tuttle came running down to the swamp looking for Jimmy.

"Muttonhead is the bravest, smartest lamb I've ever seen. He just saved Jimmy from falling into the swamp," cried Tom.

"As a reward, we'll build him a fine little barn all his own," said Mr. Tuttle, "and he can run and jump and play all day long."

"And we'll never, ever call him Muttonhead again," said Mrs. Tuttle.

So now, on a certain sheep ranch way up in the hills, you'll find the happiest little lamb in the whole world. From sunrise to sunset, he just runs and jumps and plays, and every once in a while, he even gets into a little mischief.
